ADM. STANDLEY TO SEE F.D.R. ON AID FOR RUSSIA

U. S. Envoy Calls on Premier Stalin.

While Stalingrad was holding on the 44th day of the German siege, three interesting developments took place:

1. In Chungking, China, Wendell L. Willkie cried out for "an all-out offensive everywhere by all the united nations." Demanding more United States arms for Russia and China, he called for "an end to the empire of nations over other nations." [Story on page 8.]

2. In Washington, D. C., President Roosevelt repudiated Willkie's pleas for the immediate opening of a second front in Europe and Asia. [Story on page 8.]

3. In Moscow, Adm. Standley, the American ambassador, announced he would leave for home soon to discuss with Mr. Roosevelt additional American aid for Russia. The Moscow dispatch follows:

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (AP).—Adm. William H. Standley, United States ambassador, tonight disclosed he would leave for Washington, D. C., soon. He then visited Premier Josef Stalin, presumably to discuss growing Russian dissatisfaction with aid being received from Great Britain and the United States.

The ambassador did not say when he was leaving. However, the implication was he would go almost immediately, and that his visit with Stalin was to receive any new or last minute information which the soviet premier may have for President Roosevelt, particularly on the vital second front issue.

Seeks Coördination.

Standley indicated sympathy for the Russian standpoint and also that he was eager to provide as much assistance as possible to the soviets.

He said he would confer with Mr. Roosevelt on "coördinating to the utmost the war efforts of the United States and the soviet union" and give the President a first hand picture of the loyal support the Russian people are giving their country's war effort.

Standley's announcement was the latest development in the situation created by Stalin's letter to this correspondent [Cassidy is chief of the Associated Press Moscow bureau] urging the allies to meet "their obligations fully and on time."

Points to Soviet Criticism.

Standley said there had been criticism because second rate material, especially planes, had been sent to Russia, with British Hurricanes and American Tomahawks [Curtiss P-40] fighting here, while the superior Spitfires and Airacobras are serving elsewhere.

The ambassador pointed out that some ships carrying allied supplies to Russia had been lost, but he insisted, "We feel that our aid has been of material assistance."

He made it plain that his principal difficulty in Moscow was lack of information, altho he said there had been a steady improvement in the exchange of general information with the Russians since his arrival.

Aid Governed by Pact.

"I think it would be ill advised to criticize without full information," he said.

He said the shipment of supplies to Russia was governed by a master agreement signed in Washington by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Maxim Litvinov, the soviet ambassador, but that he did not know whether deliveries were up to schedule.

The ambassador declined to comment on Stalin's letter in view of the fact that Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles already had commented in Washington.

Text of Announcement.

Standley's announcement was contained in a prepared statement which said:

"I am leaving within the next few days for the United States in order to report personally to the President and the secretary of state and confer with them and other officials of the American government with regard to ways and means of coördinating to the utmost the war efforts of the United States and the soviet union.

WPB EXPECTED TO ISSUE ORDER 'IN DAY OR TWO'

Hope to Stimulate Copper Output.

Machinery to Britain

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Britain will introduce American mining methods and machines into a limited number of mines in an effort to close the 11,000,000 ton gap between fuel output and consumption, Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George, minister of fuel, light, and power, told the house of commons today.

"We have ordered from the United States as much machinery as we can hope to get in a reasonable period," he said.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The War Production board today decided to order all gold mining halted in the United States to make the miners and some of the equipment available to the nonferrous metal mines for more vital war production, such as copper.

The move had been contemplated for some time and a WPB spokesman, declining to be quoted by name, reported that the board finally decided at its regular meeting today to take the action.

In closing the nation's gold mines, WPB will be acting under the President's war powers, delegated to the board in the executive order creating it.

Action to close the mines will be taken under the war powers delegated by President Roosevelt to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB.

Maintain Skeleton Crews.

The order will be issued within a day or so, the spokesman said, and will direct all the gold mines to cease production at some date in the near future, probably a month or two hence. The mines will be permitted, however, to remain in a "standby" condition with skeleton crews on hand to prevent flooding and other damage.

First word of the decision came from Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.]. He and other western senators, along with gold mine operators opposed to the move, met with WPB officials last week to register their protest.

Unable to Prevent Order.

"We did all we could to stop it," Johnson said. "I heard of the order with deep sorrow."

A WPB informant, he added, told him the action was taken "reluctantly" but had to be done because the labor situation is critical.

The official referred particularly to the famous Homestake mine in South Dakota and the Cripple Creek mining district in Colorado as among those affected, Johnson said.

"This means a death blow to Teller county," said Johnson.

The Cripple Creek, Victor, and other important gold mines are located in that Colorado area.

People to Coöperate: Carr.

Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado said: "The people of Colorado can and will do everything required of them to win the war. They will leave their homes and accept this cross if the country asks it. But if our towns are to be depopulated, if our people are to be moved out of the homes, then I trust that the men who penned this far-reaching order may have acted with . . . a clear perception of the power they have exercised and the consequences it may entail for so many people."

Carr also urged the government to take steps "to repay these people in some small way for the losses they will experience and for the suffering they will endure."

"Serve No Useful Purpose."

Rep. Harvey L. Englebright [R., Cal.] contended that closing of the gold mines will serve no useful purpose. He said he will ask the WPB to reconsider its decision.

Englebright declared there are fewer than 2,000 hard rock miners in the western gold operations, that these average 45 to 48 years of age, and that few can be expected to seek employment in copper or other strategic minerals.

Englebright added that gold min-

G. O. P. Elated by Registration in Strongholds

Voters in the Republican strongholds of Illinois — downstate and Chicago suburban communities — turned out by the hundreds of thousands yesterday to register for the Nov. 3 election. Republican leaders, who had been concerned by the light downstate turnout at the first general registration day Sept. 19, were jubilant as reports came in of sharp gains in voters' lists thruout the downstate territory.

The reports indicated that the total downstate registration might reach 1,800,000, which would be 200,000 more than the total vote cast in 1938, the last off year election. If 1,800,000 turns out to be the final downstate registration, it will exceed slightly the registration in Chicago, as estimated from figures made public yesterday by the board of election commissioners.

80,000 Will Be Dropped.

The election board reported a total of 1,924,885 voters registered in Chicago and in the nine suburbs under the board's jurisdiction. Officials estimated that 80,000 of these names would be knocked off in the board's canvass of the registrants.

The election board's poll books then would have 1,844,885 registered voters. Approximately 100,000 of these voters live in the nine suburbs under the election board, so the city's total registration is likely to be in the neighborhood of 1,750,000. Registration in the city was completed Monday night. In 1938 the Chicago registration was 1,718,200.

Flynn's Area Gains.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn's territory, which includes all of Cook county outside of the city and the nine suburbs, had its final registration yesterday with the downstate areas. No totals were available last night, but reports from many suburbs showed sharp registration gains.

In Wilmette, where the new registrations were estimated at more than 700, election officials ran out of blanks. Park Ridge reported more than 600 new registrants, which was described as astonishing. Evanston and Oak Park reports were similarly encouraging to Republican party leaders.

5,000 More in Kane County.

In counties surrounding Chicago the story was the same. Kane county added more than 5,000 voters, bringing the total registration to about 90 per cent of the county's all-time record vote of 68,000 cast in the 1940 Presidential election. Lake county reported 50,000 registered, as compared with a 1938 vote of 46,815. Will county registration was reported as 50,000 as against 49,412 in 1938.

Other estimates of county totals, based on Associated Press reports, showing gains over the vote in 1938, follow: Morgan, 17,000 as against 16,795; Adams, 26,539 and 24,062; Warren, 10,500 and 9,989; Kankakee, 25,008 and 23,669; Whiteside, 17,404 and 15,233; Madison, 60,000 and 51,975; Champaign, 29,903 and 27,993. There were some exceptions to this trend. Vermilion county officials estimated that between 4,000 and 5,000 potential voters had been left unregistered.

Crawford county reported an official registration of 11,010 voters.

94,797 New Voters in City.

Chicago's registration figures, announced by the election board, showed that 94,797 new voters had been added to the lists since the April primary election. Most significant feature of this figure, officials said, was the fact that 56,562 of these new voters are women and only 38,235 are men.

In 1938 there were 15,336 first registrations by men and only 5,952 by women.

The absence of thousands of young men in the armed forces accounted for much of the drop in new male registrants, but election board clerks reported another new factor—many registrations by women beyond voting age who never before took the trouble to register.

Clerks to Canvass Precincts.

On Friday and Saturday registration clerks will canvass the precincts to ascertain that all persons on the books are registered correctly. Those receiving suspect notices will be dropped unless they appear before the board Oct. 19 and 20 to establish that they are registered properly.

CANADIAN MEN AND WOMEN FACE DRAFT INTO WAR INDUSTRIES

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 6 (AP).—Within the next few months Canada "will dip deep into nonessential industry" for both manpower and womanpower, Humphrey Mitchell, federal minister of labor, said here today.

"Out of the gold mines we will send around 6,000 men to base metal mines," he said. "Men will be sent into lumber camps, too, in the near future.

"Industrialists have been warned that they must adjust themselves in their plants to use more women. A large number of women will replace the men in many plants thruout Canada. We will get the women, too. We have that arranged."

A Commando at 18 Months, That's Mike!

The mystery of the swimming adventure of Michael Wilkie, 18 months old, in water 11 feet deep was his own secret last night. He was telling no one—not even his mother.

How chubby, blue-eyed Michael managed to get into the swimming pool of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Wilkie, on their farm near Prairie View, east of Lake Zurich in Lake county, was still unexplained after four days of trying to get the youngster to recount his adventure.

Finds Him Puffing Along.

His mother says that the first she knew of Michael's aquatic tendencies was when she looked out of the front window of their home and saw Michael puffing and paddling in the middle of the pool, "his face reddened like a fire hydrant." She ran from the house, dived into the water and rescued him. His corduroy overalls were soaked, water sloshed from his rubbers, but Michael appeared none the worse. He gurgled and coughed and smiled.

Acting upon a doctor's advice, she kept him quiet. Before long Michael was begging for his lunch.

Surmounts Big Hurdles.

How the 18 month old baby could swim 15 feet from the edge of the pool to the middle is only one phase of the mystery. How he got to the pool is the other.

Mrs. Wilkie said she left Michael in his play yard about 40 feet from the pool at 10 o'clock that morning. His yard is surrounded by a four foot high wire fence that reaches to the ground. And the pool is inclosed by a similar fence.

How did the baby get over, under or around those fences? Mrs. Wilkie doesn't know, except that she believes he may have squeezed thru some openings close to the ground. But at any rate she's convinced Michael is starting his own training to be a commando.

Flyers Bail Out; Plane Crashes; Kills 8 in Town

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—A British plane which crashed into the center of the village of Somersham last night after its crew had bailed out safely killed at least eight of the townspeople, it was disclosed today. Two others are missing. Six dwellings of the Huntingdon county community north of London were destroyed and others damaged.

CUT OFF BY JAPS, 22 WANDER THRU JUNGLE IN 38 DAYS

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 6.—An Australian officer and 21 men who wandered in the jungles of the Owen Stanley mountain range for 38 days after being cut off by the Japanese in the withdrawal from Kokoda reached an allied base today.

Weakened by climbing up and down the jagged peaks of the range, they kept alive by eating yams, sugar cane, green bananas, roasted or boiled, and taro—a plant with a bulb like that of the lily. One of the Australians shot a wild pig. Even the skin was consumed by the hungry troops.

With great difficulty two wounded men were carried on stretches. Each stretcher required eight men to move it over the trails.

Crawls on Hands and Knees.

A corporal, who was wounded in the leg, refused to become a burden by riding in a stretcher. He tied bandages on his hands and knees and for three weeks kept up with the party by crawling over the trails, dragging his wounded leg. He was able to maintain the pace because it was necessary for the stretcher bearers to travel very slowly.

The story of the ordeal was told by Capt. Ben Buckler, 23 years old. His face was covered with a heavy growth of beard. He had lost 21 pounds. He had been reported missing and was presumed to have been killed.

The Japanese attacked Buckler's company on Aug. 29, using heavy machine guns. That night the Japs talked and shouted in the hope of drawing the Australians' fire so they would be able to locate their positions, but the enemy did not attack. The next morning the Japs advanced, shouting, "Where are you, Digger?" Buckler's men replied with grenades and tommy guns.

Wore Anti-Gas Capes.

Buckler said the first wave of attacking Japs wore the Australian type of anti-gas capes. They are made of oilskin and are camouflaged with green and brown colors. Over their heads they wore green mosquito nets, supported on collapsible frames, which served the double purpose of camouflage and keeping off mosquitos. The second group of Japs fought stripped to the waist, while the third unit wore ordinary khaki uniforms.

Another Jap trick was to throw smoke grenades in an attempt to demoralize the Australians.

Hack Way Thru Jungle.

After several days of forced withdrawals, Buckler's detachment found itself cut off. Moving only at night, the men set off on a long trek to safety, hacking their way thru the jungle. One day they camped within 150 yards of the Japs, but were not discovered.

The troops pooled their emergency rations and sent out two men to find the Australian forces at Myola. At the end of six days the scouts had not returned. As their food was gone, the group decided to proceed. Buckler and a soldier scouted the region before starting out. They passed thru

OSBORNE, ILLINOIS CONSERVATION CHIEF, HURT IN CAR CRASH

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special].—Livingston Osborne, director of the state department of conservation, suffered two broken ribs when the automobile he was driving struck another car today near the intersection of routes 66 and 9 east of here. Deputy Sheriff Roy Bunday, who investigated the accident, said Osborne had become ill in his car and fainted, his machine then striking the rear of the other automobile.

Livingston Osborne.

Osborne was taken to St. Joseph's hospital here. Dr. James McNutt said Osborne suffered scratches on the chest and face, but the injuries were not serious. Osborne was traveling to his Springfield office from his home in Highland Park.

The occupants of the other car, who were uninjured, were Mrs. Margaret Black of 839 Sheridan road, Chicago, and her mother, Mrs. John H. Anderson of 20 East Cedar street, Chicago. Mrs. Black is the wife of William T. Black, manager of Ted Weems' orchestra.

YANKS SHOOT 11 PLANES DOWN IN SOLOMON FIGHT

Guadalcanal Battle Rages 6 Days.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The Japanese have succeeded in landing new troop reënforcements on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, despite valiant American aerial opposition, and a new enemy effort to capture the United States air base on the island obviously is in the making.

A navy communique said tonight that the troops had been put ashore by a force of destroyers and a heavy cruiser on the night of Oct. 3-4, following a daylight attempt by a small group of bombers with extraordinarily heavy fighter protection to bomb the American base.

The cruiser was damaged by at least one dive bomb hit and two torpedo hits. The air raid was repelled without a bomb being dropped and 11 of an estimated 30 Japanese fighters were destroyed—two by anti-aircraft fire and nine by seven navy Wildcat fighters which went up against the big enemy force.

Two U. S. Planes Lost.

Only two American planes were lost, one in repelling the air raid and one in dive bombing the cruiser, and the crews of both were saved.

The Japanese are trying desperately to accumulate a strong force to recapture the air field. American defense area occupies a section of the north shore of the island and the rest of the wild terrain is a sort of no-man's land.

The navy said that during the period covered by tonight's communique, Oct. 3 and 4, there was little ground activity, altho navy and marine corps dive bombers blasted enemy supply dumps, and strafed enemy dumps, and strafed enemy troops. Meanwhile the Japs continued to land small detachments of troops.

[The communique indicated that the Solomons battle has now been going on for six days, Monday's communique having described the fighting from Sept. 29 until Oct. 2, in which 10 Jap planes were lost and a destroyer was damaged.]

Two Torpedoes Strike.

The navy said the cruiser was damaged first when navy and marine corps dive bombers discovered the surface squadron putting troops ashore. At least one hit was scored on the ship at that time.

Then shortly after daybreak a group of navy and marine corps torpedo bombers scored two torpedo hits on the cruiser, which was still smoking as a result of the previous bomb hit.

The damaging of this vessel raised the number of surface craft which the enemy has had sunk or damaged in the two months old Solomons campaign to 30. The loss of 11 planes raised the number of enemy aircraft destroyed to 230.

There was some speculation that the Japanese were deliberately trying, thru force of superior numbers, to reduce the American fighter strength based on Guadalcanal to such a low level that defense positions could be heavily bombed in connection with the developing attack on the airfield.

FEED YOUR DOG MEAT? THEN YOU MUST CUT DOWN ON OWN RATION

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—If you eat meat in a restaurant or at the home of a friend you should count that in as part of your weekly quota of two and a half pounds if you want to live up to the voluntary meat rationing program, the Office of War Information said today.

And if you feed pork, beef, veal, lamb, or mutton to your dog, the OWI said, "you should in fairness subtract them from your own personal allowance for the week." No allowances for pets were included in calculating the fair weekly share for civilians.

In a statement designed to answer some questions regarding the share the meat program the OWI said there was "a long list of nutritious meats available in addition to the two and one-half pound allotment. These include hearts, livers, kidneys, sweetbreads, brains, and pigs' feet."

'OBSCENITY' WAR BOGS DOWN ON RED PARTY FRONT

Postoffice Loath to Act Against Daily Worker.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker's anti-obscenity crusade, which has removed many well known magazines from the nation's barber shops, has encountered ideological difficulties.

The postoffice department's embarrassment was occasioned by the Dies committee on un-American activities, which asked it to venture into the realm of political literature and proceed against the New York Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party.

A representative of the committee visited the department Sept. 15 and submitted photostatic copies of instalments of a Daily Worker serial titled "Village in August."

Challenged on Obscenity.

The department was challenged to find anything in the Police Gazette, College Humor, Laff, or any other publication recently barred from the mails that could be classed with the obscenity of the Communist Daily Worker serial.

The Dies committee, which studies the Daily Worker for official reports of Communist party activities, had no jurisdiction to investigate the publication of obscenity but believed that the serial would interest the postoffice department.

The solicitor's office received the samples three weeks ago without comment. About 10 days ago inquiries at the solicitor's office brought nothing but excuses.

Further inquiries were made yesterday, when Calvin W. Hassell, assistant solicitor in charge of the matter, at first professed not to remember anything about it. Later he said the samples had been referred to a new man for further consideration. Hassell refused to discuss the case when asked about it today.

On the "Mustn't" List.

The postoffice department's complaint against the Police Gazette alleged that it published photographs with such captions as:

"The Snappiest of All Girl Pictures"; "Ruined Young Girls . . . Lured Maidens to His Home . . . He Gave Lavish Gifts"; "Love Perfume . . . Clinging for Hours Make Lovers Loath to Part"; "A Shapely Burlesquer"; "Stunning Stripper . . . Subtle Routine Leaves Audience Gasping."

These captions, according to the complaint, were accompanied by photographs and drawings of an obscene, lewd, and lascivious character."

The department revoked the Police Gazette's second class mailing privilege, which had the effect of barring it from the mails.

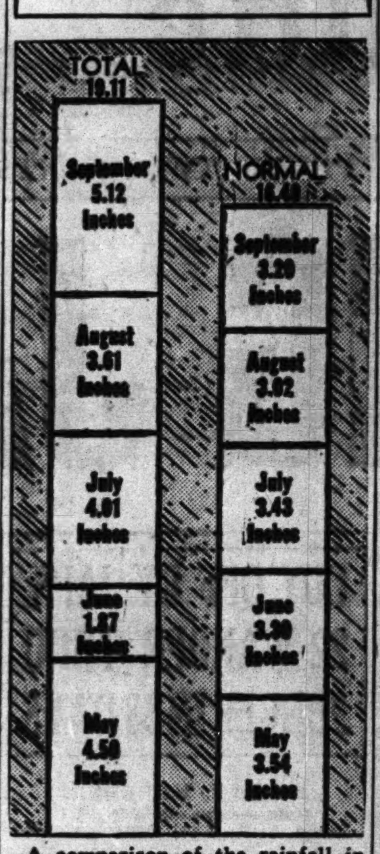
Refusal to Act Cited.

Members of the Dies committee expect no action by the postoffice department in the Daily Worker case. They said the Roosevelt administration persistently has refused to take action against the hundreds of government officials and employés who are members of organizations which have been branded subversive by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Biddle himself refused to report to congress the names of government officials and employés who were members of the organizations which he pronounced subversive, as directed by an act of congress, but reported instead that only two persons on a list of 1,121 submitted by the Dies committee were discharged by their superiors. Rep. Martin Dies [D., Tex.], committee chairman, told the house most of the government officials and employés were members of organizations which Biddle described in confidential interdepartmental memoranda as Communist dominated.

One committee member suggested that if the postoffice department should proceed against the Daily Worker the Communists in the government service would set up a dozen committees overnight and there would be a second front right here in Washington.

A Wet Season



A comparison of the rainfall in Chicago since May 1 with the normal for the period.

September went down in the weather bureau's books yesterday as cool, wet, and cloudy. The mean temperature was 62.4 degrees, which was 2.5 degrees below normal, according to Owen T. Lay, official in charge of the bureau.

The thermometer fell to 28.7 on Sept. 28. This was the lowest mark ever recorded here in September. The first killing frost of the season came Sept. 25. The only earlier killing frost in Chicago's records was on Sept. 20, in 1896.

The rainfall last month was 5.12 inches, 1.92 inches above normal. The month was the darkest September since 1934.

DEMOCRATS FACE RURAL AND URBAN MISSOURI REVOLT

Farmers Vexed at F. D. R., Cities at Bosses.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 6.—The Democratic party in Missouri is staggering under the impact of a double barreled fusillade that has found lodgment in two vital parts —the city vote and the rural vote. As a result, the Democrats are likely to lose two or three of their present 10 congressmen.

Republican Representatives Dewey Short, Philip A. Bennett, and Walter C. Ploeser are being fought by the Democrats as pre-war noninterventionists. There is no reason to believe, however, that such opposition will be any more successful in the election than in the primary, in which all three were overwhelmingly renominated. Short and Bennett were among those singled out for purge by the administration and the eastern pinkos.

In rural Missouri, as in other agricultural constituencies, Democrats have been hard hit by farmer reaction against the Roosevelt administration. In the state's two metropolitan centers, St. Louis and Kansas City, the Democrats have been put out of office by a reform wave. In each of these cities the Republicans stand an excellent chance of gaining a congressman.

City Bosses Lose Out.

In both cities, boss ridden and corrupt for years, Democratic machines were swept out of control of local government by a tidal wave of outraged public sentiment. The prelude was the election of Republican Gov. F. C. Donnell two years ago by 3,613 votes, altho Mr. Roosevelt carried the state by 87,000.

The Democratic machine, piloted by Mayor Bernard L. Dickman and Boss Robert Hannegan of St. Louis, overreached itself when it set out to steal the governorship election from Donnell. By manipulation of the legislature the Democratic bosses were able to prevent the formal certification of the election of Donnell and his installation in office. The outgoing incumbent, Gov. Stark, continued to perform the executive function until the Supreme court upheld Donnell's title and unhorsed the bosses.

The effect was cataclysmic. The Democratic organization and the Democratic majority in the legislature that attempted the steal were discredited. In the ensuing St. Louis municipal election Mayor Dickman was defeated for a third term by 40,000 votes. Of the discredited Democratic members of the legislature 19 did not have the nerve to seek reelection this year. As a result of the scandal the legislature is likely to be Republican.

Collapse of Pendergast.

In Kansas City, the reform wave engulfed the Pendergast machine that had worked its sweet will with local government, elections, and business, collecting vast amounts of graft, up to the time Pendergast was sent to the penitentiary. The first blow to the machine was the erasure of 63,000 phony voters' names from the registration lists. That broke the hold of the crooks on the city and made it possible to defeat the machine by 20,000 votes.

Fruit of this victory was the installation of a nonpolitical city administration headed by a mayor and a city manager, president of the City Managers' associtION, who was imported for the job. This administration has been reëlected for another term by a 33,000 majority.

Kansas City is now so moral that its own citizens don't recognize their town and are wondering whether the reform can possibly last. The number of city employés has been reduced from the 7,300 of Pendergast's régime to 3,300. Elimination of graft on contracts and services has saved taxpayers millions of dollars. It's hard to find a handbook to place a bet on a horse race.

Clean-Up Democrats Win.

In Pendergast's time the city hall and court house were closed on election days with all employés out hustling votes with city and county cars. Now on election days the city hall and court house are open for business, with all employés at their desks. Savings in administration have been expended on playgrounds, swimming pools, and other improvements.

The Pendergast machine made a last stand in the recent primary, but was beaten by the "cleanup" Democrats in most of the contests over court jobs. Rep. Joseph B. Shannon, long a pillar of the Pendergast machine, is seriously ill and was not a candidate for renomination. It is his district the Republicans have a good chance of capturing.

Out on the farms Democrats have been losing ground ever since the President's Labor Day speech, which blamed the 110 per cent of parity ceiling on farm product prices for inflation, altho Mr. Roosevelt had signed the legislation containing this feature. The farmers who had just finished their first cutting of hay and were squaring away for silage work "got madder and madder" as they listened to that speech, according to one farm authority. They were resentful of being blamed for inflation whereas, in their view, the labor unions, aided and abetted by the President in the continual boosting of wages, were the real culprits.

Rue Labor Day Speech.

Many a Democratic leader makes no bones of confessing privately that the Labor Day speech cost the party in power the farm vote in this election. It engendered wide-spread distrust of Mr. Roosevelt, particularly that portion of his pronouncement in which he threatened to set aside a duly enacted law of congress by executive decree. One of the leading organs of farm opinion was quick to point out that the Roosevelt threat was reminiscent of Hitler, who once proclaimed to the German people that he was functioning as the supreme authority of the state, superseding the laws and the courts.

During the ensuing conflict between the administration and the farm bloc in congress the farm reaction against the administration deepened. The farmers became more and more convinced that the President was favoring labor at the expense of agriculture. They could see no other interpretation of his action in asking a ceiling on farm product prices and no real ceiling on wages.

EXEMPT EDITORS AND TEACHERS FROM HATCH ACT

Many Get Federal Pay, House Is Told.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The house today voted to exempt teachers and country editors on federal pay rolls in any capacity from the Hatch act ban on political activity.

The measure previously had been passed by the senate to exempt the employés of educational institutions, and the exemption for country editors was inserted by the house. It now goes back to the senate for consideration of the editors' amendment.

During house debate the teachers and country editors were described as "beneficial elements" and "the unpolluted, noncontaminated voice of the people." Teachers are paid from federal funds and some country editors have part time federal jobs.

Called Attempt at Repeal.

Rep. Clare Hoffman [R., Mich.] complained that the brief bill was a "disguised attempt to repeal the entire Hatch act" which forbids participation of federal employés in elections.

As worded, the senate bill exempts officers and employés of "any educational or research" agency or institution.

That, contended Hoffman, "exempts just about every government worker, because you can stretch a point and hold that every government agency is engaged in educating the people in something or other or in researching for the public welfare."

"We don't want any more pensions for congressmen legislation around here without the members knowing what is going on," he added. "This is too important a matter to dispose of with only a few members on the floor."

Creal Offers Amendment.

The amendment exempting publishers of weekly or semi-weekly newspapers having a circulation of less than 5,000 was offered by Rep. Edward W. Creal [D., Ky.], who said economic conditions were forcing many of the approximately 4,400 country editors to take part time federal jobs. These jobs, he explained, include everything from serving as ration board clerks to "running down to the river to measure the water" for $15 a year.

Creal said it might be argued that publishers holding part time federal jobs could not freely express their views in their own papers unless congress specifically exempted them from the Hatch act.

Teachers who receive their pay from school funds to which the federal government contributes were the only group exempted in the senate bill. Sen. Prentiss Brown [D., Mich.] said he believed it was "wrong to take out of political life one of the most beneficial elements in it, the teaching profession."

M'KEOUGH BACK TO RESUME HIS CAMPAIGN TOUR

Marshall, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—Rep. Raymond S. McKeough, Democratic candidate for senator, returned from Washington today to resume his campaign tour with other party candidates.

"The United States would be helpless today before the axis if the delayers and appeasers had their way," McKeough said in a prepared speech.

"Yet they would have the people believe that the United States was wholly unprepared," he added. "The fact is that President Roosevelt started his preparations against attack in 1933. Out of the first works appropriation of his administration, the President allocated funds to build 22 ships which were in heavy action immediately after we were attacked.

"Among these 22 ships was the gallant aircraft carrier Lexington, which was sunk by enemy action, but not before it and its brave crew had performed heroic service."

First Yanks from Britain in Canada En Route Home

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 6 (AP).—The first contingent of United States troops to return to this continent after duty across the Atlantic passed thru Montreal tonight en route to their homes on furlough. There were about 100 men in the group. Most of the men were from midwestern states. The men said they had been in Britain for almost two years on special duty. They would not elaborate on their work.

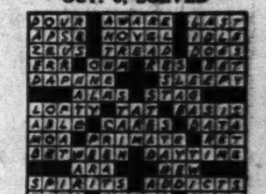
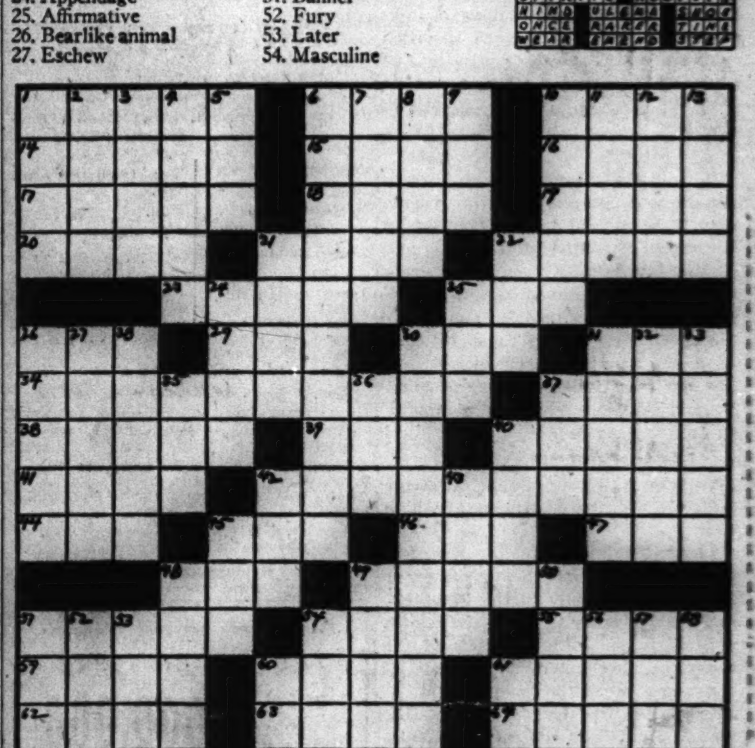
PUZZLE OF TUESDAY, OCT. 6, SOLVED



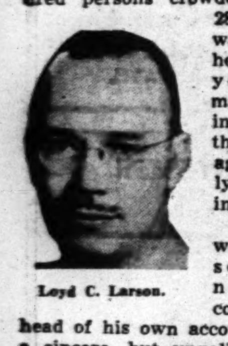


A BUSINESS MAN CANDIDATE OPENS G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

Loyd Larson Tears Into Democratic Machine.

BY WARD WALKER.

An eager audience of several hundred persons crowded the hall at 2800 South Parkway last night to hear a serious young business man fire the opening broadside of the fall campaign against the Kelly-Nash machine in Cook county.



Loyd C. Larson.

The speaker was Loyd C. Larson, Republican nominee for county clerk and head of his own accounting firm. In a sincere, but unpolished voice, he charged the Democratic machine has given Cook county the name of being the "Vote Fraud center" of America.

"It is a county shot thru and thru with corruption," he said, "where a definite alliance exists between its elected officials and the criminals of the underworld."

Others to Open Fire.

Most of the audience, attending the first meeting of the Business Men's Election committee, were colored and their enthusiasm was obvious as they applauded Larson's charges.

While Larson's speech was the first wide open attack on the Democratic machine, the other Republican candidates, including Leo Carr for sheriff, are expected to open fire this week.

Larson struck hard at the farce played by Democratic Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien; he scored the vote stealing machinery that "has functioned so successfully," and he stated flatly that the Kelly-Nash organization has bankrupted Cook county.

"Why have Democratic officials ignored the wishes of the county's decent citizens?" Larson asked. "They had no other choice. Most of these officials are puppets of one of the most notorious political machines in the history of the nation."

Recalls Tribune Photographs.

He recalled the photograph taken by a Tribune photographer of Lester Laird, chief of Sheriff O'Brien's county highway police, dining at the Drake hotel with William R. Skidmore, czar of underworld gambling.

"Does this prove an alliance between the sheriff's office and the underworld?" he asked the audience. "Yes! Yes!" they answered.

Larson mentioned that in the 1940 general election it was necessary for 20,000 citizens to volunteer their services at the polls to make sure the election wasn't stolen under the eyes of workers appointed by the county officials.

Says Lyons Was Elected Senator.

"I don't have to tell you that, tho," he said. "You know that Richard J. Lyons, Republican, was elected United States senator in 1938 and that Dwight H. Green, Republican, was elected mayor in 1939. And you know the election was stolen from them after the polls closed!"

Altho Larson complimented the Business Men's Election committee for the work it has done to prevent vote thievery, he told them:

"From your own experience I know you'll agree with me when I say that honest elections can't be conducted in this county until the alliance between the Democratic political machine and the underworld is broken.

"And before we get honest elections, before we break that unholy alliance, and before taxes can be reduced," he said, "the Democratic machine responsble for all these evils must be smashed."

Sues for $100,000

ANNE SHIRLEY.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 6 (AP).—Screen Actress Anne Shirley has filed suit for $100,000 against the Charles R. Rogers Productions, alleging another woman's legs were substituted for hers in a scene from "The Powers Girl." Anne, who plays the part of a hosiery model in the picture, claims the substitution was made after showing her lifting her skirt and then changing to a second scene which displayed only the legs. Her complaint, filed in Superior court by Attorney Paul P. Schreibman, says: "Defendants used a double for Miss Shirley and said double's legs were of unflattering dimensions, belonging to a former burlesque actress, and were more muscular and half again as large as plaintiff's legs."

LUCAS DISCUSSES ILLINOIS POLITICS WITH ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Sen. Scott Lucas [D., Ill.], preparing to return home for a series of speeches, saw President Roosevelt today and said he discussed how the economic stabilization act would affect farmers and workers and incidentally talked over Illinois politics.

The senator said he did not go to the White House to discuss politics, but that it was "kind of hard to come down in this political season and not have politics come up."

He predicted a Democratic victory in Illinois in the November election and said he had told Mr. Roosevelt he thought Rep. Raymond S. McKeough, Democratic candidate for the senate, would beat Republican Sen. Wayland Brooks.

ELECTION IN '41? WAS IT GENERAL OR JUST JUDICIAL?

Kantor's Place on Ballot May Hinge on Answer.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Law books were being thumbed yesterday in search of a word or two that would determine whether the name of Ted [Bartek Bieda] Kantor would appear on the ballot Nov. 3 as an independent candidate for sheriff. Then Kantor, a radio comedian who refers to himself as Poor Bartek, decided he wanted a new lawyer.

At the moment his candidacy or lack of it seemed to hinge on whether the judicial election of Nov. 4, 1941 was or was not a general election. Pondering the problem was the Cook county electoral board, composed of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, and First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley.

Spearhead of Attack.

Attorney Stephen Love was the spearhead of the attack on Kantor's candidacy. Attorney Ignatz Spitz was its chief defender. The lawyers had been wrangling for two days and 260 witnesses had testified. It had been asserted that Kantor's petition for a place on the ballot contained uncounted thousands of forged names.

During the two days the hearing had been in progress Kantor had been missing. Attorney Spitz said Poor Bartek was in hiding, that his life had been threatened many times since he offered himself as a candidate for the job now held by Sheriff Tom O'Brien, who wants to return to congress.

But after yesterday's session was over, Kantor appeared at Judge Jarecki's chamber. All he wanted was a different attorney.

"It has just come to my attention," said Candidate Kantor, "that my counsel in this case has been retained to represent the duly nominated candidates of the regular Democratic organization in another election contest."

"Conflicting Interests."

"I feel," he continued, "that my counsel may be representing conflicting interests because it is certainly evident that the Democratic organizations are interested in having my petitions thrown out. Since the hour is now late, may I have until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning to substitute attorneys and proceed without delays?"

Judge Jarecki told him he might have until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

After primary elections are held and the parties nominate candidates for the various offices, a newcomer may enter the contest only by filing what is called a nominating petition.

113,000 Names on Petition.

To run for sheriff as an independent candidate, it was explained, the office seeker must have signers totaling not less than 5 per cent and not more than 8 per cent of the number of persons who voted in the county in the last general election. Kantor had 113,000 names on his petition.

It appeared yesterday that Attorney Love's witnesses—if not successfully rebutted—would cost Kantor 50,000 of the names on his petition, whittling it down to 63,000 or fewer.

"I'll be thru in a few minutes," Attorney Love promised the board. "Just a witness now to prove up the number of valid signatures needed."

Joe T. Kotwas, deputy county clerk, was called.

"When was the last general election held in Cook county?" Love asked Kotwas.

"Nov. 4, 1941," Kotwas replied and offered a record to that effect.

"Get Dan Carey up here, quick!" Love then said.

The new witness explained he is not related to the Democratic candidate for sheriff, Peter B. Carey. He said he is attorney for the county clerk and head of the county clerk's election department.

"The last general election was Nov. 5, 1940," Carey said. "The judicial election of last year didn't count."

"I disagree," said Attorney Spitz, who was soon to be fired. "I have here the election board's own excerpts of the law and it is clearly stated that under the Australian ballot law the judicial election is a general election."

Prosecutor Crowley seemed impressed with Spitz's view. Love shouted that Spitz was trying to befuddle the issue and Spitz said the clerk's employes were Love's witnesses, not his.

"If the judicial election governs, Kantor needed from 42,000 to 67,000 signatures," Spitz asserted, "and despite my learned opponent's endeavors there are that many valid ones left."

NEW YORK RACE FOR GOVERNOR SPLITS PURGERS

Head of Group Deserts to Back Bennett.

New York, Oct. 6 [Special].—Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of the Union for Democratic Action, the organization which this year set out to "purge" 29 congressmen, announced today that he would support the candidacy of Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., Democratic nominee for governor. Kingdon contended that President Roosevelt's recent indorsement of Bennett was a "clear call for all liberals and New Dealers to work for his election."

Kingdon's action brought a quick repudiation several hours later from the board of directors of his organization, who unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing Dean Alfange, American Labor party nominee, and requesting Kingdon to take a "leave of absence" from the union for the duration of the campaign. Kingdon acquiesced to the request and dissociated himself from the union for the campaign.

Alvin Johnson Supports Dewey.

Earlier in the day Dr. Alvin Johnson, director of the New School for Social Research, and like Kingdon, a Democrat, issued a statement in which he declared himself "compelled" in this campaign to support Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for governor.

Dr. Johnson characterized Dewey as a "man of initiative and independent judgment" who, if elected, would be able to give the state a highly efficient administration as well as place the entire facilities of New York behind the war effort.

Dewey supporters were further gratified when there was a very light first day registration in the strongly Democratic city, the 168,092 total being 70,456 less than the first day four years ago. In the 1938 election Dewey as the Republican nominee lost to Gov. Lehman by only 64,000 votes, and Republicans expected he would benefit this year by a lower New York City registration.

Alfange Hits at Bennett.

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's indorsement of Alfange may have been an indirect boost for Dewey. At any rate the mayor's move was followed by a decision by Alfange to strike out at Bennett and the Democrats in a speech tomorrow in Brooklyn's St. George hotel, scene of the Democratic state convention that booed President Roosevelt and his choice for the Democratic nomination, Sen. James Mead.

Kingdon, who was one of the "inner circle" of American Labor party leaders who picked Alfange for the labor party nomination at the party's state convention, declared that he had carefully investigated Bennett's record and found that it was "one of wholehearted support of the President's conduct of total war and of complete loyalty to the program of social progress which the Democratic party has developed in the state under Governors Smith, Roosevelt, and Lehman."

GIFTS TO COMMUNITY FUND RISE; WAR AID DRIVES SEEN FACTOR

Chicago Community fund contributions received to date have shown an increase over gifts made last year in the same period, it was reported yesterday by Charles Y. Freeman, general chairman. He declared war relief drives, instead of hampering the Community fund, have developed in the people of Chicago a "giving momentum" which is reflected in added generosity to the fund.

Most of the money received to date, Freeman said, came from the Sponsors division headed by Bryan S. Reid. The total stands at $5,000,000, he announced. The fund's original quota was $3,750,000.

20 NEW SIRENS RECEIVE NIGHT TEST TOMORROW

You'll hear plenty of sirens screaming tomorrow night, but if it's at 6:30 p. m. it won't be a black-out. Twenty new air raid sirens will be tested then, and there will be 1,200 observers spotted around town to determine whether the devices can be heard at all points.

Ralph H. Burke, deputy coördinator of civilian defense, said the test black-out Aug. 12 revealed weakness in the warning system.

TRIBUNE TAUGHT WEST TO EXPECT PICTORIAL NEWS

Pioneered in Supplanting Old Wood Cuts.

[This is the fourth article of a series describing The Tribune's epochal achievements in newspaper production and the graphic arts in the 71 years since its plant was destroyed in the great fire of 1871, whose anniversary is being observed this week.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Chicago and the central west learned by reading THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the 1880s and '90s a newspaper could be something more than an expanse of gray type.

Thru this newspaper's pioneering and enterprise in the field of news illustrations, the public came to expect more than mere word pictures of events. With establishment of its own photoengraving room in 1887, THE TRIBUNE took the frst steps toward flexibility in news pictures.

These beginnings, which have grown into the swift and graphic engraving processes of today, were described in detail in yesterday's article. It is interesting, therefore, to glimpse the stiff and limited illustrations that came before zinc etchings and half tone engravings.

News Pictures Were Rare.

Newspaper pictures were rare in Chicago and the central west before THE TRIBUNE'S own etching room opened on Christmas day, 1887. Those used were chiefly woodcuts and chalk plate engravings and, such as they were, they came from commercial plants.

Woodcuts, forerunners of chalk plates, were used by the McKinzie Engraving company, 53 West Washington street, being gouged out to order—with plenty of time required for delivery.

Imitation woodcut.

The principle of wood engraving is simple enough, tho its execution demands a practiced hand and an eye for detail. The drawing to be reproduced is sketched lightly on a block of Turkish boxwood, which is exactly as thick as a line of type is high.

The parts of the drawing that are not to show in the completed picture—those that will appear simply as white space—are gouged out with a series of cutting tools. For newspaper use, the carved block was placed into the page form with the type, the chase was locked up, and the paper went to press.

Wood Failed to Stand Up.

Not only was it impossible to reproduce fine detail in the broad lines of a woodcut, but the wood could not stand up under the punishment it had to take on the presses. And woodcut production took too much time.

Chalk engraving was a definite improvement. Some years before the etching plant was installed, THE TRIBUNE employed its first artist, Harold R. Heaton, who became a favorite of TRIBUNE readers, known to them as "HRH", the initials he signed to his work. Heaton appeared at the office for assignments, then did his work at home. This is the process:

A sheet of highly polished steel is covered to a depth of 1-16 inch with a plaster of paris composition, which is allowed to harden. The picture then is sketched on the surface of the chalk.

Imitation chalk plate.

With fine pointed tools, the artist cuts thru the chalk to the steel plate below. The lines cut thru to the steel are the ones that will show in the finished picture.

When the cutting is completed, the plate goes to the stereotypers, who pour hot metals into the depressions cut into the chalk. When this has hardened, a stereotype plate has been produced and this is locked into the page form. It will withstand the beating it is to take on the press, its lines are finer, and it is in every way superior to the woodcut.

Newspapers found, however, the chalk process required just as much skill as did wood engraving and the time element still was present. Thus the zinc etchings of artists were of great importance because they shortened the time between the original sketch and publication.

Just as it had pioneered in chalk plates, so did THE TRIBUNE blaze the way with production of its own zinc etchings. This process, described yesterday, made it possible to reproduce the artist's work just as he put it on paper with pen and ink. It permitted much more fine detail to show in the finished work.

Remained a Staff Artist.

Heaton remained as a staff artist and even supplemented the work of the etching plant in the two years that followed. In TRIBUNE files are examples of his chalk plates printed both in 1888 and 1889. To veteran artists, chalk plates are easily distinguishable because of their peculiar line structure.

The line drawings reproduced by those first etchers were, of course, just what the name implies. The same thing is being done today, and the method is little different—merely faster and easier. For an example of line drawing reproductions by the etching process, see any comic strip in this morning's TRIBUNE.

Progress continued, and in 1897 THE TRIBUNE printed its first half tone cut—the reproduction of an actual photograph. The only difference between a line etching and a half tone is a screen that breaks up the picture into millions of tiny dots is inserted into the engraver's camera between the film negative and the picture being photographed.

Sample half tone.

This allows blacks and whites to shade into grays—half tones. The actual etching of the zinc printing plate has been described previously.

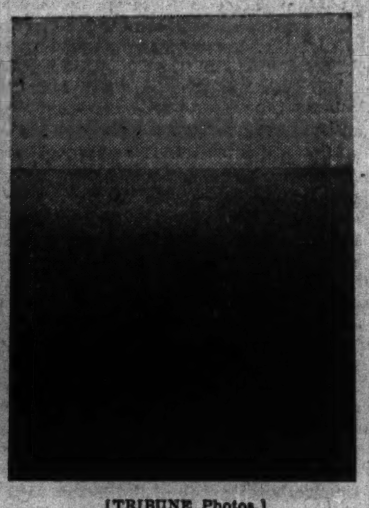
As has happened in many other fields in which THE TRIBUNE pioneered, the other Chicago newspapers of the 1890s and 1900s followed it in illustrating news events, with the result the journals of the central west soon were as well, if not better, illustrated than those of the east.

[The story of The Tribune's world leadership in newspaper color printing will be told in a subsequent issue of the Graphic magazine in The Sunday Tribune. It will be a story of trail blazing enterprise along a course other newspapers had abandoned as too difficult and too costly. The article will be illustrated by striking examples of the color art as developed by The Tribune.]

How Dots Are Made Into Pictures

(Story in adjoining column.)

At top is enlargement of half tone screen dots to illustrate how small blacks dots create highlights in photographic reproductions and small white dots on black field give darker tones. The photograph is that of Lana Turner, actress. At bottom are the same picture with the dots their normal size, and a picture of the glass "screen" thru which the picture was photographed by the engraver.



[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Shades of gray reproduced in half tone engraving to show how the size of the dots controls the lightness or darkness of the picture.

WALLACE WOULD CURB POST-WAR RUBBER MAKING

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Vice President Henry A. Wallace warned today that adoption of a high tariff on natural rubber after the war to protect the synthetic rubber industry might lead "within a few years to World War No. 3."

His warning was contained in a statement of his views about rubber written upon the invitation of the New York Daily News. It will appear in the paper's columns tomorrow.

Need Synthetics Now.

Declaring that as part of our drive for victory in the war, we must get rubber wherever we can and as fast as we can, regardless of the cost," Vice President Wallace said:

"Obviously, the main supply of new rubber during the war will have to be synthetic."

Chemists have informed him that the cost of producing synthetic rubber would be greatly reduced when quantity production gets under way, he said, adding:

"Any commodity which can be produced more efficiently and more cheaply in this country than elsewhere will certainly be produced here. If synthetic rubber can be produced and sold for less than the cost of natural rubber, there will be no need for a rubber tariff—which is the real point at issue.

Predicts Lower Costs.

"However, most people do not realize the extent to which the cost of producing natural rubber can be reduced as a result of modern methods of production and the use of high-yielding strains of rubber trees. It seems almost certain that under normal conditions natural rubber can be laid down in New York for less than 10 cents a pound, and possibly as low as 5 cents a pound."

LOSES PURSE, SO CAN'T RIDE.

Mrs. Edris Smith, 22 years old, 6025 Dorchester avenue, told police that she lost her purse Sunday while riding a bicycle, and now she can't ride the bicycle. Besides $30 and her glasses, the key to her bicycle lock was in the purse, she said.

BUYS A MANSION TO WAIT IN—FOR FILMS TO BECKON

Beverly Hills, Cal., Oct. 6 [Special].—Mimi Forsaythe, who says she was born in Chicago and has lived in New York, Philadelphia, Pa., and Switzerland between stops at fashionable finishing schools, has acquired a 40 room mansion on Sunset boulevard and is ready to become a movie star—if the movies are ready.

She languidly admitted her availability as star material today in an interview in the drawing room of her showplace home, which used to belong to Richard Barthelmess. But she said she is interested only if she is starred in her first film. She has oodles of money and doesn't have to accept just any old offer, she declared.

She has used her money not only to purchase and staff the home, but also to hire a press agent. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 117 pounds, and has blonde hair and green eyes.

49,752 CIVILIANS KILLED BY YEAR'S WAR IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Civilian deaths from war causes totaled 49,752 in England and Wales during the year ended March 31, the health ministry reported today. The victims died as a result of bombings, resultant fires, building collapses and the like.

Apart from these deaths, the report showed the death rate was 11.7 per one thousand, a point below the 1940 figure and only two-tenths of a point above 1939. The nation, tho managing with fewer doctors and dentists, is maintaining its "stubborn good health," Minister of Health Ernest Brown said.

Deaths from all causes in England and Wales in the year were 535,180 out of an estimated population of 41,460,000, or 12.9 per thousand, compared with 14.3 in 1940, 12.9 in 1939, 12.6 in 1938, and 13.3 in 1931. Deaths from venereal diseases were 40 per cent over 1940.

U. S. VESSEL SUNK BY U-BOAT AFTER RUNNING BATTLE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—The navy today announced a submarine sank an American freighter last month off the northern coast of South America after a running gun battle.

Seventeen crew members were killed, 23 are missing, and 22 were rescued.

The attack brought to 484 the number of vessels sunk in the western Atlantic area since Pearl harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation by the Associated Press. The sinkings have cost the lives of 3,211 men, 1,856 are missing, and 14,571 have been rescued.

Survivors said the U-boat opened fire with deck guns while half a mile away and kept the freighter under constant attack despite return fire from navy gunners.

MYSTERY OF JAP 10 DAY RETREAT IN GUINEA GROWS

Aussies Near Mountain Pass in Drive.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia. Oct 7 [Wednesday] —(AP).—The allies' coördinated land and air offensive against the Japanese in New Guinea continues in full course and still without major opposition, the southwest Pacific command announced today.

Australian jungle troops pressed on from Kagi, only four miles from the narrow pass leading thru the Owen Stanley mountains, the communique said, picking up still more territory in their unimpeded advance toward the enemy's main positions on New Guinea.

Allied bombers, at the same time, returned to the attack on Buin and Buka harbors in the northern Solomon Islands. Still other air units visited Ceram, far to the west between New Guinea and Celebes in the Dutch East Indies.

Mystery in Retreat.

[Gen. MacArthur was on the scene giving personal attention to operations in New Guinea, it became known yesterday. A delayed dispatch from "somewhere in New Guinea" disclosed MacArthur was on the island Oct. 3, when he presented a silver star award to Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, who fought his way out of a New Guinea jungle after being lost 43 days when forced to bail out of an army plane.]

There were indications that the enemy might be revising his whole plan of campaign in southeastern New Guinea, perhaps even abandoning his closest foothold to Australia.

The mystery of the Japanese overland retreat, now in its tenth day, was heightened by the presence of a Japanese convoy which American bombers caught Monday as it sped northward from Buna. It was not clear whether this convoy was withdrawing forces from Buna or had attempted to land reënforcements there.

Australian dispatches said that Aussie forces had clambered up the last grades in the Owen Stanley to the 6,000 foot high gap thru the mountains. They thus had negotiated a tortuous, 1,000 foot climb over a jungle trail which presented one of the greatest obstacles between them and Buna.

May Stand at Kokoda.

There was a possibility that the Japanese might make a stand at Kokoda, 50 miles inland from Buna. But the speed of their headlong flight suggested they might be repeating their performance at Milne bay, south of Buna, from where they withdrew an invasion force in the face of great allied odds.

Monday's attack on the convoy, which consisted of two destroyers and a large transport, was but one phase of allied aerial operations in which the Japanese were pounded all the way from Rabaul, New Britain, in the north to Buna.

Two formations of Billy Mitchell medium bombers attacked the Japanese ships, but the pilots did not observe the results. Three protecting Japanese Zeros were shot down and one of the bombers was lost.

One of the strongest forces of Flying Fortresses ever to take the air was sent against Rabaul, but weather prevented some from reaching the target. Those that made it scattered bombs across runways and dispersal areas of the airdrome there. One Fortress failed to return.

a number of enemy bivouacs from which the Japs had moved on.

"The Japs left their camps fairly tidy," Buckler said. "There were a few cans, some bits of cellophane, and a little rice scattered around. The Japs had buried their dead, instead of burning them, and each grave was marked with a stake bearing Japanese ideograms."

A number of packs, consisting of two sticks which extended from the thigh to the shoulders with a waist high platform, also were discovered. Some of the packs held moldy rice. Buckler also found a silk Japanese flag.

The Japs had discarded anti-malaria equipment, consisting of mosquito net, gloves, citronella cream, and smoke sticks, in an attempt to reduce the weight of their equipment.

From a high point above the trail, Buckler watched Jap reënforcements going up the line. Some wore blue caps, others khaki.

Before moving on, the Australians loaded their haversacks with yams from native gardens. Three days later when the yams were gone they found another garden, but a pig had been there before them and had rooted up the sweet potatoes. The hungry troops made a soup by boiling the potato tops and then eating what was left.

ROME REPORTS BRITISH ATTACK IN CENTER OF EGYPTIAN FRONT

ROME, Oct. 6 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian high command said today that British "reconnaissance forces" attacked in the central sector of the Alamein front in the Egyptian desert yesterday and were repulsed with heavy losses, including many prisoners left in axis hands. The Italians reported raids on two British airdromes.

FAVOR ELECTRIC METER READINGS EVERY 2 MONTHS

The Commonwealth Edison company has decided to apply to the Illinois Commerce Commission for permission to read Chicago residential electric meters once each two months instead of each month, Charles Y. Freeman, company chairman, announced yesterday.

Bills would continue to be rendered monthly, however, so household budgets would not be upset. The amount billed in the odd months would be "averaged," with automatic correction by actual readings for succeeding months.

Monthly meter readings would continue for large commercial and industrial users of electricity.

The object of the change is conservation of man power in wartime. The company already is short about 50 or 60 meter readers, and increased difficulty is expected in obtaining competent, trustworthy readers as demands of the armed services and war plants increase.

CANADA CABINET SHAKEUP PUTS IN 3 FROM QUEBEC

OTTAWA, Oct. 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King tonight announced a large-scale cabinet reorganization, bringing three Quebec representatives into the government and sending War Services Minister Joseph T. Thorson to the presidency of the Exchequer court of Canada. The following will be sworn into the cabinet tomorrow noon:

Maj. Gen. L. R. LaFleche associate deputy minister of national war services; Ernest Bertrand, Liberal member of parliament for Montreal-Laurier, as minister of fisheries, and Alphonse Fournier, Liberal member for Hull, as minister of public works.

Fisheries Minister J. E. Michaud becomes minister of transport. King said the cabinet changes restore to Quebec the traditional equality that province always enjoys with Ontario in cabinet representation.

TEN NORWEGIAN PATRIOTS SLAIN BY NAZI RIFLEMEN

Accused of Attempting to Wreck Food Factories.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Nazi firing squads executed 10 persons in Trondheim and vicinity tonight as German authorities enforced martial law along the Norwegian coast in an effort to stamp out a spirit of rebellion which appeared to be spreading in the Scandinavian countries, radio reports from Norway said.

Map locates trouble spots of Nazis.

The executions took place less than 24 hours after the Germans had proclaimed a state of emergency in a 400 mile strip of territory along the sea, and just a few hours after Josef Terboven, Nazi commissioner, had arrived in Trondheim to take personal charge of energetic measures to suppress sabotage.

Victims Described as Patriots.

The 10 persons executed, it was reported here, were accused of "endeavoring to sabotage food producing factories."

The executions followed wholesale arrests. One report said 700 Norwegians had been rounded up in Trondheim alone in the last few days.

The men who faced the firing squads were described in Norwegian quarters in London as being patriots of Trondheim, Roros, and Orkanger. Among them were a bank director, an editor, two lawyers, a civil engineer, and a building contractor.

Terboven, commanded by Berlin to suppress the mutinous spirit of the Norwegians in the strategic coastal region by force of arms, was accompanied by the chief of German police in Oslo, Rediess.

The police chief announced by radio that the property of the men executed had been confiscated. He indicated also that more than sabotage of food supplies was involved, and implied hostile action had been directed against German armed forces.

Time for Cleanup, Radio Says.

The Stockholm radio reported that one of the immediate reasons for imposition of the state of emergency was the discovery of preparations to damage the Trondheim-Mosjoen railway.

"It is time to make a complete cleanup of all dangerous elements," said the German controled Oslo radio. "While the German army is fighting hand-to-hand battles its enemies, who are also ours, are using agents to create disorder in the country."

Norwegian authorities here said they had been informed that numerous attempts had been made to wreck installations of the Trondheim naval base where the German battleship Tirpitz and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen have been docked.

Nazis Order a Curfew.

The German answer was the proclamation of a state of emergency along the coast from Trondheim to Bodo. Public buildings, restaurants, and theaters were closed, a curfew from 8 p. m. to 5 a. m. was imposed, and public assemblies were forbidden.

Denmark, reported here to have spurned a German suggestion to become a "model state" in a Nazified Europe, was gravely concerned for her future independence.

One Danish source here said Adolf Hitler has demanded control of the Danish police force and key posts in the ministry of justice.

Thruout the Scandinavian lands apprehension grew that Hitler was about to proclaim the creation of "Great Germany," to include Denmark, Norway, and Holland.

Swedish sources protested against more insistent German demands for more food and wood.

Nazis Seek Dutch Troops.

While resentment against Nazi rule smoldered in the two Scandinavian states Holland heard that she would be expected to supply troops raised by conscription to fight beside the Germans against Russia.

The Netherlands news agency, Aneta, quoted an article in Reichsmarshal Goering's Essener National Zeitung as follows:

"The national socialist government will, on the principle of conscription, call up men capable of bearing arms. . . . For people who want to live there is no other choice but to take full part in the war. Nevermore will Holland live by selling products made by others. . . ."

ASSERTS TAXES TO TAKE THIRD OF U. S. INCOME

George Outlines Bill on Senate Floor.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Amid warnings that one-third of the nation's income will be absorbed by taxes next year, the senate today began debate on the bill providing additional levies of 8.8 billion dollars.

Quick approval was given tentatively to noncontroversial features of the new revenue bill, including the new normal and surtax rates on individuals, but action was delayed on the proposed 5 per cent victory tax, corporation taxes, the freezing of social security levies at 1 per cent, and the taxing of future issues of state and local obligations as controversies loomed on these provisions of the bill.

[Details of how the senate's tax plan affects corporations are on page 33.]

George Opens Debate.

Debate on the measure was opened by Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the finance committee, who explained the measure as reported by the committee and defended it.

George said that under the pending bill, which is estimated by congressional experts to produce 8.8 billion dollars in new levies, the American public will bear taxes next year totaling 36 billion 537 million dollars, or about one-third of the estimated national income of 110 billions by the end of this year.

Of this total tax burden, approximately 26 billion 337 million dollars would represent federal taxes, and another 10 billion 200 million would be in state and local levies, George said.

Ignores New Morgenthau Demand.

The senator in his discussion of the bill ignored Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's claim yesterday that the pending bill, combined with existing taxes, would yield 24 billions instead of 26 billions in revenues and that another 6 billion in new taxes must be imposed as soon as the current bill is enacted.

But George defended the victory tax against criticism by the treasury and sales tax advocates, and also struck at Morgenthau's periodic remarks about the delay in adopting the pending measure.

"The reason for the length of time consumed in the preparation of this measure [congress has been working on it since March 3] was due in large measure to a sincere effort to prevent the drastic increases from causing severe inequities and unduly interfering with our economy," the Georgian said.

Consider State Taxes.

"In considering the burden which we are imposing under this bill," George continued, "we must give some consideration to the income tax burden levied in the several states. Under this bill and existing law we will collect an estimated revenue of $22,054,600,000 from corporate and individual income and excess profits taxes. Of this amount, $10,790,300,000 will come from corporations and $11,264,300,000 will come from individuals. Thus, corporations will pay 48.9 per cent of the income tax and individuals 51.1 per cent.

"We had to exercise considerable care in not imposing such a severe rate on corporations as to disrupt the national economy of the country."

He defended the victory tax as the better choice between it and a gross sales tax, either one of which must be enacted to provide sufficient revenues. He completely ignored the treasury's "spending tax" proposal.

The victory tax of 5 per cent would be imposed on all income above $12 a week or $624 a year, with the tax deducted at the source from salaries and wages. It provides for postwar credits, or refunds to the extent of 25 per cent of the tax or $500, whichever is less, in the case of single persons; 40 per cent of the tax, or $1,000, whichever is less, for married persons, and 2 per cent of the tax, or $100, whichever is less, for dependents.

George estimated that the tax would yield 3 billion 600 million dollars in annual revenues, of which 1 billion 100 million dollars would be returnable after the war. The tax would be imposed on an estimated 46 million persons, adding 18½ million persons to the federal tax rolls.

The senate delayed action in approving the victory tax, however, when Sen. Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.] served notice that he will offer an amendment to provide an exemption of $100 a month from the tax, with 5 per cent imposed on income between $100 and $200 a month, and 10 per cent on the remainder. All of the tax would be returnable after the war under his plan.

Seeks Higher Corporate Levies.

The senate also delayed action on corporate levies when Sen. Robert M. La Follette [P., Wis.] announced that he wished to offer amendments, one of which it was understood would raise the surtax rate on corporation surtax net income above $50,000 to 26 per cent instead of the house proposed rate of 21 per cent and the senate committee's recommendation of a 16 per cent rate.

The President's action to limit salaries to $25,000 after taxes was referred to indirectly when Sen. Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] inquired whether there was such a provision in the pending bill. George replied that there was not.

"But," said George, "as will be seen from a study of tax tables there will be relatively few people with $25,000 net income after taxes. They would have to have more than $50,000 gross to have a net income of $25,000."

Normal Rates Raised.

In addition to the victory tax, the senate bill would affect individuals by raising normal and surtax rates on individual incomes. The senate committee adopted house proposals on this. The normal tax would be raised from 4 to 6 per cent, and surtaxes start at 13 per cent on the first $2,000 of the surtax net income [net income less personal exemptions] instead of 6 per cent at present, and rise to 82 per cent on income over 5 million dollars.

The bill would reduce exemptions for married persons from $1,500 to $1,200, and for single persons from $750 to $500, the same as the house. But where the house left the exemption for dependents at $400 the senate bill would cut this to $300.

The senate bill would also allow deductions for medical expenses by the amount that these deductions exceed 5 per cent of net income computed without the deduction. The maximum deduction would be $2,500 for the head of a family, and $1,250 for others.

The senate bill would also freeze social security taxes at 1 per cent instead of allowing them to rise to 2 per cent on Jan. 1, 1943.

The senate bill also provides for increased excise taxes on liquors, wines, cigars, cigarets, telephone and telegraph service, transportation, wagering, and other items.

PRODUCTION DECLINES.

Gold production in America has slumped since the United States entered the war, according to the federal reserve system. Production in 1942 has been approximately 10 million dollars a month, while in 1941 it varied between 14 and 20 millions a month. The figures are based on the government valuation of $35 an ounce.

Gold production in the United States, including the Philippines and Alaska, reached an all time high of $210,109,000 in 1940, federal reserve statistics show. This compared with a world production, except for Soviet Russia, of $1,279,455,000 in 1940. United States production dropped to $208,443,000 and world production increased to $1,287,720,000 in 1941. The United States has ranked second only to South Africa as a gold producing nation since 1933.

The minerals yearbook for 1940, issued by the interior department, lists 9,569 mines in the United States, exclusive of the Philippines and Puerto Rico, as producers of gold and silver. The year book said 56,200 men were employed in gold and silver mining in 1940.

OIL DISTRIBUTORS ASK F.D.R. TO EASE RATIONING ORDER

Midwest distributors appealed to President Roosevelt yesterday for modification of the fuel oil rationing order, terming a 33⅓ per cent curtailment unnecessary in this area and a threat to the nation's war effort.

Similar appeals were made in telegrams to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, and Harold L. Ickes, federal petroleum coördinator, sent by Frank E. Spencer of Chicago, president of the Burning Oil Distributors' association.

"Needless hardship" will result if consumption is restricted too severely in the midwest, where there is sufficient oil for all needs, to meet the deficiency in the Atlantic coast area caused by tanker losses, Spencer said.

Urges Voluntary Program.

The association pleaded for a chance to effect fuel oil conservation on a voluntary basis, and, if that fails, asked a less drastic rationing program.

"The latest authentic fuel oil supply and demand figures for district 2 [15 midwest states, including several which produce oil] clearly prove the proposed rationing plan will hinder materially, rather than help, the war program," Spencer said in one telegram.

He referred, he explained, to statistics compiled at a recent meeting of refinery economists in Tulsa, Okla., who computed prospective supplies next March 31 on the bases of a 15 per cent rationing plan then under discussion, and after taking into consideration the millions of barrels of oil being shipped to the east.

Prospective Supplies Greater.

These figures showed prospective supplies March 31 would exceed the current supplies of the two principle grades of fuel oil in district 2.

The amount of light fuel oil consumed largely in home heating plants was estimated at 8,400,000 barrels, compared with 7,500,000 barrels on Aug. 31. Prospective stocks of heavy industrial oils were placed at 5,675,000 barrels on March 31, 1943, against 5 million barrels at the end of August.

All fuel oil sales since Oct. 1 have been made subject to consideration later when the machinery of rationing is set up, with deductions made from rationing coupons when they are available.

Another Form Later

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Application blanks for fuel oil rationing, showing the questions householders will have to answer in applying to their local rationing boards, were made public today by the Office of Price Administration.

The blanks will be available about Oct. 15 to consumers and can be obtained from local fuel oil dealers or local rationing boards, officials said. The application form released today is for "private dwellings," which are defined as buildings occupied by three or fewer families and having 70 per cent or more of the floor space devoted to residential use.

Another form of application will be announced later for boarding and rooming houses in which four or more rooms are rented.

As previously announced by OPA, fuel oil rationing in 30 states is expected to cut average consumption one-third below normal usage. OPA officials estimate that the actual cut below last year will be somewhat less than one-third—about 26 per cent—because last winter was milder than normal. The ration allotment is supposed to make possible a temperature of approximately 65 degrees in rooms devoted to living quarters.

When rations have been allotted and ration books issued, consumers will be required to turn over to dealers regular ration coupons to replace the coupon notes.

Applications may be made by the owner of a dwelling or the tenant using the oil furnace.

AEF LEARNS HOW TO MEET ATTACK BY INFILTRATION

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND [By Airmail].—On a tree dotted hillside, similar to the terrain of the artillery training grounds at Fort Sill, Okla., a battery of 155 mm. [6 inch] howitzers was demonstrating how to repel an infiltration attack from the flanks and rear.

At the signal of attack, a scout hidden far out in the tall grass fired his carbine and began falling back. Another scout, tucked into a foxhole, passed on the signal, and from a clump of bushes which concealed one of the guns, cannoneers carrying carbines burst into the open, weaving and dodging.

One zigzagged forward, while the others covered his advance. He flattened out on the ground, and another moved forward until a line was established with the foxhole rifleman.

Sham Battle Against Tanks.

A moment later an anti-tank gun crew went into action on the flank, showing how they would operate if tanks broke thru toward the battery. The trail of the 37 mm. gun was in a circular ditch with a 360 degree swing, so that the crew, well protected in deep slit trenches, could quickly shift its muzzle in any direction.

Near every man's hand lay his carbine. When the gun crew scored a "hit" on a tank every cannoneer grabbed his carbine and blazed away, picking off the "enemy" tank crewmen as they tumbled from the tanks.

Still another howitzer crew took up the demonstration, presupposing that the tanks were right on top of the gun. From the same type of slit trenches, the gunners fired the howitzer until its range no longer was useful, then began banging away with carbines. As the "tanks" advanced, the men hurled hand grenades and bottles filled with gasoline against the sides of the tanks.

Become Gunners of All Trades.

"This is modern warfare," said a colonel. "All its experience shows that every gun battery must be prepared to defend itself at close quarters from enemy attacks infiltrating far behind the so-called front lines. Every cannoneer must be an expert with the carbine, too."

He said this was being emphasized in the Fort Sill artillery school. He also said he believed that the carbine or the 1903 Springfield rifle was superior to any revolver or pistol for protection, adding:

"The scores the men have made on pistol ranges certainly indicate it."

The Americans found British targets far different than their own. The British target is shaped like a human head, bobs up and down, and has a much smaller area for recording hits.

English Barracks Good.

But if their targets were more difficult, the British barracks which were turned over to the American were superior to anything expected. Each has hot and cold running water and central heating, while the officers' have a stove for each room.

During this initial training period on the fundamentals of artillery tactics, everything is being done to make the American canonneer happy in his new environment. In two weeks, free trains had taken every man of this large organization on an overnight trip to London or a seacoast resort.

In the army canteens each week the soldiers may buy six packages of American cigarets, 2 bars of candy, half a bar of soap, several cans of American beer, peanuts, gum, and shoe polish. All the soldiers have Red Cross bags, which contain writing paper, cards, a sewing kit, gum, pencils, and shoe laces.

Every troop unit now has its "A" kit. This means complete equipment for baseball, volleyball, football, soccer, or boxing. The "B" kits also are arriving. They contain a radio and a phonograph attachment.

However, the soldiers' favorite recreation is visiting the nearest town. Transportation is the largest problem. Once the pubs close at 10 p. m., the soldier's quickly fill the available buses, so that the rest have to hitch hike back to camp.

"They're good men," said the camp's dental officer, Capt. Arthur Glick, 8730 South Throop street. "Their spirit is good and the people back home might be glad to know that, in comparison with the local civilian population, their teeth are in excellent shape."

TWO 'GNAT' BOATS GET TEST FOR SUB CHASER JOB; OFFICIALS WATCH

Miami, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP).—Two pint sized craft offered to the navy by the small boat industry for submarine chaser duty bounded gaily thru their paces off Miami Beach today while officials watched. The "gnat" boats dropped depth charges which tossed geysers that dwarfted them, and they rattled away at a target with a machine gun.

Rear Adm. David M. Le Breton, chief of the navy's board of inspection and survey, saw the tests, but would not comment.

Rep. Frank W. Boykin [D., Ala.] was enthusiastic and favored a radioed order right from the naval reviewing vessel for small boat yards to go into production immediately.

Senators James M. Mead [D., N. Y.] and C. O. Andrews [D., Fla.] declared themselves impressed with the craft's possibilities.

OPEN DRIVES ON ALL FRONTS NOW, WILLKIE INSISTS

Impatient Over Small Aid to Allies.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Wendell L. Willkie vigorously demanded today an "all-out offensive everywhere by all the united nations," more United States arms for China and Russia, and immediate "ironclad guarantees" against any western imperialism in Asia.

In a statement he said, "We believe this war must mean an end to the empire of nations over other nations" and called for "firm timetables" whereby colonial peoples "can work out and train governments of their own choosing," and "ironclad guarantees that they shall not slip back into colonial status."

His statement, issued after his fourth conversation with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, was in the same unvarnished style as the one he gave in Moscow appealing for a second front "at the earliest possible moment."

The one today, however, was broader and reflected impatience over the rate of delivery of material to China and Russia, and what he called the lack of clearly-defined guarantees of postwar independence and democracy for the peoples of Asia.

Makes a Broadcast.

Willkie followed up his statement by broadcasting extemporaneously over a national hookup to the Chinese people. "Mankind is on the march," he said. "The old colonial days are past."

The volunteer fact finding emissary said he expected "to dedicate the rest of my life urging that the world be constructed after the war on a basis where all men can be free and with government of their own choosing."

"The time has come for an all-out armed offensive everywhere by all the united nations," said President Roosevelt's representative in the forcal statement. "We are ready to deliver some knockout punches if I can believe what I have seen."

Four Common Demands.

Willkie pointed out that his travels have covered 13 "kingdoms, soviets, republics, mandated areas, colonies, and dependencies" and that he had found four things common to all of them:

"First, they want the united nations to win the war.

"Second, they want the united nations to get on the offensive now.

"Third, they all want a chance at the end of the war to live in liberty and independence.

"Fourth, they all doubt in varying degrees the readiness of the leading democracies of the world to stand up and be counted upon for the freedom of others after the war is over. This doubt kills their enthusiastic participation on our side."

Willkie emphasized that defense cannot win, either in the military or political phases of what he called a war not only of task forces, but also of "men's minds."

See Few U. S. Arms.

His statement reverted several times to what he called the urgently needed stimulation of "the active, aggressive, offensive spirit of nearly three-fourths of the people of the world" by assurances of what victory and the years after will mean to them.

"We have not done this," he said, "and, at present we are not doing this. I think we've got to pin this idea in our hats and look at it often."

Willkie remarked "in the United States we have talked a lot to the world about our production figures, but some allies have seen very little of our actual arms. It is only natural for some of them to wonder how much longer they will have to eat, like children, at the second table."

"Must End Empires."

Willkie then turned to the psychological factor of what the future holds.

"The truth is that we as a nation have not made up our minds as to what kind of a world we want to speak for when victory comes," he contended. "Especially here in Asia, the common people feel that we've asked them to join us for no better reason than that Japanese rule would be worse than western imperialism.

"Even the name of the Atlantic charter disturbs thoughtful men and women. But do all those who signed it, these people ask, agree that it applies to the Pacific? We must answer this question. We believe this war must mean an end to the empire of nations over other nations."

"Must Do It Now."

Referring to his demand for assurances to colonial peoples, Willkie said:

"Some say these subjects should be hushed until victory is won. Exactly the reverse is true. Sincere efforts to find progressive solutions now will bring strength to our cause.

"Remember that opponents of social change always urge delay because of some present crisis. After the war, changes may be too little and too late. We must develop between the nations trade and trade routes strong enough to give all people the same vested interest in peace which we in America have had.

"In the United States we are being asked to give up temporarily our individual freedom and economic liberty in order to crush the axis. We must recover this freedom and this liberty after the war. The way to make certain that we do recover our traditional American way of life with a rising standard of living for all is to create a world in which all men everywhere can be free."

Still constantly on the go, altho he went to bed after 1 a. m. Tuesday, Willkie was up early for another crowded schedule.

F. D. R. Repudiates Willkie's Clamor for Second Front

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Without mincing words President Roosevelt today repudiated the pleas of Wendell Willkie, his Republican opponent in 1940, for the immediate opening of second fronts in Europe and Asia.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that he had not read newspaper stories on Willkie's pleas because such stories were purely speculative and not worth reading. He said he had seen the headlines and had read no further.

The President's tone clearly indicated he feels Willkie has been talking out of turn. His words made it definite that Willkie has been talking without presidential authorization, altho Mr. Roosevelt gave Willkie permission to make the trip and charged him with delivery of messages to leaders of the united nations Willkie visited.

Repudiation Is Blunt.

The chief executive's repudiation of Willkie was far more blunt than that given him by Winston Churchill, British prime minister. After Willkie voiced a plea for the opening of a second front in Moscow, Churchill, not politicians, told parliament that military men should make the decision as to when and where the second front will be launched.

The prime minister's remarks were interpreted here as directed at Willkie. Members of congress publicly denounced Willkie's call for an immediate second front. High army and navy officials privately expressed their anger at what they termed his interference in military matters. The semi-official Army and Navy Journal characterized him as ignorant of the problems of launching a second front.

Willkie Keeps Up Plea.

Undaunted by the criticism, Willkie made a plea for the opening of a second front in Asia last Saturday on his arrival at Chungking, China, where he called on Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese generalissimo. He followed this call today with a second plea for an "all-out armed offensive everywhere by all the united nations." He called for more arms for China and Russia.

At his press conference Mr. Roosevelt expressed hope that China might be given more help in her war against Japan, but would not discuss any developments looking toward increases of aid. He said he wouldn't tell these plans if he could.

In connection with the second front issue raised by Willkie, Mr. Roosevelt said he had not read week-end dispatches from Russia in which Premier Josef Stalin also called for the establishment of a second front. Willkie made his original plea after a conference with Stalin. It was assumed here that he and Stalin had planned a campaign looking toward stirring up united nations' sentiment for immediate action on a second front.

Silent on Standley Plans.

Mr. Roosevelt would not discuss the plans of Adm. William H. Standley, ambassador to Russia, to return to the United States other than to say his envoy is coming home to report and will then return to his post. It is assumed Standley will discuss the second front problem from the Russian point of view, as he conferred with Stalin at length during the day.

The President disclosed that Laurence A. Steinhardt, American ambassador to Turkey, is also coming home to report. The Nazis have long been wooing Turkey. At the same time, the allies have been endeavoring to keep that country out of an axis alliance.

U. S. AND BRITAIN SIGN NEW PACT ON AID TO RUSSIA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The United States, Great Britain, and Russia signed a protocol today covering delivery of military equipment, munitions, and raw materials to the Soviet Union by Britain and the United States.

The protocol gives formal acceptance to agreements already in effect providing for the continuance without interruption of the supply program inaugurated at the Moscow conference a year ago.

The protocol was signed for the United States by Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles; for Britain by Sir Ronald Campbell, British minister, and for the Soviet Union by Ambassador Maxim Litvinov.

RED STALINGRAD ARMY HURLS BACK NAZI TANK WEDGE

Russians Score Further Gains on Flank.

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Twelve Nazi tanks out of a huge formation beating at the Russian defenders fighting in the ruins of Stalingrad broke into a single city block yesterday, but 11 of them were destroyed by nightfall, the Russians announced early today on the 44th day of siege.

The brief and unsuccessful Nazi wedge in Red positions was made in a factory settlement apparently in the northwestern edge of the city. Thus, despite heavy aerial and artillery support, the Germans had made no substantial progress in more than 24 hours.

One Red army unit inside the city also was credited with the destruction of 17 more Nazi tanks and about one battalion [500 men].

The Russian relief counteroffensive northwest of Stalingrad meanwhile made further progress. The midnight communique said 500 Germans were killed and three tanks destroyed as one Red army unit "advanced somewhat" in that sector.

Gunboats Cover Advance.

Another detachment of Russian guards was reported officially to have broken into the outskirts of a populated place, demolishing 10 blocks of houses and wiping out 150 Germans.

Field dispatches said Volga river gunboats covered this advance, which is increasingly threatening the extended Nazi flank from the Don river to Stalingrad on the Volga.

Stalingrad's resolute garrison was reported fighting amid German set bomb fires visible for miles, but there was nothing to indicate any weakening of the defense which has amazed all of Russia.

Increasingly colder weather gave urgency to the German assault.

"The Germans hurry," said the government newspaper Izvestia. "They see time passing. They fear delay. They are fiercely rushing forward."

Military dispatches related how on Monday 22 consecutive German attacks were requlsed in a single segment of the workers' sector.

Chutists in Mountain Passes.

Reports from the Caucasus said the Germans now were trying to assault the high mountain passes with many parachutists. The mountain folk were aiding Red army men in clearing the chutists from settlements and hills. At one mountain farm, the Russians surprised a staff headquarters already set up, and captured officers and soldiers.

At one point in the Mozdok area of the deep Caucasus Germans, reportedly dressed in Red army uniforms, tried to outflank a height. Dispatches said the trick was discovered quickly and the entire enemy group mowed down by heavy Russian fire.

The Russians acknowledged a withdrawal from one populated place in the Mozdok area after a savage fight in which the place changed hands four times.

Attack Black Sea Convoy.

Tass, the soviet news agency, said Red airmen attacked a convoy carrying troops across the Black sea from Kerch toward Novorossisk, sank two ships and severely damaged several others. Several dozen barges equipped for landing operations were destroyed in a raid upon a Nazi held port, the Russians said.

On the Voronezh front of the upper Don river, Red Star said the Russians attacked a fortified hill and a Nazi held settlement from three sides, driving into the populated point, taking the hill and moving a mile into the German fortified zone.

Nazis Claim Gains in Caucasus.

BERLIN, Oct. 6 [From German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command said today that a "progressive German attack" was wresting height after height from the Russians in the Caucasus. It mentioned gains specifically in the mountains northeast of Tuapse, soviet Black sea port and pipeline terminus, and along the Terek river.

"In Stalingrad," the communique said, "the German attack in embittered fighting has made a further advance. "Shock troops of the army were effectively supported by German bomber formations. Northwest of the city a second soviet group was encircled.

"On the Don front, Rumanian, Italian, and Hungarian troops frustrated several attempts of the soviets to cross the river, and repelled soviet thrusts."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[THE TRIBUNE will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by THE TRIBUNE. Today's question was submitted by Margery Frank, 12 East Division street.]

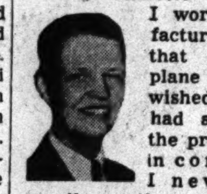
THE QUESTION.

How did you first become interested in flying? [Asked of army aviation cadets.]

WHERE ASKED.

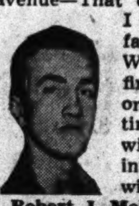
Army Aviation Cadet Examining board, Old Post Office building.

THE ANSWER.



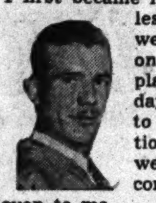
E. Badger Hunt Jr., 910 Lake avenue, Wilmette—For a long time I worked with a manufacturing company that constructed airplane parts. I always wished then that I had a part in using the product rather than in constructing it. I never thought I'd actually get that opportunity.

Carl D. Sheridan, 6756 Sheridan road—When I first started to build little model airplanes, I was just doing it to be building something. Before I knew it I became interested in the performance of the little streamlined things and here I am—ready for the real ones.



Robert F. Baker, 6948 Eberhart avenue—That dates back as far as I can remember. My father flew in the last World war, so I've had first hand information on the subject all the time. Joining the cadets will be an active bit of interest that I know will please him.

Robert J. Molitor, 426 Florence avenue, Evanston—The call for more cadets is what interested me. I'd been trying to figure out what branch of the service would appeal to me most, and I decided it was where I'd see the most action. I came to the conclusion that flying was it.



Clifford Hendrickson, Jasper, Ind.—I first became interested in more or less peaceful days. I went out to the airport one day to watch the planes and that same day I decided to learn to fly. I had no intention like that when I went out, so the outcome was a surprise, even to me.

Robert Warren Tissing, 10348 Wallace street—For many years now I've been keeping up with aviation in theory, but not in practice. I've been reading every book and magazine on the subject and always have wished I could afford the time and money actually to fly. Now my Uncle Sam is helping me out.

DECORATE 13 FOR RESCUING LIVE BOMBS IN BLAST

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 5 [delayed]—Two New York soldiers today were decorated with the Order of the Purple Heart at a small camp where they have been preparing ammunition for planes engaged in missions against the Japs.

The men are Sergt. Julius Schellenberg of Brooklyn and Pvt. Martin J. Zimmerman of Ozone Park, Queens. With 11 others, who also received decorations from Brig. Gen. Kenneth Walker, the New Yorkers volunteered to rush into an ammunition dump where all kinds of bombs, including one tonners, as well as small caliber ammunition were exploding when a grass fire spread to the dump.

Despite constant explosions on all sides, the men succeeded in salvaging many bombs, as well as ordnance trailers and other valuable property. None was hurt, altho the explosions were so strong that their tin helmets were blown off.

ADM. STANDLEY TO SEE F. D. R. ON HELP FOR RUSSIA

U .S. Ambassador Calls on Premier Stalin.

of the embassy, [Col. Joseph A. Michela and Capt. Jack S. Duncan], who are directly concerned with the military phases of coöperation between the two countries, are accompanying me.

Seeks More Facts.

"During the period of more than six months that I have been away from the United States great changes have taken place. Not only have we brought about an unprecedented increase in our war production, but we also have gained much in experience in the field of organization and transportation.

"I feel convinced that a more intimate knowledge of these changes will help me in my efforts to make still more effective our aid to the soviet union."

The ambassador said he had talked with many Russians and had found "an apparent determination of all hands to fight the war to a finish."

"My sentiment," he said, "is to give them all possible aid."

Envoy Sees Molotov.

Standley and the British ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, were believed to have taken up the Stalin letter in discussions yesterday. Standley also spoke to Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov to advise him of his plan.

Russian impatience over failure of the allies to open a second front in Europe was becoming more and more outspoken. One instance of this was a cartoon in Pravda, the Communist party paper, entitled "A Conference of War Experts."

A clock on the wall was shown ticking away. The calendar was at the month of October. A group of stuffed shirt officers, only one of them wearing a steel helmet, included "Gen. Cannot Risk," "Gen No Hurry," and "Gen. Let's Wait." They were listening to "Gen. Decisiveness" and "Gen. Courage."

CHURCHILL SHUNS DISCUSSIONS ON SECOND FRONT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Prime Minister Churchill today gave his answer to demands of members of parliament that he assure the public there has been no misunderstanding between Moscow and London regarding a second front. He said he had nothing to add at "this significant period" to the original statement he made to the house of commons upon his return from his interview with Premier Josef Stalin.

At that time Churchill admitted that Stalin believed the united nations "had not done enough." The prime minister then described the Commando raid on Dieppe, France, as only one of the many and increasingly large scale attacks which are to be made upon the enemy.

Today's demand for information on the cordiality of relations between the British and soviet governments was made by Aneurin Bevan, F. J. Bellenger, and Neil McLean, Laborites; Col. Oliver Stanley, Conservative, and Clement Davies, Liberal.

With the exception of Stanley they said Stalin's letter to Henry Cassidy of the Associated Press in Moscow, declaring that a second front was of imperative importance, contained the implication that there has been some misunderstanding between soviet and British leaders. Churchill said he had "of course, read and considered the statement referred to," but that nothing more could be said at the present time.

LOSES RINGS WORTH $950.

Mrs. Agnes Dwyer, 4748 Greenwood avenue, reported to police yesterday that she lost two diamond rings, valued at $950, which she had in her purse, while walking in the vicinity of 47th street and Lake Park avenue.

AERIAL LIFE LINE IN AFRICA READY AHEAD OF TIME

One Who Helped Build It Tells of Struggle.

BY FRANK STURDY.

The genius of American air line engineers and pilots, combined with unlimited courage and energy, has stretched one of the world's greatest air lines across central Africa for the army in less than a year.

Thousands of tons of vital war supplies for the British and American armies in North Africa and for the armies of Chiang Kai-shek in China have been flown over the African jungles and deserts in planes that once traversed the United States. Hundreds of army officers have been, and are being transported, on this least publicized air route in the world.

Build It Under Army Contract.

Word of the success of the venture was brought here by Wesley Miksch, a ground operations chief for Pan American Airways, builders of the air line under an army contract. For military reasons, Miksch was prevented from naming the main bases of the line on the coast of Africa, nor could he reveal the locations of the intermediate airports laboriously hacked out of dense jungles, dotting the secret routes across the continent.

His job in Africa completed, Miksch was flown across the South Atlantic to a base in Brazil. He is en route to a new assignment in Australia.

Miksch's Atlantic crossing was made in the bomb bay of a warplane. "It was the first relief I had had from temperatures of 100 and 110 degrees for months, and it was nearly too much," Miksch said. "We flew at so high an altitude that we wrapped up in heavy clothing and bed rolls to keep warm."

Army Assuming Control.

Pan American was commissioned by the army to start the airline and the first work of survey and construction was begun in October, 1941. The job has been done with such speed that Miksch predicted the army would be able to take over and operate the routes in advance of the contract date for completion. The army is assuming control gradually, even commissioning some Pan American personnel whose services were considered indispensable.

"The jungle surrounding some of the bases is so dense it is impossible for a man to push his way thru it alone," Miksch said. "When you look at it you wonder where the first shovel went in."

Every item of food and equipment for every American on the project was brought from the United States, the supplies ranging from aspirin and canned chicken to great bulldozers and trucks.

Many Stricken with Fever.

"Too much praise cannot be given the men who have done this job," Miksch said. "They complain at the hardships, but they wouldn't be anywhere else. Everything now is well organized and running smoothly, but at the start we sometimes wondered whether we could whip the job.

"For example, many of the first batch of men were hospitalized for malaria soon after arriving. Now the percentage is down to less than 1 per cent."

"We hired thousands of natives to build bases and many an amusing, as well as exasperating, native habit confronted us," Miksch said. "Our wheelbarrows were the latest roller bearing, streamlined, and rubber tired type, but they meant nothing to the Africans, whose habit is to carry, not to push. They carefully filled the barrows, then three or four would lift one to the head of a carrier and he would stalk off with a load you wouldn't believe.

Carries Stamps On His Head.

"I once sent a native house servant to buy stamps. They have no pockets in their clothing, and when the boy came back, he was carrying the stamps on the top of his head, weighed down with a stone so they wouldn't blow away."

The bases now are equipped with the finest pumps for filling the fuel tanks of the transports, but before these pumps arrived, each plane was supplied with gasoline from four gallon cans, Miksch said. He could not disclose the number of planes in regular service on the route and its feeders.

Miksch said George Kraigher, operations manager and chief pilot, was a constant inspiration to those employed on the project.

"Every one lived on Kraigher's drive and fire," he said.

The line proved its worth when Alexandria and Cairo were threatened by the eastward march of axis forces under Field Marshal Erwin Rommel. Transports flew day and night carrying supplies to the hard fighting British from the two cities Rommel sought to capture.

Tales of heroism and remarkable ingenuity on the part of the pilots are many, he said. Makeshifts are sometimes grotesque, but they are made, somehow, to work. On a section of the route in China a wing was needed for a plane. There was none to be had, but there was available a wing from a smaller plane. This wing was put on the larger plane, nevertheless, and flown until it could be replaced.

As an indication of the great quantities of material and men the line is capable of moving, Miksch reported that 450 passengers had been carried from a coastal base to Khartoum in Egypt in 10 days.

OFFICERS URGE U. OF C. MEN TO JOIN RESERVES

Recruiters of All Forces Speak to Students.

Morning classes were suspended yesterday for 1,100 male students of the University of Chicago while officers of the army, navy, and marine corps addressed them at an assembly in Mandel hall and urged immediate enlistment in reserve branches.

Students were told that they could enlist in certain branches and continue their studies for the time being, but could not be assured that they would be permitted to complete the college year.

Former Football Star Speaks.

Lieut. Jay Berwanger, former captain of the U. of C. football team and an All-American selection in 1934-'35, spoke for the naval aviation service. Lieut. Paul Nelson explained the sea service, and Lieut. M. E. Reep spoke for the marine corps. Advantages of the army were explained by Capt. Charles W. Bellis, and Lieut. Rosswell Freedman spoke for the army air service.

Among the dozen men qualified yesterday for the army air service was William Long, American born Chinese, 22 years old, and a native of Joliet. Long's enlistment in the cadet corps was prompted, he said, by a desire to avenge the death of his father, John M. Long, who returned to China for a visit in 1939 and was killed by the Japanese.

Graduate of Joliet Schools.

Long is a graduate of the Joliet public schools and of Joliet Junior college, where he was an honor student and member of the tennis and golf teams. George McDowell, Joliet, a schoolmate of Long's and also a former member of the golf team, likewise was accepted for the air corps.

Since the opening of the air force enlistment campaign in Chicago 10,969 cadets have been accepted.

Among the 71 marines making up the Fox River Valley detachment which left Elgin yesterday for the base at San Diego, Cal., was Gottheef Danner, 18, Elgin, nephew of a German air force flight commander, Fritz Schaaf. Danner was born in Germany and was brought to the United States when 1 year old.

300 Enlist in Navy.

Navy enlistments were unusually heavy yesterday and more than 300 recruits were sent to the Great Lakes Naval Training station and the Glenview air base.

The army engineer's office announced that contracts had been let for work on a new camp to be built in Fulton county, Ill.

68TH EASTERN STAR PARLEY OPENS IN CITY; VICTORY IS KEYNOTE

The 68th annual convention of the Order of the Eastern Star in Illinois, a two day meeting designated as the Victory session, opened yesterday in the Medinah mosque at Wabash avenue and Ohio street, with all of the 850 chapters in the state represented. Six thousand delegates, men and women, were present, and scores more continued to arrive thruout the day. The order claims a total membership of 130,000 in Illinois.

CHICAGOAN LICKS NAZIS, ITALIANS; NOW WANTS JAPS

Tells of Commanding U.S. Tanks in Libya.

After four months of maneuvering American tanks against the Germans and Italians on the hot sands of Egypt and Libya, Sergt. Jerry Patano returned to his home in Chicago on furlough yesterday with one ambition.

"There's nothing I want to do so much as lead a platoon of tanks against a bunch of Japanese infantry," he said.

Jerry, who is 24 years old, has become a veteran of desert warfare since volunteering for overseas service with an American tank detachment last May. Until the latter part of September he commanded three American M-3 tank crews in a British squadron which participated in several middle eastern campaigns. The return trip to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Patano, 4923 Iowa street, took less than two weeks.

Wants to Get Back in Fight.

Jerry expects to be assigned to train tank squadrons, but to the dismay of his parents he is interested only in seeing more action from the ranks.

"I have no desire to go to officers' school and maybe wind up behind a desk," he explained. "I've had chances for desk jobs because I'm an accountant. To me the conduct of the common soldier in a battle is wonderful and it's a real experience to do your share of the fighting with him. I marveled at the coolness and synchronization of the action of buck privates under heavy fire and at their heroism in helping their buddies.

Jerry fought beside New Zealanders, Australians, Greeks, Poles, Fighting French, English, and South Africans and describes them in two words —"all guts."

Shell Burst Singes Hair.

He had two narrow escapes. Once a 50 millimeter shell struck the cupola of his tank, ripping out a large hunk of steel just a second before he intended to stick his head out for observation. Sparks from the shell merely singed his hair. Another time, when his tank was trying to hold a ridge alone against three attacking German tanks, his crew put two of the tanks out of action with armor piercing shells and made the third retreat.

The young sergeant had nothing but praise for the stamina and efficiency of the German soldier, but he said Italian soldiers were so eager to be captured they frequently hitchhiked back to the allied lines in tanks.

In general, he said, life in Africa wasn't much worse than being on practice maneuvers in the United States. Three things he recalled with pleasure: Bathing on the beautiful beaches of the Mediterranean; waking voluntarily at 4 a. m. to hear the "Hit Parade" show broadcast on British short wave radio, and seeing the beautiful mirages of the desert, which, he insisted, often took the form of pretty girls in swimming suits.

Jerry was educated at St. Mel High school and Loyola university night school. He is not married.

BERWYN BOY, 6, 2 OTHER CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOS

Bruce Barton, 6 year old son of Clifford Barton, 3828 Grove avenue, Berwyn, was killed yesterday when he ran into the street and was run over by the rear wheels of a gravel truck at 37th street and Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn. The truck was driven by Charles Metzger, 4509 Grenshaw street.

Two Negro children were killed at a safety post in South Michigan avenue when the automobiles of two steel workers collided and one of the cars crushed them against the post. They were James Horgrove, 14, of 3614 South Michigan avenue, and his sister, Anna Lou, 2. The children were waiting at 32d place and Michigan avenue when the autos of Jay Ritzenthaler, 2432 Prairie avenue, and John Vandenberg, 1374 East 62d street, collided. The Vandenberg car killed the children.

Chicago and Cook county were without an automobile fatality for the 24 hour period which ended at 4 p. m. yesterday. Up to that hour, 538 persons had lost their lives in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 413 died in Chicago, where 15,460 were injured.

Arraign 3 Today on City's 1st Sedition Indictments

Three men named in the first sedition indictments returned by the special federal grand jury investigating seditious activities in the Chicago area will be arraigned before Federal Judge William H. Holly this morning. The three are Attorney Newell Mecartney, 1304 Darrow avenue, Evanston; Elmer W. Soller, 4233 North Moody avenue, a mimeographer, and Elmer Hartzel, 21 West 110th street.

ITALIANS CLAIM 4 TORPEDO HITS ON U. S. BATTLESHIP

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Rome radio broadcast a special communique today claiming that a United States battleship of the 33,000 ton Mississippi type "was seen sinking" after an Italian submarine shot four torpedoes into its bow 330 miles southeast of Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa.

The navy department in Washington, D. C., said it had no comment to make on the claim, and there was no confirmation from any other source, nor any indication that United States warships were operating in that area.

The Rome radio later said that the 33,400 ton Idaho was the battleship referred to in the communique, quoting an Italian news agency to the effect that the identification was arrived at "by a process of elimination." The Italian submarine Barbarigo was credited with this exploit. This ocean-going type was the same submarine which the Italians claimed last May 22 had sunk another American battleship of the Maryland class near Brazil—a claim still not confirmed more than four months after its publication.

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

A. C. P. writes: "I have heard there is a special school run by the army for training postwar administrative officers, but you have never mentioned it in your column. Is it just another rumor or don't you know about it?"

ANSWER: What you've heard is not a rumor, and we've known all about it for quite some time, but we did not feel that it was of general interest because only officers with a rank from captain to colonel are eligible. Furthermore, the candidate must have had extensive training and experience in public law and administration before entering the service, then he has to work up from a private.

T. A. C. writes: "Some one told me the requirements for the navy V-7 midshipmen had been lowered. What are the new requirements?"

ANSWER: The requirements have not necessarily been lowered, but the training program has been divided into two classifications; general service and special service. Men for general service will receive training for all types of duty, based principally upon courses to fit them for duty aboard ship. Those selected for special service will be trained primarily for shore duty.

For general service men must be between 5 feet 5½ inches and 6 feet 4, with weight proportionate; minimum weight 132 pounds; must have at least 18/20 vision, correctible to 20/20, with good color perception; must have 20 vital, serviceable, permanent teeth; a college degree or regularly enrolled juniors or seniors in an accredited college or university, and must have two semester courses in college mathematics and trigonometry at time of graduation.

For special service the height and weight requirements are minimum of 5 feet 4 inches, maximum of 6 feet 4 inches; minimum weight 124; 12/20 vision, correctible to 20/20; deficient color preception permissible, and have 18 sound, vital teeth. Applicants must be candidates for a baccalaureate degree with a major in engineering, naval architecture, mathematics, physics, electronics, chemistry, meteorology, industrial management, or business administration. Students majoring in Russian, Chinese, Malaysian, Japanese, or other fields of particular value, may be accepted in limited numbers. The ages for both groups remain 18 to 27 inclusive.

R. A. B. writes: "I read in the papers that men were being shipped to Hawaii to work. Are they draft-exempt?"

ANSWER: No. These men remain under the jurisdiction of their draft boards.

B. M. asks: "If a man is accepted for enlistment with a waiver for a physical disability, does the waiver mean that he is excluded from insurance, pension, and other benefits?"

ANSWER: No. If a man is accepted for enlistment with a waiver for physical disability, it means that he is accepted under the same conditions as any other recruit, and the waiver does not prejudice his rights to insurance, pensions, and any other benefits.

NAZIS' ECONOMIC PINCH INCREASED BY RAF BOMBINGS

Cause Shortage of Houses and Consumer Goods.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Dingle M. Foot, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of economic warfare, today told a London audience of the part the royal air force bombing of Germany is playing in tightening the stranglehold of the economic blockade of Germany.

"It already is clear," he said, "that the bombing attacks on western Germany have created an acute housing problem; moreover, to get a complete picture, it is necessary to take into account not only the number of houses destroyed, but also the contents. The shortage of consumer goods is considerably more marked in Germany than here, with the result that many German householders who are bombed out find it difficult, if not impossible, to replace their personal possessions."

Restricted by Diplomacy.

Diplomatic reasons, Foot said, have prevented Britain from making the fullest use of the economic weapon, but now, he asserted, Europe is so well blockaded by the British navy and the ports where ships might load are so well supervised that only unimportant goods are reaching the enemy.

He said that when the history of the war is written it may be learned that the most vital battles of the war have been fought against enemy shipping in the northern waters, because Germany, altho primarily a land power, "nevertheless is vulnerable at sea, which she needs to maintain her supplies of iron ore. The axis also is worried about its shipping position in the Mediterranean thru which are obtained supplies of metals, fish, oil, timber, and wood pulp."

Oranges Plentiful in Britain.

Contrasting Foot's picture of conditions in Germany, food ministry announced today that shipments of oranges to Britain have been so plentiful that the rationing scheme, which limited the supplies to children under 5 years, "has been modified to allow children up to the age of 18 to receive supplies."

Food Minister Lord Woolton appealed to housewives not to buy ripe tomatoes to store or manufacture into catsup. He estimated that an average of 3½ pounds of ripe tomatoes per head of the population have been distributed to retailers, but that there are around 2,500 tons which are not likely to ripen this season.

Foot said the German drive which began in June to get 350,000 French workers so far had produced only 40,000. Foot's figures contradicted those of the Vichy radio, which stated that an agreement had been made for the departure to Germany of 150,000 skilled metal workers and the return to France of 50,000 prisoners.

50 YOUNGSTERS COME HUNTING OPERATIC JOBS

More than 50 young singers, most of them from out of town, appeared at the Civic Opera house yesterday for the third of the Chicago Opera's series of auditions to select two winners of contracts for the season opening Nov. 7.

Applicants came from states as far away as Pennsylvania and Texas, and included 18 year old Jeanne Park, coloratura soprano from Wichita, Kas.; Gladys Dworkin, dramatic soprano from Cleveland, O.; Melba Welch, dramatic soprano from Denison, Tex., and Carmen Quinones, daughter of Joel S. Quinones, Mexican consul in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Quinones arrived with his daughter, who announced her intention of staying in Chicago until the winners are chosen.

Not all the singers were newcomers to the Chicago Opera stage. Robert Ladoff, yeoman third class, stationed at the Board of Trade building, has been a member of the Chicago Opera's young chorus. He hopes to become a basso principal.

BRITISH DECORATE TWO FLYERS NOW WITH U. S. ARMY AIR FORCES

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Two American flyers were decorated by the British today, former Eagle Pilot Officer William Henry Baker, 22 years old, Temple, Tex., receiving the distinguished flying cross and Flight Sergt. William Thomas Bent, 26, Glen White, W. Va., of the royal Canadian air force, receiving the distinguished flying medal.

Baker, now a member of the United States army air forces, made numerous operational sorties over enemy territory when an Eagle flyer. He was credited with destroying two enemy airplanes and probably shooting down two others.

Bent, a former coal miner, was captain of a plane sent to attack a target in the Ruhr. Altho engine trouble prevented him flying his plane above 2,000 feet, he bombed his target and took a photograph of the area, his citation said. The engine trouble persisted on his flight home and he was harassed by searchlights and anti-aircraft fire "but by skillful airmanship reached his base."

SENTENCE WOMAN TO 1 TO 10 YEARS IN THEFT OF $12,109

Without offering a word in her own defense, Mrs. Irene Wilkalis, 29 years old, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in prison yesterday by Chief Justice John A. Sbarbaro of the Criminal court on a charge of embezzling $12,109.

Mrs. Wilkalis pleaded guilty. She was given until Oct. 20 to wind up her personal affairs. During the hearings, her husband, Paul, 32, a beer salesman, stood at her side.

Mrs. Wilkalis embezzled the money from the Illinois Acceptance corporation, 1958 Milwaukee avenue, where she was office manager. In her confession, she admitted taking $50 to $60 a day, spending some on her home at 2218 Shakespeare avenue, and giving some to her husband.

CHARGES NAZIS STIR FRANCE TO FEAR FOR DAKAR

Act to Save Navy, Says British Press.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Common action by the United States, the "Fighting French" and the British was urged by the Evening Standard tonight to prevent the possibility of the Germans swinging the Vichy navy into the axis front.

The editorial charged that Vichy, Paris, and Berlin are intriguing to create a fear that the united nations are contemplating an attack against West Africa. The editorial quoted the French press in German controled Paris as saying that "a second attack on Dakar [French West Africa] would draw the whole French empire into the war against Britain and America."

It quoted "Quisling" Déat [Marcel Deat, a collaborationist editor] as writing in his paper a demand for an "agreement between France and Germany to deal with the possibility of an Anglo-Saxon attack against West Africa."

"Pound of French Flesh."

The editorial said "Madagascar represents to Frenchmen another pound of flesh torn from the bleeding body of unhappy France."

Tonight the Vichy radio reported that the Paris newspaper "Le Nouveaux Temps" has started a violent campaign for French troops to be sent to French West Africa in order to counter the "United States aggression" against Dakar and St. Louis, capital of Senegal, which is said to be regarded as imminent.

Nazi Squeeze Seen.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—German broadcasts suggested today that Hitler may be adopting squeeze tactics in an attempt to force France to yield military concessions in West Africa, with hints that Britain and the United States might seize Dakar and that French Morocco might go to Spain as forfeit.

Quoting articles in the Paris press, the Berlin radio dwelt on what purported to be an increasing demand among the French for a fighting defense to prevent French West Africa from going the way of Equatorial Africa, Syria, and Madagascar.

The implication was that, if the French could not hold their own territory from the "Fighting French" and the allies, they should grant Germany the facilities to hold it for them.

To help screw down the pressure, the Berlin radio quoted a Barcelona dispatch voicing Spain's desire for domain "from the Pyrenees to the Atlas mountains."

REVEALS BRITAIN HAS PRODUCED A 'SUPERIOR' TANK

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Sir James Grigg, war secretary, today disclosed that Britain has produced a new tank which a member of parliament said "is superior in performance to any other tank in use by any other belligerent."

The description of the tank's quality was given by Laborite R. R. Stokes who asked the war secretary the name of the new weapon. A lineal descendent of the Churchill tank, it is now called simply "A27[M]."

Grigg gave no details about the performance or armament of the tank and declined to comment on the suggestion of Laborite Emanuel Shinwell that "serious defects were discovered in the Churchill tanks" in the August raid on Dieppe.

RAF 'MOSQUITO' BOMBERS RAID DUTCH FACTORY

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Britain's crack new mosquito bombers attacked a factory and a power station near Hengelo, Holland, today and left them burning after hedge hopping 100 miles inland to reach their targets at dusk. Earlier other mosquito craft bombed objectives in western Germany. The attacks were made by single planes.

The daylight raids followed an RAF night attack in which, according to the Germans, Essen, the heart of the Nazi munitions industry, was among the cities singled out.

The British merely had announced that the RAF found its targets in western Germany and that 10 planes were lost, indicating that on the basis of previous averages 200 planes were employed. It was the 49th raid on Essen in this war and the third night raid on Germany this month.

[A German high command communique said scattered British bombers appeared over northern and western Germany in daylight Monday and others attacked Dutch and western German territories Monday night. The German report claimed only four raiders shot down by night fighters.]

To do this, a laboratory specializing in fermentology and nutrition was necessary. Discoveries made in the laboratory and in the plant have led to the development of products contributing to human necessity and progress. Some of these products would appear to have only a remote relationship to brewing, yet, they are the result of scientific research into many allied fields.

Endless research in making the world's leading beer has led to other products

VITAMIN D—Anheuser-Busch produces enough of the basic material for Vitamin D to supply the entire American market.

BAKER'S YEAST—We are one of America's biggest suppliers of standard and enriched yeasts and malt syrup used to make bread.

CORN SYRUP—many millions of pounds annually for America's candy industry.

SYRUPS—for food, table and confectionery uses and special syrups for medicinal purposes.

VITAMINS FOR LIVESTOCK—We are America's biggest supplier of yeast vitamins used to fortify animal feeds.

STARCH—for food, textile, paper and other industries—millions of pounds annually.

REFRIGERATING EQUIPMENT—for retailers of frozen foods and ice cream the country over. (This division is now working all-out on glider wing and fuselage assemblies for our Armed Forces.)

DIESEL ENGINES—The first American-made Diesel was built to create power for the brewing of Budweiser. Adolphus Busch, founder of Anheuser-Busch, acquired the first rights to manufacture this revolutionary engine in America and thus started our great Diesel industry on its way.

TIDE OF MURDER SURGES THRU ALL SECTIONS OF U. S.

Hitch-Hiker Gets Term in Michigan Slaying.

Murder was on the march thruout the nation yesterday as reports of homicide in unusual and spectacular forms came from all sections of the country. Outstanding in the epidemic of violence were the following dispatches:

Midland, Mich., Oct. 6 [Special].—James Kennen, 14 year old farm boy, today was committed to the Boys' Vocational school at Lansing for the robbery slaying of Clyde N. Valentine, 39, Detroit bartender, last Sunday.

Under terms of the commitment by Probate Judge Date J. La Goe, the boy will remain in the vocational school until he is 19 years old. It was believed he would then be moved to some other institution but what action would be taken at that time was not clear to Midland county law enforcement officers.

Police said Kennen admitted he attempted to hold up Valentine after the bartender met him at a Midland county beer garden and offered him a ride home. With a revolver he found in the car, the boy shot Valentine three times when the bartender said he had no money, then backed the car over his body "to make sure he was dead," he related.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP).—A powerful Negro theater porter was arraigned today on a murder charge in the brutal killing of pretty Marian Oliver during a movie show at the Old Opera house.

The nude, battered body of the 20 year old factory worker was found yesterday behind the theater, and the Middlesex county prosecutor, John A. Lynch, said today John Swan, 26, 6 foot 4 inch porter and bridegroom of a month, had confessed he killed the girl in the women's lounge after she bitterly fought his attempt to rape her.

Swan, who had been drafted into the army last November in Chicago but was discharged for ineptitude, was held without bail for the grand jury by Recorder Joseph T. Takacs.

Elko, Nev., Oct. 6 (AP).—Floyd Loveless, 16 year old Indiana boy, was sentenced to death yesterday for the fatal shooting of A. H. Berning, Carlin, Nev., constable. Richard Sheehy, warden of the Nevada state prison, set the execution for the week of Dec. 13-19. Loveless, a former inmate of the reformatory at Plainfield, Ind., was convicted by a jury Sept. 30.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6 (AP).—As she sat moaning in a jail cell today Mrs. Valentina Kalar, 56 year old widow, was charged by police with second degree murder in the fatal shooting of her daughter, Mrs. Irene Gapaczinski, 31.

Police said the shooting occurred at Mrs. Gapaczinski's home Sunday night after a series of quarrels between the mother and daughter over the slain woman's keeping company with a male boarder.

Beaver Springs, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP).—The body of Foster I. Bonnie, 54 years old, was found today by a sheriff's posse which had been seeking him for 24 hours, after a coroner's jury accused him of choking, beating, and shooting to death his estranged wife, Mrs. Grace I. Bonnie, 43, mother of 12 children. Members of the posse said there were bullet wounds in the body, which was found near Middleburg in the Snyder county mountains, close to Bonnie's former home.

Portsmouth, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Alfred B. Tulin, 32 year old cripple, who, Detective Capt. Linwood H. Cherry said, had confessed hiring a Negro handy man to do away with his father, waived preliminary hearing today on a charge of killing William I. Tulin, 66 year old wine merchant, whose charred body was found in a burned automobile last Tuesday.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 6 (AP).—A close friend and fellow worker of Charles J. Simonton, 50 years old, deputy federal alcohol tax collector, found fatally wounded in his stalled car on the Nevada desert 118 miles from Las Vegas, voices the opinion he was murdered and brushes aside a purported suicide note as a clumsy attempt to disguise his killing.

"Until a handwriting authority swears that Charlie Simonton wrote that hysterical note I will be convinced he was murdered," Earl R. Barnaby, senior inspector for the internal revenue bureau's alcohol tax unit, declared last night.

On the Crime Front

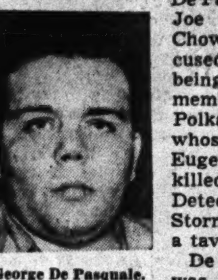
(Story in adjoining column.)

Charles J. Simonton, deputy federal alcohol tax collector, found fatally wounded in his car on Nevada desert.

Marian Oliver, 20, who was beaten to death in the backstage section of a New Brunswick, N. J., movie house. Her nude body was thrown from a second story window.

LAST 'POLKA DOT' GANGSTER DENIES COP KILLING ROLE

A special showup will be held in police headquarters tonight for George De Pasquale, alias Joe Cozzi and Chow-Chow, accused by police of being the last member of the Polka Dot gang whose leader, Eugene Guzy, was killed as he shot Detective Walter Storm to death in a tavern.



George De Pasquale.

De Pasquale was arrested on suspicion in Chicago Heights and brought here by Lieut. Kyran Phelan. He said at a showup last night that he was 18 years old and lives at 652 North Aberdeen street. He insisted that he was not with the gang when Storm was killed, but was quoted by police as admitting he accompanied members on other crime forays.

Four robbery victims identified him last night, but he denied all the accusations.

CALLS KITCHENS FERTILE SOURCE OF TIN FOR SCRAP

The 35 to 40 tin cans discarded every month by the average Chicago area family can become a continuous source of steel scrap for munitions making, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, women's chairman of the area tin can salvage program, declared yesterday.

"The kitchen in every home is a constant producer of scrap if the housewife only would realize it," Mrs. Kelly said. "Discarded tin cans properly prepared can supply more steel scrap for the mills than any other household source.

"Two hundred fifty families of four members each can supply a gross ton of 2,240 pounds of tin cans each month. On the basis of four average cans to a pound, that would mean 8,960 cans.

22 Pounds of Pure Tin.

"By detinning properly prepared tin cans we can obtain 22 pounds of commercially pure tin and 2,218 pounds of No. 2 steel scrap out of each ton of cans."

Mrs. Kelly said War Production board's tin can salvage section has set a quota of 1,200 gross tons of cans each month, on the basis of one-third of a ton for each 1,000 population.

This quota is conservative, she said, and based upon an expectation of only one-third of the estimated total consumption of tin cans. She explained the conservative quota was set because some cans cannot be easily washed, cut open at both ends and flattened and because of limitations of the collection system.

Cites Loss in Discarded Cans.

Mrs. Kelly urged housewives to continue preparing used tin cans for salvage. She said each tin can tossed away and not reclaimed is a permanent loss because the tin on each can is irreplaceable and is part of a pool which must last during the war.

Each can contains approximately 1.25 per cent tin and 98.75 per cent steel scrap. The scrap remaining after the tin is recovered is pressed into bundles and shipped to steel mills.

WPB salvage officials reported 450 gross tons of prepared tin cans were shipped by the city of Chicago to the Metal and Thermit corporation detinning plant in East Chicago from July 16 to Oct. 1.

Ten Tons a Day Collected.

From July 16 to Sept. 12, tin can shipments from the city totaled 290 gross tons, or 15 per cent of the expected deliveries of 40 tons a day. Since Sept. 12, deliveries have improved, WPB officials reported, and at present are at the rate of 10 tons a day, or 25 per cent efficiency.

The Field Museum of Natural History has turned over 28 tons of scrap metal to the salvage drive, Orr Goodson, acting director, said. The pile included scrap iron, steel, bronze, copper, zinc, lead, as well as several hundred pounds of rubber.

In the school scrap drive, Mozart school, 2200 North Hamlin avenue, maintained its lead with 50,000 pounds gathered. La Salle, 326 Eugenie street, was second with 42,000, and Gary, 3000 South Ridgeway avenue, third with 35,414 pounds.

In the high school division the leaders were Calumet, 8131 South May street, 35,400; Lane Technical, 2501 Addison street, 5,700, and Farragut, 2345 Christiana avenue, 4,549 pounds.

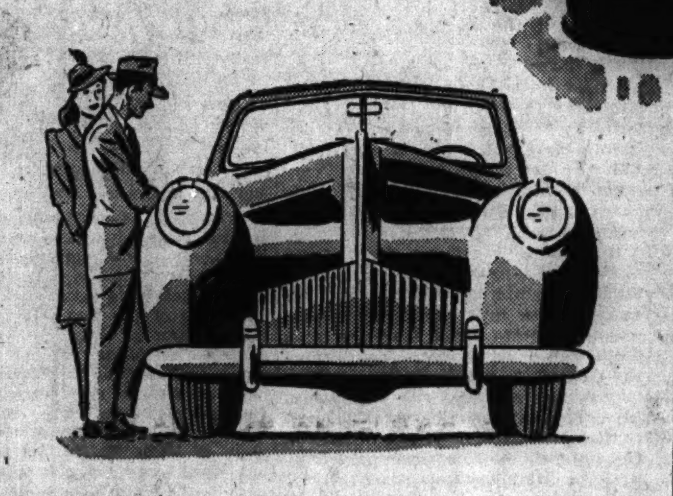
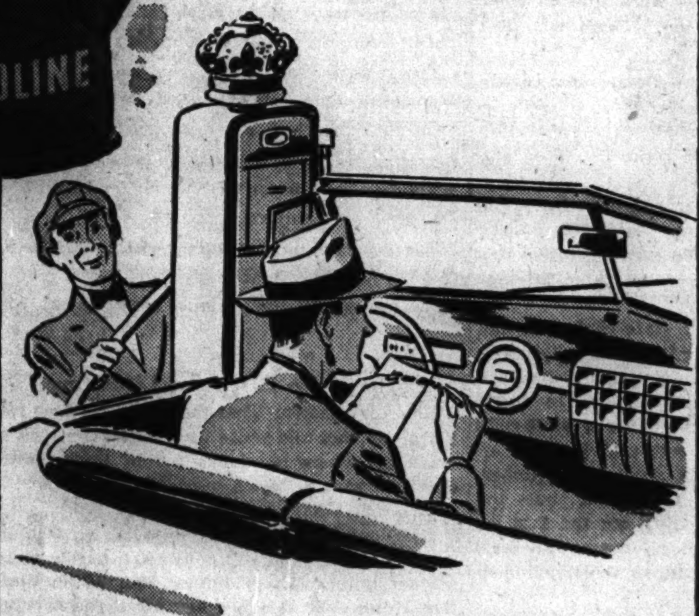
Gas Rationing...

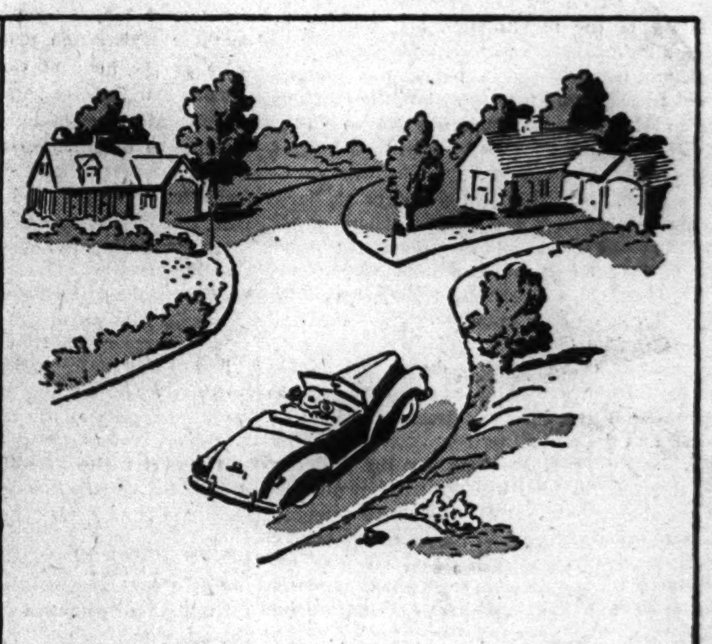
how to get ready for it!



1. Make this simple test now. From now on, it isn't safe to guess how many miles you get per gallon nor how many miles you cover in your necessary driving. You need to know. Else you may run out of gas some time. Here's how to get the facts . . .

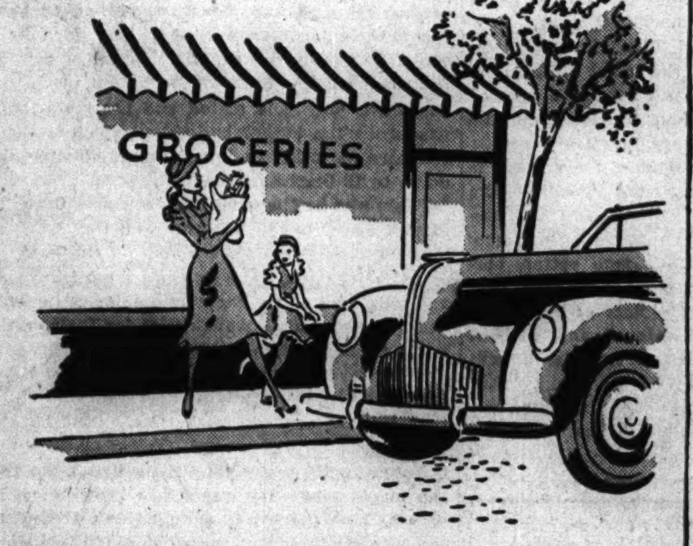


2. Determine how much of your driving is necessary. For an accurate check you'll need to start with a full tank. Then, check your speedometer. Note the mileage in the Car Service Record Book your Standard Oil Dealer will give you . . . and



3. Measure your gas consumption for a week of necessary driving. Don't do extra driving to make this test. Just drive as you usually do going to work, shopping, etc. Keep your speed under 35. Then go back to your Standard Oil Dealer and . . .

4. Here's how to figure your mileage. At the end of the week, fill the tank again. Divide the distance you drove by the number of gallons it takes to refill your gas tank—and there's the approximate mileage per gallon your car will deliver with the driving you'll be doing in the future.



5. Learn how many necessary miles you drive each week. If you must drive to work, for example, measure the round trip in miles and fractions. Then you'll have two accurate records—how many miles per gallon you can drive—and how many miles you need to drive.

6. While the primary purpose of gas rationing is to conserve tires, at the same time you won't want to waste gas. Faulty or dirty plugs and a clogged air cleaner are big gas wasters. Have your Standard Oil Dealer inspect yours now and have him "condition" your car for the cold days ahead.

Start your own rationing

NOW! Patriotic motorists are not waiting for rationing to be put into force. They're doing their own voluntary rationing . . . and they're doing it right now! The rubber must be saved!

MR. BYRNES' RECORD.

It is a sad day for the American people when it becomes necessary for them to examine the personal predilections of any man placed in executive or administrative office in order to anticipate how governmental action will affect their personal fortunes.

Our whole instinct, rooted in our history, is repulsed by the thought. For centuries the American people have struggled to make that government one of laws and not of men. Bitter experience taught that that was the only sure protection, that the citizen should at all times be able to read the written rules and know from them with certainty his exact relation to his government in any field of action. Conversely, bitter experience taught that where too great discretion was granted to those wielding official power the time was sure to arrive when that power would fall into unworthy hands and would be abused.

It should not make any difference what manner of man former Justice Byrnes is, in so far as his administration of the office of director of economic stabilization is concerned. Unfortunately, it does make a very great difference. The executive order issued by the President under the authority of the anti-inflation act, establishing Mr. Byrnes' office and powers, is so vague in its provisions, particularly regarding the stabilization of wages, that what the stabilization director is to do or, in some instances, whether he is to do anything, depends to a large extent on his personal political and economic predilections.

It is a bad thing that this should be so, but it is so, and since it is there is one phase of Mr. Byrnes' record that should give thoughtful Americans reason for concern. That is his concurrence as a member of a five to four majority in the Supreme court in an opinion of the court last June which held, in the Jehovah's Witnesses cases, that vendors of religious books and pamphlets may be licensed and taxed, notwithstanding the constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion, speech, and the press.

Mr. Justice Reed, speaking for the majority, held that contitutional liberties are not absolute but are subject to the right to employ sovereignty to insure orderly living. In his dissenting opinion Chief Justice Stone asserted that "a way has been found for the effective suppression of speech and press and religion, despite constitutional guarantees. The very taxes now before us are better adapted to that end than were the stamp taxes which so successfully curtailed the dissemination of ideas by 18th century newspapers and pamphleteers, and which were a moving cause of the American revolution."

The opinion in the Jehovah's Witnesses cases was a most serious repulse in the long continuing and never finished task of vitalizing and applying the constitutional protections of civil liberties. It was a significant demonstration that the so-called liberalism of the New Deal is less interested in preserving the individual liberties on which all our political and governmental advances have been based than in suppressing those liberties when necessary to facilitate an arbitrary and paternalistic program by the state for the supposed benefit of the citizens.

Neither Mr. Roosevelt's four freedoms nor the civil liberties protected by the bill of rights can be maintained without economic freedom. If the right to make a living and the manner in which that living is to be made are to be dictated to the citizen by his government, it matters little to him that he still may possess a theoretical freedom of speech and the press and assembly and protest and worship, and guarantees of a fair trial and of his franchise. He may still possess those other rights, but he will not dare assert them if to do so means that he forfeits his food.

As director of economic stabilization Mr. Byrnes has been delegated greater powers over the economic life, the right to earn a living, of Americans than have ever been granted in the past to any agent or agency of government in this country. The exercise of those powers, which it is asserted are necessary to the successful prosecution of the war, would require the greatest forbearance in whomsoever's hands they were placed. It is disturbing that they have been placed in the hands of a man who by his recent action on the bench showed that he was more interested in strengthening the hand of the government than in protecting the liberties of its people.

Mr. Byrnes was a senator much longer than he was a judge. In the senate, while exercising his genius as a political tactician as a faithful partisan of the President, he did not always follow the party line of the more radical New Dealers. It may be conceded that his present appointment could have gone to others who have demonstrated a greater lust for the destruction of the American form of society. His vote on the Jehovah's Witnesses opinion should be regarded, perhaps, as a blot that can be erased by wise exercise of his present economic powers.

"FLYING MISTAKES."

Widespread criticism of the quality and performance of American military aviation, particularly in the pursuit category, has been noted by an aviation subcommittee of the house military affairs committee. It reports that the box score from Feb. 1 thru Sept. 20 shows 279 enemy planes downed by army aircraft to 114 American planes lost and terms this a complete reply to complaints.

One can only wonder if the members of the subcommittee who have come to the front for the hierarchy of American military aviation have noted the statement of Maj. Alexander de Seversky, American designer, that "the glory of our gallant pilots is that they are doing superb work despite inferior equipment. The records of our Colin Kellys and 'Butch' O'Hares and hundreds of others, living and dead, are doubly brilliant in the eyes of those Americans fully aware of the equipment handicaps with which they started. We do these heroes and the whole of our peerless aviation personnel a great injustice by blurring that fact, and, sentiment aside, we compromise our whole war effort by confusing the issue of technical quality in aerial warfare—by tolerating the ersatz superiority of commercial and political braggadocio in place of true superiority."

One must also wonder whether, perhaps unconsciously, the members of the subcommittee have lent themselves to what Maj. de Seversky calls the hierarchy's "high pressure campaign . . . to reconcile American opinion to equipment which, in many performance factors, is below the standards set by our allies and enemies." Our backwardness, he said, "is the sorry heritage of long years of underestimation of the air weapon, and the illogical subservience of our airmen to infantry and naval leadership."

De Seversky said that the flyers who man the equipment have no illusions about it, citing a letter from some of them saying, "We are in a position to know, in that we are flying the mistakes you wrote about." The major adds that if "consoling exaggeration" of the quality of our planes is intended to conceal past mistakes, it misses fire, because the facts are too obvious. "Those in charge," he suggests, "would be better advised to acknowledge past failures and help uncover and remove the causes of such failures. Admittedly, that would take a high degree of courage, but the national effort calls for heroic honesty and all-out realism."

Little need be added to that, as it applies either to military aircraft or any other blunder in the conduct of the war, except, perhaps, to add that if buyers of washing machines or other commercial products were misled concerning their quality and performance by fraud or misrepresentation, they would have ample cause for complaining to the proper legal authorities and demanding redress. Is the situation any different when the only customer for military aircraft is the people of the United States, whose very survival is at stake?

PREVIEW OF NOVEMBER.

What happened Monday on the final day of registration in Chicago for the Nov. 3 general election should convince civic groups concerned with honest elections that a vigilant watch must be kept at the polls next month. Hundreds of citizens who had stood in line for hours were turned away unregistered when the doors of registration places were shut in their faces at the hour of closing. Those who lost out on their right to vote saw in this experience a deliberate attempt by the Democratic county machine to disfranchise them.

It was charged that insufficient registration forms had been provided in many precincts, and that the clerical force provided to wait upon those attempting to register had oeen intentionally understaffed. When no extension of the deadline for registering was granted, many citizens said that all tactics pointed to an attempt to discourage registrations.

Ben L. Berve, Republican state chairman, had previously asserted that similar efforts had been made downstate at the behest of the Kelly-Nash machine. Voters there are required to enroll this year for the first time under a state-wide permanent registration system that becomes effective in November. The Republican preponderance downstate is well recognized, but the tactics pursued in Cook county are the first intimation that Democratic leaders are also fearful that there will be a swing to the Republican column here.

The strategy thus dictated is to rely on the organized vote that the Democratic machine can turn out and to hinder new voters and others of doubtful sympathy from registering. If some Democratic votes are lost with a large number of Republican votes, the machine can be counted to make up for them. That is just what must be watched at the election. The final registration, with its obstructionist tactics, may be considered a preview of what to expect next month.

The voters have again been reminded that the New Deal "party of humanity" is also the party of the corrupt big city machines; that Kelly-Nash and Boss Hague and "Paving Block" Ed Flynn are the outriders of the social millennium, and that the short pencil is as much a part of the paraphernalia as the four freedoms and the evangelism of Henry Wallace.

While the Democratic candidate for senator is submitting the modest view that Illinois voters can "open a second front" by electing him, the Hon. Adolph J. Sabath, the distinguished Democratic representative of a Chicago rotten borough, is found staging a lone commando raid against the Hatch act on the floor of the house. Our half-a-congressman, barefaced and without burnt cork, joyfully confessed that he doesn't want any clean politics law on the books. That sort of law can't do the party of humanity any good, and the Hon. Adolph makes no bones about it.

1,000 FOUR ENGINED BOMBERS LOST

[Detroit News.]

Higher union officials have been glib in denying the existence of slowdowns in war work, tho it has appeared by report that this is a fairly prevalent dodge for evading the pledge to leave disputes to mediation or arbitration.

One swallow does not make a summer, but in the case just dealt with by the army at the Buick aluminum foundry in Flint the evidence is quite clear a slowdown existed.

It existed over a period of a month. It was stopped by the army when Lieut. Col. George E. Strong of the air force ordered permanent suspension for the two union officials—shop committeemen—who organized and led it. Thereupon production in the affected department at once increased 66 per cent!

Measured by this increase, the output lost over the duration of the slowdown was estimated by Col. Strong to have been 4,260 castings of a bomber engine part.

"In terms of army air force striking power," said this officer, "that amounts to more than 1,000 four engined bombers, enough to turn the tide of battle on almost any front."

We should like to stack that record beside the denials and protestations of innocence by higher union officials. They will say they did not hear about the Flint slowdown, but it was their business to hear about it.

Heads of a union purporting to control the organized acts of workers, these men, whom the public cannot hold accountable, still bear a great responsibility for the winning of this war. It is not enough that they pledge not to strike, and have their pictures taken looking important and patriotic. It is their business, their duty to the country that suffers them, to see that there are no strikes, no slowdowns.

"One thousand four engined bombers"— lost! O, the production can be made up; so can the ships and material lost at Pearl Harbor. But the time cannot be made up, nor can the lives that will be lost because the time was lost.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

NEVER HEARD OF HIM!

The world must be changing. Several middle-aged journalists within close range of this desk never heard of Harun-al-Rashid, who was mentioned in association with the President's recent tour under the veil of censorship. In the good old days the press veterans of Chicago talk about when in banquet assembled, even the copy boys would have understood such an allusion.

The newspaper pieces that have been printed about mayors and chiefs of police who went out, incognito, to see what the plain people were doing in saloons and gambling joints would, if pasted end to end, stretch three times around the world. In all of these breezy items the prowling official was compared to Harun-al-Rashid, caliph of Bagdad in the immortal "Arabian Nights." But today Harun appears to be an almost forgotten man among the ink-stained wretches!

O. Henry is doubtless turning over in his grave. Was he not fond of calling New York Bagdad-on-the-Subway? Turning the pages of his collected stories at random, we come across "A Night in New Arabia," with this as its second sentence:

"Its palaces, bazars, khans, and byways are thronged with Al Rashids in divers disguises."

Hundreds of theatrical entertainments based on stories in "The Arabian Nights" have been staged. Thousands of newspaper cartoons have been inspired by their characters. Millions of words have been printed about them. Almost every American home has sheltered a copy of this world classic of narrative literature, expurgated for children.

Nevertheless, it seems that we are nearly surrounded by colleagues who never heard of Harun-al-Rashid!

PROPHET OF RUSSIA.

(Leo Tolstoy, 1828-1910.)

Starlit and still, and loosely wrapped in snow,
The great night rests its weight upon the land,
And all the towered, important cities show
As sullen scars upon a giant hand.
Then austere darkness feels a probing light,
The various auras of a psychic lamp,
Moving, enlarging, shining clearly bright
On glittering chamber, street and bristling camp.
But more, far more, it burns the garment thru,
Touches the Russian body, mind and heart,
Distinctly as a surgeon, brings to view
The intimate, interior, ruling part.
O, lamp of genius, luminously wise,
Shine out against the gloom of Slavic skies!

The Duke Discusses Literature.

Hon. Linemaster: That there drip No Shoes Al, tha droop that tole youse [Sept. 21] about tha literary tea where he claims I didn' know nuthin about authors, is just a mess of tripe. I got witnesses that I have read pretty near every one of Longfellows books, that is unless he's written any new ones lately, and also you cood'n hardly blame me fer telling Mrs. Schuyler Van Slither-Slatts that I didn' like O'Henry because if you ever got a piece of peanut under yer upper plate you wood'n like 'em either and as far as Boccaccio is concerned I don't like none of them drinks thats got rum in 'em.

I think it was about 10 years or mebbee it was 30 yrs. ago [whats a cupple months between friends] that a certain slug non-de-plumed himself under tha name of Snow-Shoe-Al and published a book on animal life or mebbee it was fish life [who cares?] and tha 1st large printing of 60 copies was gobbled up immediately by 59 dealers, me being a sucker bought tha other one cause tha authors ole man was short tha buck by 90 cents. If I remember rightly tha cost of printing tha scum was gonna be 22 bucks but on a/c tha chain was only gold plated and tha main spring was broke tha author had to cut out 8 of tha 16 chapters in order to bring tha production cost down to 12 berries.

I tole him at tha time that he was a darn fool to risk heavy dough like that and that he shood look fer a publisher sucker and get tha book out on a royalty basis, so he looks up the word royalty and tells me I shure know my onions cause kings and queens wood all want copies fer their castles. I was gonna tell him mebbee aces and jacks wood also fall for his racket, but humor like that is just wasted when your talking to a yap who thinks that Willkie can win next time out if he runs democratic.

Ennyway I'll never ferget tha hell I got from tha mama when I brought Al's book home, she says as how there was enough junk around tha shack to dust and out tha window it went, and 2 seconds later our neighbors goat was feasting on tha masterpiece. I never did find out what tha book was all about. Duke Bakrak.

P. S. Dead goats tell no tales.

AND A GOOD THING, TOO!

I have a lot of smiles to smile,
A lot of songs to sing.
They may be dated after while—
Who knows what Time may bring!
I have a lot of friends to see
While they are still so close to me.

I have a lot of tasks to do,
(All meant for me, alone)
A lot of joys want tending to
(With care, joys can be grown!)
With so few hours 'twixt sleep and sleep,
I'll have small time to mope or weep!

ANTHRAX SCARCE AMONG HUMANS.

We are indeed fortunate that certain ailments which commonly attack animals will be transmitted to man but rarely. One such—anthrax—occurs among cattle, hogs, sheep, and goats. Occasionally, widespread epidemics have been reported. In a single season the farmers of Russia lost 72,000 horses because of this scourge.

We may recall that about a decade ago a few shaving brushes made from horsehair were responsible for a small number of human cases. The articles in question had not been thoroly sterilized. The spores [seeds] of the germ remained and gained entrance thru tiny cuts, the result of shaving. Apparently this source has been completely stamped out and the hazard eliminated.

The infection is called "wool sorters' disease" in man and "splenic fever" in animals. The cause is the anthrax bacillus. This germ was utilized by Pasteur in his epoch making experiment in which he proved that sheep could be protected against the malady by vaccination. He safeguarded the beasts by inoculating them with bacteria which had been weakened by heat. The microörganisms were not strong enough to produce the distemper. Later, when virulent microbes were injected, every member of the flock remained perfectly well.

The disorder usually exhibits itself with an initial sore on the face or elsewhere in the body. Itching is followed by the appearance of a tiny red spot which resembles a flea bite. Later a small blister arises which contains a bluish colored fluid. This changes to a dark lesion which soon becomes gangrenous.

If swelling continues, fresh crops of blebs may be encountered and the adjacent lymph glands may enlarge and become firm. Local symptoms usually require from three to nine days for development. Next come the systemic manifestations which may include a sudden rise in temperature. This is a danger sign. Then it is that headache, nausea, and pain in the muscles may be accompanied by a slight jaundice and great prostration.

Sometimes contamination will take place thru the intestinal tract. In such an event, the patient is quite ill from the onset. Bleeding may be observed from the mouth, the nose, and the bowel.

In man, infection has ensued from contact with diseased animals, their hair, and hides. The only safe rule is to destroy by fire the carcass of a horse, for example, that has succumbed to the affliction. This protects the soil against pollution.

It is important to recognize the illness as promptly as possible. The lesions should be cauterized, using a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid, zinc chloride, nitric acid, etc. Some authorities, however, recommend surgical removal of the entire mass. Anti-anthrax serum may be relied upon and should be given before general symptoms become manifest.

The mere mention of "anthrax" carries terror to those who are truly familiar with the havoc that may follow its ravages. Its rarity, however, attests the progress that has been made in good sanitation and the care with which hides, furs, etc., are handled. In the conquest of this malady, great credit is due our veterinarians.

NO REMARKS FROM THE NICKEL SEATS.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 3—When Mr. Roosevelt returned from his transcontinental incognito entourage, he proceeded to shed for the nearly famished press flowers of rhetoric that were largely of the cactus plant variety. With his own happy background of perfection in word and deed known and read of all men, he proceeded to chide congress and heads, subheads, and dunderheads of burocratic classification, for divers and sundry views expressed outside the hallowed pale of high authoritative permission.

In view of the fact that the bill of rights guarantee of free speech and free press has a tendency to erode and interfere with New Deal philosophy, why not have an electric sign placed over the front portals of the White House displaying Gratiano's admonition in the "Merchant of Venice": "I am Sir Oracle, and when I ope my mouth, let no dog bark"—the White House purp, of course, being the only exception.

THE UKASE ON SPEEDING.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Gov. Green rightfully requests all motorists as a patriotic duty to observe the suggested 35 mile an hour speed limit, at the same time admitting that there is nothing that can be done about it legally under Illinois law until the legislature meets in January.

Now his acting chief of state police, Harry Ide, issues a statement that, beginning Oct. 1, motorists traveling over 35 miles an hour will be arrested and charged with reckless driving. In other words, a motorist who hasn't under our state law committed even a misdemeanor—speeding—will be charged with a felony, the penalty for which upon conviction can be as high as $500 or 90 days in jail for a first offense.

Aren't we fighting a war for the continuation of the privilege of being governed by laws rather than ruled by edicts? PULLMAN.

HOW BABIES MANAGE TO SLEEP.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—After reading all the complaints of night defense workers who say they can't sleep days because of various noises, I should like to say that several of my neighbors have babies that sleep soundly thru the noise made by small boys playing. There are two boulevards near by and construction work is being done on a block of defense houses, with a cement breaker going full blast. In spite of this the babies sleep. The reason they sleep is probably that they are put to bed to sleep, and not to see how miserable they can make their families and neighbors by complaining.

If you think it at all possible that we could have the original painting, we would have an everlasting remembrance of your generosity; and the joy that it will bring to us, if we could have it hung in our home, cannot be written in words.

LITTLE DICTATORS.

Richmond, Ill., Oct. 2—This morning my husband received a letter from a would-be dictator working for the Illinois State Council of Defense threatening him because we have not disposed of some machinery on our property here. Now, in April, my husband gathered together five tons of vital metal—copper, brass, aluminum, cast iron, and steel—and paid for hauling it to a Chicago scrap yard. If all the farmers hereabout were to do as well, I am sure our mills would not be asking for more scrap.

All of my life I have tried to be patriotic and both my husband and myself had great-grandfathers who fought in the Revolution, but when a swivel chair dictator writes me that we must sell necessary equipment, or else, I wonder what our ancestors fought for.

Is that freedom according to the bill of rights? What authority have the stockholders of the company over their employés? If a good man is working for them and they are well pleased with his work, they must still pay him off because he won't join the CIO. Where is freedom?

Chicago, Sept. 30.—I see that there is a shortage of citizens for jury service. No need for that. Hundreds of older citizens would be glad to serve.

VINCENT MANN SR.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Here in Chicago we have thousands of business men out of employment and ready to serve in any manner possible, but unable to secure employment because of age. They are men with fine, clean records as citizens. Why cannot they fill a jury box?

H. E. S.

SEVEN PER CENT ACCURATE.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Clark Lee of the Associated Press writes: "The Macassar battle was a series of running engagements in which our original claims to have sunk and damaged 60 Japanese ships were whittled down by a later check to four enemy ships damaged."

There was almost 7 per cent of the truth in the original report.

F. M. WARD.

"LET GEORGE DO IT."

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Today I watched a young girl collecting scrap. She asked her mother if she might use the wagon to haul the scrap to school. The reply was, "No, you've done your share. Let some one else do theirs." I hope all of us who call ourselves good Americans do not have the attitude of this mother.

V. M. MATTIS.

ROOT OF THE TROUBLE.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—At a recent high school discussion on "What Is Wrong with the World Today?" the remark was made: "There are too many overly ambitious individuals trying to force their ideas, regardless of merit, upon unwilling people."

TEACHER.

WHAT THE CONSTITUTION SAYS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Speaking of the 35 mile an hour speed limit, Hugh T. McCarthy, new chief of the Cook county highway police, said: "The President of the United States is my comamnder in chief, and this is a war measure." According to the Constitution, the President is commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States, but he is not commander in chief of any civilian activities or activities not related to the army, navy, or militia. It would be well to have this firmly imprinted in the public understanding, so that such mistakes as McCarthy's will become impossible.

AXEL HOLST.

HOSPITABLE TO BRITONS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—We are four British sailors here in Chicago, and we have just finished two weeks' leave in your grand city. It would be impossible for us to thank everybody here individually for the kindness shown us, and we would be grateful to you if you would express our gratitude to the good people of Chicago. We think the Service Men's center is a wonderful place, and really are sorry that we have to go back so soon. We thank Chicago for a grand time.

MAN POWER McNUTT.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—I read today the urgent request of Mr. Paul V. McNutt to freeze all so-called free men on jobs suitable to himself and the New Deal. This gent could find out what kind of luck Hitler has been having with slave labor, but by all means let's call congress together and have the last stroke of Hitlerism latched securely on, so we can cut defense production at least 25 to 40 per cent. All of us will give better service as free men than as slaves.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

EASEMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My neighbor and I share a party wall. The neighbor has no runners and no roof to speak of and when it rains it not only ruins her place but it has ruined my walls. We sleep in dampness and this has been going on for some time. Can I put a lien on her place for damages? She thinks because she is past 70 no one can do anything to her to put a stop to this.

M. J.

The rule is stated as follows in 67 C. J. 886: "Where an easement has not been acquired by grant or prescription, the owner of a building is required to take care of rain water falling on the roof by providing and keeping in serviceable condition gutters and spouts sufficient to carry off such precipitation as may reasonably be expected, and if by reason of his neglect water is shed from his roof onto or against the wall or building of another he is liable for any injury caused thereby." LEWIS PLEDGES MINERS TO BOOST VICTORY EFFORT

Reports 70,000 UMWA Members in Services.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 6 (AP).—John L. Lewis today urged his United Mine Workers of America to make greater contributions to the war effort, then turned over to them an officers' report outlining the union's stand on issues ranging from poll taxes to wage demands; from anti-union legislation to the St. Lawrence seaway.

John L. Lewis.

Smiling amid the cheers of 2,800 American and Canadian delegates to the union's 37th constitutional convention, the UMWA president announced that the international, districts, and locals had contributed nearly 40 million dollars to the war effort thru bond purchases and donations and had given nearly 70,000 men to the armed services.

Pledges All-Out War Effort.

Challenging other labor organizations to match the record, Lewis said:

"We will carry on until our armed forces triumph and our institutions are preserved—the miners are doing and will continue to do that kind of a job."

The report, largely a résumé of UMWA pronouncements on issues arising since the last biennial convention, hit especially hard at the 1942 tax bill now pending in congress.

"The 1942 bill," the report said, "indicates that congress will continue to shift the tax burden to the low income groups unless they receive clear and forceful indications from their constituents that they will be held accountable."

Fight Sales Tax Levy.

Urging every effort to prevent a sales tax, the report said the fight for a "fair tax bill" would be difficult because of "effective opposition of a big business lobby; and insufficient presentation to congress of their viewpoint by labor and other progressive groups."

In his address Lewis declared that living costs have increased disproportionately in mining communities, and that the $35 a week received by basic workers in the industry does not compare with wages in war industries.

Lewis mentioned no specific wage demands, but informed sources expect the convention to ask that the basic rate be increased from $7 a day to $9.

UMW LOCALS RAP HOODLUM TACTICS OF LEWIS BUDDIES

A repudiation of the hoodlum tactics used by followers of John L. Lewis, who recently split with the CIO, was seen yesterday when four of Lewis' United Mine Workers locals downstate named delegates to the 2d annual convention of the Illinois State Industrial union council [CIO] to be held in the Hamilton hotel Oct. 16.

The action by the unions came on the eve of the UMA convention, which opened yesterday in Cincinnati, O., and followed a warning given by Ray Edmundson, president of District 12, UMA, to locals in the district, last week not to elect delegates to the council, pending decision of the national UMW convention.

"Coming on the heels of the slugging of two CIO national representatives by UMW thugs in Springfield last week, the action of these locals is a repudiation of the tactics of UMW officials and is a positive indication that most UMW locals are anxious to participate in the coming state council meeting," Francis DeLaurie, council secretary-treasurer, said yesterday.

4 MORE JURORS NAMED TO HEAR SLUGGING CASE

Four more jurors were selected yesterday to try Harold E. Erlandson, 34 years old, a paroled convict, who is on trial before Judge Harold G. Ward of the Criminal court on a charge of assault to kill in a labor dispute. Four jurors were sworn in Monday. It is expected the jury will be completed today. Erlandson is accused of beating Lawrence Belles, 41, an insurgent member of the Gravel Roofers' union, because of Belles' efforts to get an audit of the union's books.

POCKET STOVES AND NEW FOODS MADE FOR ARMY

Importance of food as a weapon of war was stressed before 2,100 restaurant owners attending the war emergency conference of the National Restaurant association that opened yesterday in the Palmer House. The convention will continue thru tomorrow.

The problems met in feeding the armed forces were discussed by Col. R. A. Isker, quartermaster corps, United States army, and Maj. C. F. Kearney, representing the office of the quartermaster general.

The development of a six pound meat, "Defense Ham," and a special field ration for highly mobile units was explained by Col. Isker.

"A Defense Ham," said Col. Isker, "is a specially processed ham that is able to stand more rough handling and have better keeping qualities than the ordinary commercial product."

The speaker told of the development of a small grill for use by aviators on northern trails or by soldiers in general "so compact that it can be carried in the watch pocket and men at any distance from their base can produce cooked food from their field rations."

LABOR 'CAN TAKE WHAT IT TAKES TO WIN WAR'—F. D. R.

Hails Production Record of U. S. Workers.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt, praising the "splendid" production record of United States workers, today told the American Federation of Labor in a message to its convention he was certain "they can take whatever it takes to win this war."

"Everywhere during my recent inspection of war activity, I found the workers doing all that was laid out for them and more," said the President's message.

"At every turn they gave assurance that they can take whatever it takes to win this war.

"They are not afraid of hard, continuous, precise, and dangerous work. They are walking up to it as their duty and part in the war. They are proud of it."

President Sends Regrets.

The President acknowledged an invitation to attend the convention and expressed regret tnat the press of war affairs prevented him from accepting.

William Green, president of the AFL, answered that the federation "will respond to any request the President may make and every order which he may issue as commander in chief of the army and navy."

Green stressed that we "regard him as the commander of the army of production as much as he is the commander of the armed forces of the nation."

Foresees Labor Problems.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in an address prepared for the AFL, foresaw a future "full of problems" for American labor, but declared "no small privilege, no difference or dollars is worth the risk of delaying victory."

She asserted labor had thrown its resources, energy, and imagination into the war production battle and added that lost time during strikes since Pearl Harbor amounted to less than one-tenth of 1 per cent of available working time.

The executive council of the federation brought in a supplement to its annual report declaring unqualified support of the American Federation of Musicians in its dispute with record manufacturers and broadcasting companies and condemning the anti-trust division of the United States department of justice for the suit it has brought against the union. The report was referred back to committee and probably will be brought back to the floor for debate and convention action in a day or two. A hearing in the suit opens in Chicago on Monday.

The council's report said President James C. Petrillo of the musicians' union had instructed members, by direction of the union's convention in 1941, to cease making records and electrical transcriptions. It said the anti-trust suit unfairly aided the "arbitrary resistance" of employers who "have not shown a disposition to resolve this important controversy."

EX-JANITOR FOUND HANGED.

William Totte, 63 years old, a retired janitor, was found hanged yesterday in a closet in his home at 1255 Columbia avenue. His wife found the body suspended by a piece of electric light wire.

NEW CITIZENS OF TOMORROW RECORD TODAY

W-G-N Will Broadcast Program Sunday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fourth annual series of Citizens of Tomorrow broadcasts gets under way this afternoon. Students of Crane Technical High school will be on hand when the first program is recorded in W-G-N's main studio from 4:30 to 5 o'clock. This program will be broadcast over W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. next Sunday.

Philip Maxwell, as in other years, will be master of ceremonies; Beryl Vaughan and Bob Jellison will portray typical high school students. News of the salvage drive will be featured. William L. McFetridge, area salvage director, and Natha'el Leverone, state director, will speak.

Appearing on the Ginny Simms broadcast last night, Pvt. Phillip Miller was disappointed when his mother, Mrs. Fred Miller, 1423 Rosemont avenue, failed to answer. Then his mother entered the studio at Hollywood and presented him with a cake to mark his 26th birthday.

Jack Pearl became famous in radio as Baron Munchausen. When he comes back to W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 14, it will be as Alias the Baron from Holland, instead of Germany.

"After all," said Pearl, "how can I expect to compete with the biggest liar of them all, Adolf Hitler?"

News and notes: Lionel Barrymore and his "Mayor of the Town" series, which vacated the Jack Benny spot Sunday, is moving to 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, starting tonight, on CBS.

Tuesday assumed its full stature as radio's biggest laugh night last night. In this season's array of comedy on Tuesday are Al Jolson, Parkyakarkus [who has a new associate, Shakyakarkus], Duffy's Tavern with Ed Gardner, Ben Bernie, George Burns, and Gracie Allen; Fibber McGee and Molly, Bob Hope, Jerry Colonna and crew, and Red Skelton and company.

For any one who is still able to laugh on Wednesdays there are Eddie Cantor, Bob Burns and Tom, Dick and Harry.

ROOSEVELT PLANS FIRESIDE CHAT ON MANY TOPICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—President Roosevelt today announced he will deliver a fireside chat to the nation in a week or 10 days, shortly in advance of the November congressional elections.

The chief executive said there are a number of things that he would like to talk to the country about. At the same time, he disclosed, there are a number of things the country would like to have him speak about.

Asked whether his address would include a survey of the progress of the war, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not believe so because there is not any news in that. He said no date has been chosen for the talk.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

EXPLORES NOOKS OF PROVINCETOWN ON HER BICYCLE

Writer Finds Sea Village Full of Interest.

BY AGNES L. SCHMIDT.

Wausau, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—Nowadays, with gas and tire rationing as it is, visitors are using bicycles to see the sights in many of the towns in the United States.

The writer chose to get acquainted with the quaint little town of Provincetown, Mass., at the end of Cape Cod, by riding a bicycle down one street and back the other. [Provincetown is laid out with two main streets, each narrow, about three miles long, and joined with alleys.] When a place is worth investigating, the cyclist can leave his bike and explore around and ask questions until his curiosity is satisfied; then he can again pedal on his way.

The town by the seashore is a typical artists' colony. Points of interest include the Hawthorne house [Charles Hawthorne was the founder of the Cape Cod School of Art] and the Art association.

Houses Are Named.

Few house numbers can be seen from the street. As most of the houses take in roomers, they are named. Mayo's Cape-Codder, Old Whaler, Land's End, A Home at Last, Hatchway, Nautilus, Casa Loma, and the Bryant house are names one can read on artistically printed signs at various gates. Surrounded by flowers and enclosed with white picket fences, these Cape Cod homes look inviting.

One unpainted, woodshedlike building next to the sea also bears a title. The word "Loafers" is scrawled in white chalk. On the day we were there three men were lounging on a bench beneath the sign.

On lower Commercial street is the oldest house in Provincetown. It is now closed to visitors, but is known for its Dutch oven and outmoded chimney construction.

The Figure-Head, the Octagon, and the Delight houses have quaint stories. The Delight house holds a mystery that has not been solved. Perhaps you can solve it. Just beyond the bend at the west end of Commercial street is a little house with Victorian scrollwork around the porch, and designed in the scrollwork is the inscription: "J. Rogers—Delight—Delight—Delight."

Seafood Is Specialty.

Lanes, such as Daggett, Kiley, and Lovett's, connect the two main streets—Commercial and Bradford. "A Private Way; Dead End" or "One Way Street" accompanies the name of the lane.

Restaurants symbolize the "very lifeblood of the town"—fish. Advertisments of delicious seafood appear along the street. Fishing boats go in and out of the wharf, carrying silver perch, freshwater bass, pickerel, whiting, flounder, haddock, and pollock.

Historians say the Pilgrims landed in Provincetown 40 days before landing at Plymouth. In honor of this event there are markers of the Pilgrim Landing Spot, the Pilgrim Washing Place, and the Pilgrim Memorial Monument.

Graves of Mayflower Passengers.

At the end of Winthrop street is an old cemetery. Near the entrance is the oldest grave. It belongs to Desire Cowing and dates back to 1723. Here, too, is a tablet in memory of Dorothy May Bradford, drowned wife of William Bradford, and three other passengers who died while the Mayflower was in the harbor. [Bradford's grave can be found in Burial Hill cemetery at Plymouth.]

The Christopher Wren tower, atop the Universalist church, attracts many visitors. At the other end of the street, on the side toward the sea, the writer found the most fascinating, yet least advertised, spot in the town. The Church of St. Mary of the Harbor, a small, gray-blue Episcopal edifice, is surrounded by a picket fence and green hedge. The gate opens into a garden of flowers and religious symbols.

At one end of this garden is a small fish pond, and back of it stands the figure of Christ in the Garden, presented to the church by the former Vicar Nicholson. Near by is a wooden figure of St. Francis by Bogar. A wooden cross was erected in memory of the officers and crew of the United States submarine S-4, destroyed Dec. 17, 1927.

Shell from South Seas.

On the side of the church facing the garden is a Della Robbia, and near the church door lies a large shell, brought from the South seas and presented to the church. The bell was brought from Italy, and under the rope are these words:

From Barcelona of old renown
I crossed the sea to Provincetown.
Calbato made me without a flaw—
To be hung up here by Frederick Waugh.

The church was planned by Frederick Waugh, who lived part of his life in Provincetown. All painted figures inside the church were made by local artists. The original church, which is now the chancel, was at one time a sailmakers' home, and was built for seamen's worship.

What can you tell me about Jacksonville, Ore.? —H. B.

It is the gold strike city where, in 1851, the "Rich Gulch" became an Eldorado and attracted thousands of adventurers and fortune hunters. More than 30 million dollars worth of gold was extracted from that region, in the foothills of the Siskiyou mountains. Now Jacksonville is only a ghost town.

Entering the town, the tourist sees the white clapboard church built in 1864 and said to have been financed by winnings from gambling in the pioneer days. Still standing is the United States hotel, where President Hayes and Gen. Sherman each paid $100 for a night's lodging. Other places worth visiting are the Britt gardens and a museum containing souvenirs of the Pacific northwest. Nearby is Crater Lake National park, one of Oregon's beauty spots.

Skill, Honesty, Dignity Mark Maurois' Story

"I Remember, I Remember," by André Maurois. [Harpers, $3.] Published today.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

No autobiography of our day has been written with more literary skill, more dignity, more honesty than this great and modest Frenchman's. Put together with the exquisite art which characterizes the fugitive as well as the epochal work of André Maurois, these memoirs are at once a pattern for the skilled carpentry of a fine literary edifice and the beautiful furniture of words to adorn it. It is a book of great distinction.

There are, you will agree with me if you go over the autobiographies which have remained in your memory, two kinds: the ones which you remember for their fantastic adventure or their ultra intimate disclosures . . . the kind which took you out of yourself, or the kind which you remember for their seasoned, wise understanding of their subject . . . the kind which give you more understanding of yourself and new antennae toward life and mankind.

"I Remember, I Remember," is the kind of autobiography that faces its subject so honestly and with such dignity and understanding pictures him, that a reader knows not only the subject of the biography in an almost mystic clarity but himself and other men better.

"A book of intimate memories that reads like a novel," his publishers call this book of André Maurois', putting their finger on one of the most memorable qualities of his work—his genius in distilling from fact its essential fiction and in giving fiction the essential qualities of fact.

André Maurois is, you of course know, not his real name—or perhaps one should say that it is in the truest sense his real name, since André Maurois is the man he has made of himself. Until he published his first book, "The Silences of Colonel Bramble," during the first World war, when he was a liaison officer with the British army in France, André Maurois was Emile Herzog, son of a wealthy family of transplanted Alsatian weavers near Rouen and himself helping to manage the mill. As an army officer he was refused permission to publish the book under his own name.

"This disappointed me because as a young and unknown author," he writes, "almost the only readers I could count on were my friends. . . . Finally I resigned myself and selected the first name, André, in memory of my cousin who had been killed in action, and Maurois, the name of a village near Cambrai because I liked its sad sonority."

The life of Emile Herzog is as beautifully and understandingly chronicled as is the life of André Maurois, and both, altho geographically, and perhaps psychologically, they were lived in another "climate" than our own, have for every one deep and intense reality.

Mathematics Made Easy, Interesting in New Book

"A Mathematics Refresher," by A. Hooper. [Holt, $2.50.]

Books about mathematics have proved to be best sellers when they entertain the reader with the fantastic side of that science. But here is a book that became a best seller because it strips mathematics of all its trickery, its terrifying mystery, and makes it fascinatingly understandable even to one who struggled no farther than thru elementary algebra. Designed to help RAF flyers brush up on their math, it has been revised for American use and is a godsend for all who for business or pleasure want to master the use of figures.

MISS NORA PAUL.

So he's spending his Christmas overseas this year, that certain boy who's doing his bit for Uncle Sam! Then right now is when his gift must be mailed, and finding that gift is the problem of the hour. "That's where just the right book comes in," says Miss Nora Paul, manager of the Hyde Park Book Shop. "If his duties allow him even brief bits of leisure, he should enjoy one of the new humorous tales of army life, some light fiction, or a keen mystery story. Or choose one of his known favorites, so that he can pick it up from time to time when well-loved words mean so much." Miss Paul will be glad to help find the most suitable book for the boy you know, wherever he is. Since gifts to men overseas must be mailed this month to reach them by Christmas, it's a good idea to stop in now at the Hyde Park Book Shop, 1457 E. Shaw Revealed as He Really Is by Biographer

"G. B. S.," by Hesketh Pearson. [Harper's, $3.50.] Published last Thursday.

"The Grand Old Man of English Letters," they have the habit of calling George Bernard Shaw, but his biographer, in "G. B. S.," says: "The title of Grand Old Boy would have been far more fitting, for no one knew what he would be up to next."

What Shaw has all of his life been up to next is really the subject of this brilliant biography. It is in no sense a critical analysis of him as an artist. It is in every sense an uncritical synthesis of Shavianisms.

It has always been my theory that exposure to beauty, even if one doesn't realize that one is being exposed, "gives" it to one and that brilliance [as well as kindliness and good will and probably meanness] is as catching as measles. Never has there been better proof of that theory than this biography. For Hesketh Pearson has, by association with the character and genius of his subject, acquired the same swashbuckling attitude toward his hero that his here has had toward life.

Incidentally, Shaw has had so intimate a part in the preparation of this life that, with his recorded comments on all of the moot questions about his past which Mr. Pearson succeeded in getting him to make in the manuscript, and with the lengthy quotations from his works and from conversations with him, the book seems almost as much Shaw as Pearson.

I should say that any literary man who can make his biographer think and write like him should feel that, if not the last, at least the best word had been said about him.

There is nothing subtle about the analysis of Shaw's character, or of his relations with other people, in "G. B. S.," as there is, for instance, in André Maurois' autobiography, "I Remember, I Remember." But perhaps that is because Shaw has never really been a subtle character but an example of the utter simplicity of always doing what is NOT expected of one.

"G. B. S." is one of those biographies which completely take the reader out of himself, not only because its hero is an extrovert but because the things which he does and says, even when they border on the tragic, are words and deeds of egotistic action.

Shaw once said of a discussion in his youth, when one of the young clerks where he worked said that every young chap thought he was going to be a great man: "On a really modest youth this commonplace would have had no effect. It gave me so perceptible a jar that I suddenly became aware that I had never thought I was to be a great man simply because I had always taken it as a matter of course." Never once, in the 381 sparkling pages of this biography, is there any question on either the hero's, the author's, or the reader's part about Mr. Shaw taking it as a matter of course.

'The Boomer' Is Colorful Story of Railroad Life

"The Boomer," by Harry Bedwell. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]

Eddie Sand, one of the picturesque figures of recent fiction, is the "boomer" [an itinerant telegraph operator] in Harry Bedwell's exciting, colorful, and well written story of American railroad life a few decades ago. Generous, capable, and likable Eddie criss-crosses the continent, colliding with thrills and romance. A fascinating bit of Americana.

Wartime Food Tips Given in Recent Books

Food is going to play a large part in the winning of this war, and the more every person in the United States knows about nutrition, the more efficiently he or she can face the struggle for victory. If we all are able to plan and produce nourishing meals at a minimum cost in money for a maximum result in strength, our country has won not only a wartime but an ensuing peacetime victory.

Some excellent and helpful books toward that end have been published recently.

"The National Nutrition," [Bobbs-Merrill, $1.75] by Morris Fishbein, M. D., editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the health magazine, is a compact, simply written but highly educational little volume.

"The Nutrition Handbook," by Demetria Taylor [Doubleday-Doran, $2], is "a complete guide to the nutritional content of the food we eat" and contains graphic lists as well as informative talk.

"Wartime Meals" by Margot Murphy [Greenberg, $2], and "Thrifty Cooking for Wartime," by Alice B. Winn-Smith [Macmillan, $1.50], both offer the groping housewife a helping hand in the perplexity of adjusting the budget.

"Home Canning for Victory," by Anne Pierce [Barrows, $1.25], tells you how to dehydrate as well as how to can fruits and vegetables in the wartime manner. And "Stretching Your Dollar in Wartime," by Ruth Brindze [Vanguard, $1.75], tells how to get the best and most economical use out of food, your car, clothing, and all household goods and appliances.

An interesting and important book about "Food: A Weapon for Victory," by Bertram Fowler [Little-Brown, $1.50], outlines a plan for feeding the desolate, burned out populations of Europe. . . . F. B.

Escape Fashion Glitters, Helps Chase Jitters

BY REA SEEGER.

Glitters rout the jitters! Dresses to snap you out of the doldrums, dresses to make you sparkle and scintillate thru dull hours or dark days provide the best escape fashion of the season.

Vivid colors, with red leading and including bright blues, clear yellows and what are by far the smartest mauves, purples, and violets ever unpacked, are part of a new showing of colored daytime and dress parade dresses now featured in one smart Chicago shop.

Streamlines are spartan plain and straight, without a bit of excess fullness and with no cluttery array of doodads, tucks, ruffles or frou frou. They're just figure revealing silhouettes in brilliant, heart-warming color. You get shine and shimmer with sequins, twinkling jet beads, and the old fashioned bugle bead accent.

Scarlet wool dresses feature designs in a diagonal pattern worked in scarlet iridescent sequins. Lipstick red dresses are dramatized with jet beadwork in shiny black. You will find blue sequins, copper sequins, and gold beading on blue, cinnamon, and gold colored dresses.

The most daringly sophisticated black costumes shimmer constantly because of the wealth of shiny black sequins used for the yoke, entire short sleeves, and sometimes the entire dress in all over patterns. Chiffon thin wool, satin, crêpe, or combinations of all feature sequin accents. Dazzling results are achieved in gay winter prints, paisleys, and eye blinding prints of almost surrealistic splendor in striking color combines with every inch of the designs outlined with either multicolored beads or sequins.

Wear one of these new firefly frocks under your dark, severely simple winter coat and you have one of the smartest and most unusual costumes of wartime fashions.

Looking at Hollywood . . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 6.—Mary Pickford was not operated on in New York. She went into the hospital for observation. She'll be joined by Buddy Rogers, and they'll have a 10 day furlough in Hollywood. Mary's trouble is a kidney stone, and dangerous. . . . Now that "Old Acquaintance" has been postponed to give Bette Davis a rest, Miriam Hopkins is vacationing in New York. Two producers have tried to grab her for a play. . . . I understand Mickey Rooney is going to let the court decide on Ava Gardner's settlement. That's smart figuring. . . . Ken Murray deserves the title given his "Blackouts"—"The Talk of the Town." It is—and it's "Standing Room Only." Congrats, Ken! . . . Ilka Chase wants another picture. Well, who doesn't? . . . Hollywood canteen busboy, Mervyn Le Roy, is on his way to huddle with Arthur Hornblow in New York over "Mary Smith, U. S. A." . . . Guy Kibbee doesn't wait for producers to bite. He's more concerned about the fish nibbling in the high Sierras. . . . Richard Smart, who sings at Mocambo nights, does camouflaging by day. Turns both salaries over to Pearl Harbor relief. Yes, he was there. . . . Joe Schenck playing gin rummy at Arrowhead.

Miriam Hopkins.

Now He Knows.

There may be lifting of eyebrows because Harry Edington has gone back to RKO as a producer. I think that studio's smart. Harry swung around the country to find out what the public wanted. He tells me that increase in theater attendance is defense workers, boiler makers, etc. Pictures must be geared for them. In Norfolk, Va., for instance, a small theater held over that oldie, "Gambling Lady," with Stanwyck and McCrea, and they loved it. . . . In my mail there have been many requests for a revival of "Mr. Chips." Why not? It's still one of the best pictures ever made. . . . I couldn't be happier that Spring Byington is getting the parts she deserves after all these years. She'll play a different mother in "Gentle Annie"—a strong willed but lovable character who's the mainspring of the family. Picture also has Bob Taylor, Susan Peters, and Bob Sterling.

Sure, It's a Free Country.

I suppose that's the reason little J. Ruddy, a British correspondent for some Australian monthly, felt it his duty to hiss my name as they showed one of my shorts at a preview of "The Major and the Minor." Ruddy's made a mighty fine living around here, and I can understand why he'd hiss my name because I've never stopped fighting for our American actors and actresses, and I never will. If he could read my fan mail perhaps he'd keep quiet. When it was announced Charles Laughton was going to do the Bill of Rights in a picture, a fan in Trenton, N. J., wrote: "Just once before I died I'd like to hear an American actor giving out with a bit of American history. Even Custer's last stand had to be played by an Englishman. And what about the commentator I heard over the air who said all the English actors in Hollywood were being recalled to England because they were needed over there?" Well, the only one so far who says he's going is Ian Hunter. And a columnist from our town said: "If all the British from our town were to go over there wouldn't be enough ships to carry them." Then came a letter from an old timer who played a bit in Jack Barrymore's "Sherlock Holmes." At one time he shared a dressing room with Reggie Denny, Bill Powell, and Roland Young. "Of this quartet I'm the only one who was thrown in the ashcan. Sure, I'm older, but I'm only 60. There are lots of 60 year olds working on the screen. This year my total income has been $160." But then he's an American. Sure, I'll fight for those people. They're my own. And isn't that what we're fighting this war for? The right to live, work, and have a little happiness. So go ahead, Mr. Ruddy—hiss. I'll always have enough friends among your foreign correspondents to report what goes on.

The coast critics are going to be hard put to say nice things about Diana Barrymore in "Between Us Girls," after the panning she got from the New York press. Boy! Did they let her have it? . . . Elmer Davis says that every top radio star will devote 30 to 60 seconds a week on war effort. Well, on my own show I've been doing that for nine months, and mighty happy for the opportunity, too . . . and I had a note from Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois expressing his appreciation for an editorial I did on the air which was used by the Illinois war bond speakers' bureau. . . . Herman Mankiewicz has an assignment he's "nerts" about. He's again doing something for Tracy. This time, "The Strange Adventure."

Interview Develops.

When Eleanor Harris went to interview Margaret Lindsay she found Margaret had a flair for writing, so the two girls are collaborating on a play based on Maggie's experiences getting into pictures. . . . Winnie Sheehan may be back in the picture business again. He's trying to buy Jack Douglas' story of "Miss Agatha, Inc." It's a honey. . . . A new picture magazine, just out, is filled with dynamite, plus TNT. It gives. . . . Leo McCarey was a little dubious about a sequence in "Once Upon a Honeymoon" which has a concentration camp filled with Jews chanting music for the dead. At the sneak the Inglewood preview audience ate it up. . . . Gracie McDonald is good luck for Leighton Noble, David Street, and Michael Moore. She tested with them, and Universal signed all three. . . . Paul Meltsner's painting of Carmen Miranda soon will be hanging in the National Museum of Brazil at Rio de Janeiro. His portrait of Gertrude Lawrence won't go to the London National gallery till after the war.

If you want to be sure your nylon and other hosiery will give maximum wear, try washing with a specially prepared "pine" jelly which removes soil and neutralizes acids. Altho this is made for fine hosiery it's good, too, for your best lingerie and woolly sweaters. Its makers claim it costs only half a cent for each washing. You use cool, not warm water in the process.

Good Morning!

KIND: This one small capsule, "Guerrilla Brigade," contains a sample of the courage, fortitude, enthusiasm and ingenuity which have made our Russian ally such a bitter dose for Nazi consumption. . . . The action dates back to 1918 and the invasion and repulse of the Hun in the Ukraine. But the story is, practically, the story of today and Russia's magnificent stand against Hitler's hordes.

ACTING: Perfectly natural and perfectly coördinated. . . . Lev Sverdin as Chubenko, the Guerrilla Brigade's steel worker leader, and Stephen Shkurat as his peasant colonel were apparently deliberately picked for their resemblance to officers who led the Ukrainian armies against the German armies in 1918.

DIRECTION: Astute.
SETS and SCENERY: Authentic.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Magnificent.

STORY: Depicts with mounting suspense the manner in which a band of outraged peasants, steel workers, fishermen, etc., under the leadership of one of their own people, uprooted deep lying plans of the enemy.

DIALOG: Russian and German, with explanatory English titles.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Tremendous. The picture teems with absorbing incident and voila [said she in French], here and there is a satisfying laugh.

See you soon.

500 Member Groups Active in PTA's Health Program

More than 500 member associations of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers are participating in the annual fall health check-up of children entering school for the first time, Mrs. Leonard H. Graff of Elmhurst, state chairman of the health project, announced yesterday. The congress will give certificates to the newcomers in the schools who are free from the remedial defects discovered in a state-wide vacationtime clinic known as the summer roundup.

Music Notes

Young men and women instrumentalists from all over the country are arriving to audition for coveted places in the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, orchestral training school maintained by the Chicago Symphony orchestra since 1919 and presided over by Frederick Stock and Hans Lange. String players will be heard Saturday morning in Orchestra hall, and wind and percussion players next Monday afternoon. Applicants must register at the office of the Chicago Symphony on the sixth floor of Orchestra hall before auditions.

Approximately 110 players are selected each year from 200 to 300 applicants. Members of the orchestra in past seasons must audition with new arrivals. A $35 tuition fee pays for classes in orchestral repertory, full and section rehearsal, sight reading, harmony, and theory. More than 300 young musicians so trained have gone to important posts in almost every major symphony orchestra in the United States. About 50 are members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The Art institute announced yesterday that its Free Midday Victory concerts will be resumed in Fullerton hall at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 14, when Daniel Saidenberg conducts the Illinois WPA Symphonic ensemble. These concerts, co-sponsored by the Chicago Office of Civilian Defense, were initiated successfully last spring when 7,988 persons attended 16 performances in the little concert hall.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

One of the most vital war jobs a woman can undertake today is that of ordnance inspector. This fact was brought sharply home yesterday by a woman to women when Marjorie Letts, onetime champion golfer, political worker, and career woman, spoke to fellow members of the Fashion Group at the Arts club.

Recently graduated as an ordnance inspector from the Illinois Institute of Technology, Mrs. Letts has been assigned to recruiting work, attached to the offices of the Chicago ordnance district.

"Of the 3,600 inspectors in plants and factories of this district—the largest in the country—800 are women," said Mrs. Letts. "Since the younger men are being drafted into the army at the rate of four or five a day, it becomes imperative that they be replaced by women."

MRS. MARJORIE LETTS.

Mrs. Letts described the many interesting angles of this important type of job, and the tremendous feeling of pride it gives a woman to know she is doing her utmost, as a trained worker, to see that arms and ammunition reach the men of the fighting forces.

The course in ordnance inspection, which formerly required 12 weeks, has been shortened to nine weeks, and the requirements also have been lowered to admit applicants who are high school graduates.

Mrs. Letts chose to make her first "recruiting speech" before the Fashion Group, of which she is a charter member, as a springboard from which she will launch into a program of addressing clubs and organizations to acquaint them with the need for women in this branch of the government's services.

As a member of the civil service board of review she will have the power to approve applications for the ordnance inspection training. She also will give detailed information on the new shortened course, during which students are paid while learning. Her offices are with the Chicago ordnance district, room 954, First National Bank building.

L. C. Long of the Employés club of the Hyland Electrical Supply company writes in an idea that other employé groups might be interested in using. He says: "The girls in our office wanted to do something as a group for 'our boys' in addition to each one's outside activities, so they formulated the plan of every other week baking cakes or cookies and sending the contribution to one of the various service men's centers.

"Then the thought came that other offices might like to do the same thing, so we pass along the idea of 'Cake for the Doughboys' clubs.

"It isn't much from any one to any one, but add up the number of offices in or near the loop—it would mean quite a lot for the countless uniforms that pass daily thru our town."

There are two "firsts" among the women employés at the Green River ordnance plant of the Stewart-Warner corporation. To Ruth Crombie of Dixon goes the honor of being the first to be accepted in the WAVES for training as an officer candidate. After completion of her studies at the University of Illinois, where she majored in history, Miss Crombie was a grade school teacher until last March, when she accepted employment in the ordnance plant. She reported yesterday at the Northampton, Mass., training school on Smith college campus.

The other pioneer is Orpha Sullivan, the first woman to accept employment on the Green River ordnance plant lines. She is now going thru a rigid training period which will enable her to live up to the production code of "Safety, Quality, Quantity." Like other workers in this highly important field, Miss Sullivan is proud of being called a production soldier.

The Association of Army Wives, of which Mrs. Carter Collins is the organizer, will meet at luncheon at 1 o'clock today at the Army-Navy club in the Fine Arts building. This will be a combination luncheon and business session devoted to completing the framework of the association here in Chicago. The purpose of this organization is to provide wives and mothers of service men—either army or navy—with information about insurance, services, etc., and to point out ways and means for the women at home to contribute to the war effort.

Among those attending the luncheon will be Mrs. Millard Kennedy, executive chairman, and Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, chairman of the new association. James B. Forgan of the Red Cross, Mrs. Sartelle Brooks of the Chicago service men's center, and Mrs. Watson McLallen of the American Women's Voluntary services and Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall of the Institute for Family Living have been invited to the luncheon. Lieut. Col. Roscoe Snapp, special services officer of the 6th service command, and Mrs. Fredrick Rogers of Fort Sheridan are also expected to attend.

A group of 83 young men from draft boards 12 and 90 will be guests at a selectee's breakfast tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock at the South Shore civilian defense office, 2454 East 75th street. Official hostesses will be women of zone 3, block 24, headed by Mrs. George Spencer, chairman of women's activities; Mrs. Sara B. Goodman, chairman of selectees' breakfasts, and their lieutenants.

The fame of these breakfasts, at which lively entertainment as well as hot coffee and doughnuts for the young men and their families and gifts of cigarets are provided, has spread far and wide, and their success is being emulated in other areas.

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and answers questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Thru the Looking Glass

Maybe you remember hearing that the sale of smelling salts is booming. It's true. There are some interesting reasons for it.

It isn't because we are having the vapors, or war jitters. It's because we're such busy women these days, because we are so first-aid conscious, and just because women are rediscovering something their grandmothers knew—that a whiff of smelling salts helps you to feel fresh and look alive when you're exhausted.

Some enterprising firms in the beauty field are turning out smelling salts that are excellent. A little different, too, from the old models. One house, famous for fine toiletries and the spicy fragrance that distinguishes its products from all others, has just brought out a 1942 model in smelling salts that would be a welcome helper in almost any women's pocketbook or desk.

These aren't the overpowering kind that stand your hair on end and make your eyes water. They're gentler, but wonderfully refreshing, and their scent is spicy and clean. We recommend them highly for busy women, in factories, in offices, or up to their eyes in exhausting war work. Whip them out of your pocket or handbag when you need mild reviving, or when you're nervous. They really help.

The little bottle is a ring-shaped adaptation of a tiny antique, with the modern note of a nonpriorities wooden cap. It's a pretty little thing you'll enjoy carrying. Best of all, you'll enjoy what the aromatic, freshly scented contents do for you when you're in danger of drooping.

'Our Betters' Proves Out of Place in 1942

BY CECIL SMITH.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—Somerset Maugham's "Our Betters" was revived tonight as the second attraction in the four week season of legitimate stock productions sponsored at the Pabst theater by the Milwaukee theater committee. The play, a transient comedy of two decades ago, was acted by a cast headed by Constance Collier and Violet Heming, and directed by Arthur Sircom. "Our Betters" will continue at the Pabst thru next Sunday, and will be replaced next Tuesday by the first midwestern production of Helen Jerome's new drama, "Charlotte Corday."

Back in 1918, when "Our Betters" was first staged in New York, its theme possessed a timeliness which has now disappeared completely. The four principal women of the play are all Americans who have married for titles and foreign social position, and who have settled down in London for vacuous careers of petty intrigue.

Not a single husband appears in the play. The masculine characters are hangers-on around the fringe of the petty life of as unlovely a group of hollow-souled women as ever were collected on a single stage.

The current world war has at least one benefit to its credit—the utter annihilation of a social scheme in which such vacuity of existence could exist, and even be widely admired. If Somerset Maugham had found a way to treat his subject so that it partook of some universal and continuing truth, "Our Betters" might not now be the hollow shell it seemed tonight. Not even his copious fund of surface chitchat and brittle drawing room repartee makes the play more than a dismal anachronism. A revival of it at this particular stage of the world's history is so inappropriate as to seem in positively bad taste.

Miss Collier, who has been associted with the rôle of the duchess since the London première of "Our Betters," offered a performance of considerable virtuosity, with tigerish malice in the scene in which she exposes her best friend when she discovers that the friend has made off with her own young gigolo. Her talents, and those of Miss Heming, whose comic technique has come to place undue reliance on frozen mannerisms of speech and gesture, might better have been lavished on another script.

Others in the cast—all better than the play they appeared in — were Ralph Clanton, Evan Thomas, Stanley Bell, Edward Harvey, and Tom Rutherford.

Irving Literary Group to Open Its 65th Season

The Irving, which claims to be Chicago's oldest literary club, will open its 65th season Friday with dinner at the Union League club, Dr. H. D. Davies presiding.

Stage Notes

"Porgy and Bess," the famous folk opera by George and Ira Gershwin and Du Bose Heyward, will open a Chicago engagement at the Studebaker theater Nov. 2. The performance will be conducted by Alexander Smallens, and the cast will include Todd Duncan, Etta Moten, Ruby Elzy, Avon Long, Georgette Harvey, and the Eva Jessye choir.

The city's two current musicals will close a week from Saturday, on Oct. 17. "Best Foot Forward" will quit the Studebaker at that time, leaving the Michigan avenue house dark for a fortnight until the arrival of "Porgy and Bess." "New 1943 Hellzapoppin" will depart for Milwaukee, leaving the Erlanger with no immediate commitment, unless "Priorities of 1942" should unexpectedly hasten this way.

Hunter Trials to Be Held at Galloping Hills

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS F. SWIFT are hoping their Galloping Hills in Wheaton will be painted in the brightest fall colors by a week from Sunday, for on that day they plan to open the rolling grounds of their farm for hunter trials. The Swifts are known as two of Chicago's most ardent horse show enthusiasts — their Galloping Hills Horse show for the last two seasons has drawn large crowds out to Wheaton. Their latest venture, a benefit for the Chicago Maternity center, is designed as the type of informal competition which all spectators can enjoy and all hunters can enter.

Starting at 1:30 o'clock on the 18th there'll be classes for lightweights, middleweights and heavyweights; for pairs of jumpers over the outside ring and for working hunters.

Obstacle Race to Be Feature of the Trials.

A novel feature will be an obstacle race, involving such obstacles as garden settees, tables, stepladders and bales of hay, in which "anything on four legs" may be used as a mount. The obstacle race will be run within the ring, but all other events will be held outside.

On the night before the trials the Swifts will give an outdoor barbecue before a giant bonfire for all the exhibitors. The Galloping Hills club, the popular little open air commissary within a grove of trees at the farm, will be open again and the hosts are hoping that Rochester, who served as the late Jarvis Hunt's butler for a number of years, may be lured from his defense job long enough to preside as major domo.

The hunter trials will be open to the public at a general admission charge of 50 cents. The entrance fee for the hunters will be $1 per horse.

Charles L. Hutchinson Home to Be Opened to Public.

The Charles L. Hutchinson home, which used to be a center of Chicago social life in the days when handsome broughams and victorias whirled down the Midway, once more will attract a large gathering within its stately doors this week-end. The historic house at 5115 Cornell avenue, since 1919, has been the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dickey, who are opening it to the public on Saturday and Sunday under the sponsorship of the Cordon club, of which Mrs. Dickey is president. The house originally was built by Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's grandfather, B. F. Hutchinson, as a wedding present for his son, Charles L. Hutchinson.

Groups will be taken thru the house every half hour on the two days, and many of the hostesses will be in costumes reminiscent of early Chicago days. Miss Alice Wadsworth, daughter of James Wadsworth, founder and first settler of Woodlawn, will wear her mother's wedding gown. Mrs. Lyle Harper, whose grandfather, Paul Cornell, was known as "the father of Hyde Park," will appear in a dress of Irish crochet lace which was made in Paris for Mrs. George Cornell to wear to the opening of the Washington Park race track.

Edward L. Hicks III. to Be Married in East Oct. 29.

Mrs. Edward Livingston Hicks Jr. will be going east later this month for the marriage of her son, Edward L. Hicks III., and Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant Kean. Also making the trip will be the bridegroom's sister, Betty, who attends the North Shore Country Day school, and their great-

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Imagine.

A certain lecturer makes no bones of the fact that an audience to her is as heady wine. Not long ago she attended a fashion show thru which she sat silently uncomprehending. "Imagine," she said, indicating the models with a magnificent wave of her hand, "standing up before 250 women and not saying a word!"

Another Why Not.

"Why not join the American Victory patrol as a means of investing your time and talents in those after office hours?" asks Helen Hardin. "At any meeting you may find a personnel adviser, an office manager, a secretary, teacher, copy writer, homemaker, defense plant worker, doctor's assistant or a radio commentator. It meets every Wednesday evening [new members come at 7 o'clock, other members at 7:30.] The group gathers at 140 South Dearborn street in the Commonwealth auditorium."

Charline Osgood, a Chicago radio actress, is the national organizer. "It is geared to the purse of the average woman with limited time to serve OCD, Red Cross, Nurse's Aid, USO, service men's center, treasury bond sales, British war relief, etc.; so every woman can feel she can join a corps and lend her services," writes Miss Hardin. "Needless to say these white collar girls, working together in a fine allegience and purpose, are not aimless nor lonely."

Eavesdropping.

In the bookkeeping department: "They call her 'Helen of Troy.' Hers is the face that launched a thousand slips."

At the counter: "I can remember when a ceiling was something flies walked on."

Dis and Data.

Marian Smith of Flossmoor, reports the FBI Gal, is one of the recent white collar girls who set aside her white collar for the trim uniform of an officer in the WAVES. . . . The WPB made a check of the popularity of cosmetics, using army and navy women employés for the survey. Lipstick and face powder lead in popularity with perfumes and toilet waters the runners up. . . . One of the north shore suburbs has a fascinating new doctor and it's not a gent but a feminine M. D. who has returned to her profession [after several years of domesticity] to do her bit in the present shortage of physicians.

Margerie Barker, an Evanston telephone operator, put her "devotion to duty" slogan into practice even on her vacation. Traveling to Texas via coach train she refused to take a seat because of several hundred soldiers who boarded the train after a day of drill. "You are in service and may be on duty as soon as you arrive in San Antonio and I'm only on a vacation," she said. She weighs 100 pounds. . . . K. Jacobi writes that she, too, loves the little candy mice mentioned in a column of the last week. "Many's the time my aunt brought us candies from this shop in the days when she wore long trains and my uncle wore a silk topper. . . . They told us children the candies came from a 'swell' place on State street and told us how the elite would go there after the opera or a theater party."

You doubtless don't need a reminder, but HAS your office collected all possible items for the scrap campaign?

WAVES Prove True Sailors on Lake Cruise

BY MARTHA MURPHY.

The WAVES went to sea yesterday. They manned the helm, lounged in the wardroom, sipped coffee from heavy navy mugs, ate navy chow, and in their best seamanlike manner called on Lieut. Comm. James M. Ross, commanding officer of the U. S. S. Wilmette, anchored near the flat top Wolverine.

Altho landlocked by congress, seven of the WAVES ensigns assigned to the 9th naval district and Lieut. Mary Daily of the office of naval officer procurement shipped aboard the coast guard cutter Minoco for a special indoctrination cruise.

Lieut. Daily was especially happy yesterday because the 9th naval district surpassed its enlistment quota of 320 noncommissioned WAVES by Oct. 8 with 355 enrolled by yesterday afternoon.

"My heart can't stand much more. It just can't," sighed Ensign Helen Stewart of Williamsport, Ind., as the Minoco slipped alongside the Wilmette and the WAVES climbed aboard to salute the quarter deck and the officer of the day.

They sat in the captain's cabin and chatted with Lieut. Comm. Ross. They scampered up the ladders to the bridge, carefully avoiding the eyes of watching ensigns.

"Why, this is all just like we learned from books at Smith!" exclaimed Ensign Miriam Ransburg of Indianapolis, Ind. All seven ensigns were commissioned at the WAVES training school at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., Sept. 30.

Back aboard the Minoco the WAVES brushed each other's shoulders—"perennial gesture with us," Ensign Irene M. Teets, 5468 Harper avenue, called it—and descended to the wardroom.

They took turns serving coffee and hamburgers wrapped in French bread an inch thick to Lieut. Comm. S. A. Bishop and Lieut. D. C. Zimmerman of the office of naval officer procurement and Lieut. [j. g.] E. D. Lyman of the coast guard, captain of the port and host to the WAVES yesterday.

Earlier in the day they relayed in "relieving the wheel."

"When you turn the wheel you don't expect anything to happen, but all of a sudden it does," remarked Ensign Janet Marks of Milwaukee, Wis.

"You're right, it does," answered Lieut. Zimmerman teasingly as other ensigns, Verona L. James, 2110 Sherman avenue, Evanston, and Mary Richmond, 7811 South Paulina street, relieved the wheel.

With the exception of the visit to the Wilmette the WAVES were most impressed by the efficient arrangement of the Minoco's galley, the baths and showers connected to the aft staterooms, and the fluttering of the flag on the quarterdeck. They enjoyed naval terminology, like "the smoking lamps are lit" for "you may smoke if you wish." They were amused by the way the water rose and fell in the locks, like water in a bathtub, as they entered the Chicago river. And they can hardly wait to sail on the Betty Bro tomorrow night and to accept an invitation to board the Wolverine. All will be assigned to district recruiting offices the end of this week.

"A four point o [perfect] time, it was," sighed Ensign Teets as the Minoco docked. "Yes, sir, a four point o time."

Draft of the Kennel.

Maybe you are unaware of the selective service board for dogs, but it now operates seven days a week at 228 North La Salle under the alliterative name, Dogs for Defense. It operates with the army's prayerful sanction, but without its subsidy, and its goal is to persuade 10,000 Illinoisans to relinquish their dogs to the army before the end of 1943.

So far, it has 300 dogs on file, each catalogued neatly as to its draft status. Any dog who can summon a quick snarl and an imposing mien, such as a Dobermann Pinscher, German shepherd, boxer, airedale or Dalmatian, goes promptly into 1A. The army [with a beautiful disregard for once of sex] wants him or her as quickly as possible. Collies go into the 1B classification, as they are comparatively unaggressive, mild mannered and unadaptable. Big, pugnacious dogs who might otherwise go into 1A go into 3A if they have a brood of nursing pups, a skin rash or an indisposition that can be overcome. All hound or field dogs now are going into 1B, as they are too easily distracted from their work by scent. Altho some of the best dogs in the army now are Irish setters, none is being accepted at present. The saddest group of all are the otherwise very nice dogs who are going into 4F. Into this go cocker spaniels, Flemish schipperkes, fox terriers, wire hairs and all small dogs. Gerald Murphy, regional director of D. for D., a dog trainer and radio tube salesman who is in 3A himself and has to have an AA2 priority to sell his radio tubes, says it isn't that they are not good dogs. They are. But they are unimposing in size. "They don't make a noise loud enough to scare any one," he says. "If I were going to have a dog come after me, I'd rather have a cocker than any dog I know."

Many highly bred bluebloods have been listed with Dogs for Defense here. Two champions went Sunday in the first shipment of 37. Every dog retains his own name in the army, and his D. for D. number is tattooed on his ear. That and his name and age are listed on the army crate in which he goes off to war. Each then goes to a six or eight week school, where he is trained in obedience and his aptitudes determined. We gather this is something like a private's three month basic training except that a private has to clean up after the dog and a dog can never qualify as an officer candidate.

And if you have an afghan hound, you might just as well cuddle up in his fur and keep warm yourself, for the army has yet to find a place for him.

Book Title.

A girl we know received a letter this week from a soldier she knows pretty well. As a postscript he wrote, "Consult the title of Ludwig Bemelman's latest book." On her way home from work she stopped in a book store. A priest, two business men and an elderly woman were waiting at the counter as she leaned toward the clerk and said, "I don't want to buy anything, but can you tell me the name of Ludwig Bemelman's new book?" The clerk, a nice, friendly man, leaned far over the counter and whispered, "'I Love You, I Love You, I Love You.'" The girl, her face crimson, turned and ran.

P. S. The boy is coming home on furlough this week-end.

The first Christmas advertisement came in this morning's mail. It announces a special sale of monogrammed auto robes. For Christmas, 1942? Who's mad now?

"Blind Man's Bluff"

By Baynard Kendrick

SYNOPSIS.

For eight years Julia Hadfield has been separated from her husband, Blake, who has prevented her getting a divorce for fear she will marry Phil Courtney, their lawyer. Two years after the separation Blake, president of a trust company that failed, was shot and blinded by James Sprague, a depositor, who afterwards committed suicide, according to police. Now, Julia's and Blake's son, Seth, is engaged to Sprague's daughter, Elise. Seth and Elise have a dinner date with Julia but they quarrel because Elise feels she cannot marry the son of the man her father blinded. Seth gets drunk and goes to his father for help. Together, at night, they go to Blake's old office in the trust building. Blake seems to have something there that will help Seth in his quarrel with Elise. Inside the office, Blake has Seth get a tin cash box from a wall safe, and then pour the two of them a drink from the scotch in the safe. Seth leaves the office to connect the telephone for his father, and after he connects it he stops at Elise's desk, where she works for Bentley, controller for the receivership. There he falls asleep. In the meantime Blake telephones Phil, and then Julia, to come down to the office. When Julia enters the building Blake plunges over the eighth floor railing to his death. Almost at the same moment Inspectors Archer and Davis arrive, summoned early by a murder call. Seth is arrested. Lawson, investigator for the state insurance and former auditor for Sprague's investment company, brings the case to the blind detective, Capt. Maclain. Sybella Ford, whom Blake left a legacy, comes with Lawson to see Maclain.

INSTALMENT IX.

PESTERED INTO SERVICE.

Julia nibbled at a piece of toast and found it tasted better than she expected.

"I've already been burning up the phone." Elise lit a cigaret and sat on the foot of the bed. "I told Mr. Bentley I wouldn't be down today. The place is a beehive of curiosity. Most exciting, from what he said on the phone."

"Elise!"

"I'm sorry, Jule." She patted Julia's knee. "But you're making yourself ill over nothing, aren't you? After all—"

"After all, Blake was my husband and Seth's father, and the police are holding Seth in jail."

"And after all, Blake is dead." Elise inhaled soberly. "And about that, mother-in-law o' mine to be, there is nothing any one can do. You've scarcely seen him in years, so his absence can't have much effect on Seth or you."

"You sound cold-blooded, darling." Elise grinned impishly. "Mr. Courtney will be here shortly.

"You're going to fix your hair in its snazziest curl and put on your vamp-'um outfit of oyster gray. Then we're going downtown with Mr. Courtney and bail young Ten-Nights-in-a-Barroom out of the can."

"Darling, are you sure?"

"Mr. Courtney's preparing a writ of habeas corpus. They have nothing to hold Seth on at all. Mr. Courtney says he'll have him out today."

"Out," said Julia slowly, "but still not in the clear." A buzzer sounded in the kitchenette. "There's Phil now, Elise. See, will you?"

She found a suit of lounging pajamas and slipped them on. Scarcely stopping to pat her hair into a semblance of order, she headed for the living room to stop embarrassed in the door. Harold Lawson, occupying the biggest armchair, she knew. The tall, self-assured man in faultless dark gray, companioned by the even more self-assured shepherd dog she had never seen before.

He stood up as she entered and made his own introduction.

"Mrs. Hadfield?"

"Yes." Julia walked forward, puzzled a mite, to take his outstretched hand. Nearer, she saw the blankness of his perfect eyes and realized that he was blind.

"I'm Duncan Maclain."

"I barged in on Captain Maclain this morning before he had finished breakfast," Lawson explained. "He's one of the best private investigators in the country."

Julia said, "O, yes, captain. Do sit down."

Lawson continued, "I understand they're holding your son. That seems utterly ridiculous, Mrs. Hadfield. Due to the fact that Mr. Hadfield was blind, I've been fortunate enough to interest the captain in helping us to clear things up."

"I'm also blind," said Duncan Maclain.

Julia covered a momentary agitation by sitting down. Tragedy, overwhelming in import, wasn't enough. It had been turned into opera bouffe.

"I don't quite understand," said Julia formally.

"How I can help, Mrs. Hadfield? That's not to be wondered at." There was a sympathetic understanding in the richness of his voice that quieted Julia's irritation with soothing magic.

"Mrs. Lawson has talked with your attorney earlier this morning. I understand your son will be released today. That's scarcely enough, is it?"

"It's all I want, Captain Maclain," Elise put in. "I want him back again to tell him that when I broke our engagement last night I acted like a fool."

"You're not his mother, Miss Sprague. You're his sweetheart," said Duncan Maclain. "Mrs. Hadfield knows her son is innocent and so do you. He can still be executed—and both of you will die with him."

"Executed!" Julia breathed the word thru a throat violently constricted.

"By public opinion," said Duncan Maclain. "Your husband was blind, Mrs. Hadfield. I know what goes on in a blind man's mind—how he thinks, reacts, and feels. Has your son said why he went to the office with his father?"

"I saw him only a few minutes last night before they——" Julia paused to get her thoughts in hand. "He said his father had told him he might patch up the quarrel between my boy and Elise. Seth was intoxicated, Captain Maclain. He was in no condition to know."

The buzzer sounded again. The living room was silent as Elise admitted Philip Courtney and introduced him to Captain Maclain.

Julia found herself staring at Phil's left arm—bandaged and splinted and hung in a black silk sling.

Elise took his briefcase and helped him off with his overcoat. The lawyer shook hands heartily with Lawson and Captain Maclain, then took a chair.

"I've heard much about you, captain," he announced in his best professional manner. "Your work in Hartford last year was almost miraculous. I'm glad to have your help."

"And I'm very sorry you've had an accident," said Captain Maclain. "Did you break your left arm, or sprain it?"

"I sprained it." Courtney took a cigar from his vest pocket, bit off the end and puffed it to life from Lawson's lighter. "I had a fall on the ice last night on my way downtown to keep my appointment with Blake. I never got there."

Julia said softly, "O, Phil!"

Courtney gave a reassuring glance of affection and suddenly exhaled a heavy cloud of smoke and sat up straight in his chair.

"I don't intend to spend the entire day racking my brains," he said slowly. "How the devil did you know about my arm? I've told no one, and no one has mentioned it since I came in."

"Your injury announced itself in many ways, Mr. Courtney," said Duncan Maclain. "I have no useful eyes, but my other senses have been forced to double duty. You only took one arm out of your overcoat when Miss Sprague assisted you out of it in the foyer. Your step was irregular when you entered the room—an infallible indication of muscular contraction even when the injury's in the shoulder or the arm. You turned far sideways when you shook my hand, an instinctive movement to protect your injured arm. Then there's the matter of odors, Mr. Courtney. Your bandages have a most distinctive smell. For the ear again, the silk of your sling slithers against the wool of your suit whenever you move, and men aren't addicted to blouses of silk. Do you want me to go on?"

"Yes, Captain Maclain," said Julia. "I need your help badly. I beg you to go on."

Inspector Larry Davis' office at headquarters was warm and comfortable for all its businesslike plainness. An aluminum bronze steam radiator hissed intermittently in one corner giving off a sweetish wettish smell. Capt. Duncan Maclain became susceptible after a time to its pungency, even tho it was blanketed by the overhanging haze of Sergt. Aloysius Archer's favorite brand of cigar. He moved his chair farther away. Schnucke stood up and stretched herself, yawning redly, then found a new place near the captain's well shod feet and lay down.

"Hell, Maclain," said Davis fiddling with a rubber hand, "I'm glad to have your help and all that sort of thing, but you're in something screwy this time. It's murder, I tell you—plain unadulterated murder."

"Without any proof," Sergeant Archer put in disgustedly.

"I gather that," said Maclain, "from the way you both keep repeating yourselves and saying nothing. If you're so certain Seth Hadfield pushed his father over a railing, why did you send Lawson up to me? Now don't tell me for the third time it was because Hadfield was blind."

"Lawson was pestering us," said Davis.

"O!" The captain prodded Schnucke off his feet with a gentle push of his toe. "Anybody who pesters you, you wish onto me."

"Well, you keep the press amused."

Your Stars Today

By WYNN

Wednesday, Oct. 7.

Morning hours better today than those that follow; but be cautious with superiors after 11 a. m. and till 1:30 at least. Relations with women and others in the domestic circle call for wise handling from 4 o'clock and on into the evening.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from birthday today is propitious for career preferment and favors—earn, deserve, collect, push. New goals coming; also emotional changes. Be practical with inferiors. Danger: Feb. 7-14; and June 2-15.

Tomorrow.

Note first ideas, but don't be in a hurry to try them out—look again.

Do you want an individual interpretation of your own personal date? Send 5c for balance of 1942 horoscope; 10c for 1943 horoscope, or 15c for both to Wynn, Tribune Astrologer, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Molasses is an acid sweet which has some food value. It is rich in iron, a good source of calcium, and even contains a little thiamin, or vitamin B1. The better qualities are, of course, richer in minerals, and also have better flavor than cheaper grades of molasses.

A good molasses is amber colored. Poorer ones are darker. Sorghum is a similar product which comes from a different plant, sorghum cane, resembling corn. Molasses is a product of sugar cane.

Gingerbread, many cookies, and certain kinds of candy depend for flavor upon the molasses used in them. There are many other uses for this good household sirup in addition. These are a few of them:

Molasses Candied Sweet Potatoes.

Arrange cooked, sliced sweet potatoes in a buttered casserole in layers. Over each layer sprinkle a little grated orange rind and juice. Drip about a tablespoon of molasses over each layer, and add bits of butter. Bake at 325-350 degrees for about half an hour.

Meat with Molasses.

Molasses does a lot for spareribs or baked ham. Rub the sheet of spareribs with salt and pepper, then brush over with molasses and a little prepared mustard, and bake as usual. Use molasses to glaze a whole ham or just a slice.

Savory Stuffed Ribs.

[Serves four.]

2 pounds spareribs, in two pieces
1 cup toasted bread cubes
2 onions, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon sage
2 tablespoons hot water
2 tablespoons molasses
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
½ cup molasses
Salt, pepper

Mix bread cubes, chopped onion and seasonings with hot water and molasses, and spread over half the ribs. Cover with other piece of ribs and tie together. Season ribs on outside with salt and pepper. Mix molasses and mustard and brush over them. Bake on a rack in an open roaster for about 1½ hours, or until meat is tender, basting occasionally with molasses drippings in the pan.

If you like molasses ice cream, which has a fine flavor all its own, you'll cherish this recipe:

Marshmallow Molasses Ice Cream.

[Serves six or more.]

1 cup milk, scalded
20 marshmallows
1½ cups heavy cream
½ cup molasses

Melt marshmallows in hot milk. Freeze to a mush in refrigerator tray, then remove to a chilled bowl and beat in molasses. Fold in whipped cream and replace in tray. Freeze, without stirring, until firm.

If you like coffee ice cream and molasses ice cream you'll revel in a combination of the two flavors. Use coffee in place of the milk in the preceding recipe. The flavor is quite pronounced, but delightful.

Infant's Crocheted Jacket

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Even the youngest set must have its crocheted snuggies and "hug-me-tights" to ward off drafts, and this jacket buttoned securely down the front is an ideal protection for Baby if the temperature drops. The jacket is a simple crochet trick with any of the fine baby yarns which are used for infants' wear.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: by Ely Culbertson.]

The only salvation of a declarer who finds himself in a bad contract is to ferret out the one chance for success, however remote, and to plan his play on that optimistic basis. He may enlist the aid of "Lady Luck," as South did in the following case:

Rubber bridge.
Both sides vulnerable.
South dealer.

♥ 9 6 5
♦ A 8

WEST
♦ K Q J 7 4
♣ Q 9

EAST
♥ 10 7
♦ 10 9 6 3

SOUTH
♠ K J 10 9
♥ A K Q J
♣ A 8 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's last bid was on the optimistic side and resulted in a contract that was far from sound. North had already fully expressed his hand by his first jump raise and his later cue bid showing the diamond ace; he should have contented himself by going back to four spades over South's four hearts.

West opened the diamond king. The ace won and declarer saw that only a miracle could save him from two losers. Dummy's low diamond would find a haven on a long heart, but what could be done in the club suit? A moment's consideration revealed that there was only one chance, and declarer promptly proceeded to go after it. His very first play after winning with the diamond ace was to lead a club to the ace. He then drew trumps in two rounds, after which he rattled off the heart suit, discarding dummy's losing diamond. Next he ruffed his own remaining diamond.

Now with hearts and diamonds eliminated from both hands, declarer led the club four and precisely what he had hoped for came to pass. West was down to the blank club queen and there was nothing the defenders could do to stop the slam. If East put up the club king, he would drop his own partner's queen. Actually, he ducked and West won. But now West was forced to return a diamond, and declarer had the simple play of discarding a club from one hand while ruffing in the other.

There was nothing complex or sensational about the declarer's handling of the situation. He played for the only conceivable hope. He did, however, deserve credit for one important point and that was his timing. If he had drawn trumps and stripped hearts and diamonds before tackling the club suit, West might have been sufficiently warned to jettison his club queen underneath the ace, and declarer then would have had to lose two clubs. The immediate lead to the club ace, however, before the defenders could "get set" and thoroly appraise the situation, made that unblocking play by West virtually impossible.

Admits Error in Barring Girl Factory Hands

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Women workers in the heavy machinery industry were given a hearty indorsement today by Wendell E. Whipp, president of the Monarch Machine Tool company.

Said Whipp, in an address before the 41st annual convention of the National Machine Tool Builders' association:

"As new employés, women have shown themselves just as capable of learning how to operate machines as have the new men. In fact, with respect to some types of operations, they have shown themselves superior to men."

The executive said the actual employing of women at Monarch's plant in the middle west was put off "just as long as we could" and finally, last May, three were hired in the production control department.

As of today, Whipp said, almost 9 per cent of the company's employés are women who "have proved themselves well able to handle all types of machining operations, and our only differentiation between men and women thus far has been entirely on the basis of physical effort.

"I wish you could go out with me into our plant," he continued, "and see the people working there, turning out the lathes that Uncle Sam has to have to win this war. They are all working side by side—handsome girls and women, strapping young men, older women, men of middle age—all plowing ahead—stepping together to get the job done.

"There is a sort of comraderie that develops from this mingling of the sexes in the plant which we never used to have when we had all men.

"I am convinced that all of us in the machine tool industry must of necessity prepare for the employment of women in rather large numbers before this war production emergency is over.

"And, on the basis of our experience, I believe that those of you who still have this transition before you may be agreeably surprised.

"I think you will find women more attentive to their jobs than is the case with most men."

Whipp said there were two things to emphasize particularly in connection with employing women:

1. The necessary plumbing and rest rooms must be installed in advance, using priorities to obtain proper supplies. This cannot be done at the last minute because it takes time to get deliveries.

2. A reasonably mature and experienced woman must be in a company's employ ahead of the general influx. This woman must be capable of handling women's problems—a supervisor who will understand questions which will arise from the feminine viewpoint.

Child Problems Don't All Come at Same Age

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Has it all been smooth sailing for you with your child—or children—ever since they were born? I mean from the psychological—behavior—or whatever-you-want-to-call it, angle? And do you—er, well—preen yourself about it every once in a while?

Are you a little set up because you are really very successful in managing your baby, or your small, medium, or large son or daughter? Well, after all, there's no reason why we shouldn't pat ourselves on the back, or even accept other people's praises for success with our children, as much as for a marvelously crisp but melting apple pie, or perfect black chocolate layer cake.

But, even so, I recommend a touch of humility, dear fathers and mothers. Pride goes before a fall—you never know exactly where you may stub your toe, nor what may lie just around the corner. When the crown of success seems very firmly set on our parental brow, it's not a bad idea for us to step a little gingerly—to preserve just a touch of humility—because you never know.

Now that doesn't mean you should go around looking for trouble, because you may be both very wise and very lucky, and not ever have a seriously puzzled time nor occasion to worry over your children. But with all that's involved in growth and human nature, it's rather normal to expect that at some time between the day your baby is born and the day he or she is married, you will become either puzzled or worried.

For, if you'll look about you, you will notice I'm sure, that we don't all have our problems at the same time. You—or I—may be quite smug at the ease with which we've maneuvered baby thru the "touch everything" age, only to be appalled and frustrated by the astonishing independence and "smartiness" of "baby" at the age of 5. Or we may be able to congratulate ourselves right on thru all this and more, only to meet our Waterloo when Jerry turns 10. Or we may swing thru all those years with nary a setback, to find that it takes all we've got to cope with the "dates," party hours, friendships, and grownup yearnings of our teen age son or daughter.

So you may look on today at your best friend's or your neighbor's struggles with her Margaret or her Richard with a self-congratulatory pat—but don't be too superior. You may be and probably are a wiser and more loving mother—there's a great difference in mothers I admit. But just don't be too surprised or discouraged if the going should get a little rough for you—and that's where your touch of humility will help. For we parents don't all have our problems at the same time. Your time may not—or it may come, too.

N. U. SHOOTS FOR ATTACK AS GOOD AS ITS DEFENSE

'Beware of Purdue' Is Coaches' Theme.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Northwestern football men, who meet Purdue's young men Saturday afternoon in Dyche stadium in the opening game of the Western conference season for both teams, are concentrating their practice efforts this week on developing an offense comparable to their defense.

"We were well pleased with the team's defense after the game with Texas," Lynn Waldorf, head of the Wildcat coaching staff, said yesterday. "The linemen have come along steadily and with exception of center, the varsity acquitted itself splendidly. One look at the pictures of the Texas game was enough to show us the amount of work that must be done."

Fewer Good Linemen on Hand.

Waldorf is of the opinion that each of the conference football teams, with the possible exception of Minnesota, will have fewer outstanding linemen this year than in the preceding seasons.

"You'll see more iron men this year than in the last decade," he predicted. "Last year it still was the aim of each Big Nine coach to have two linemen for each position.

"We probably will have three guards at Northwestern this year of approximately equal ability. We will frequently use more players but in the most difficult games the men who will win or lose the games must play full time. We'll have three tackles, three or four ends, and Purdue will let us know Saturday if we have a center."

App May Play.

Hal Hudson, a junior, has been the starting center. Len Golan and George App have seen service. While no prediction has been made, it seems likely that, barring sudden change in practice performance, App will have his chance against the Boilermakers.

The Northwestern coaches yesterday began work with discussion of Purdue's personnel. Maury Kent, who scouted Purdue against Fordham and Vanderbilt, had his charts of Boilermaker plays. Kent was surprised at Vanderbilt's 23 to 0 victory over Purdue and expressed amazement at the success of the Commodores' forward passing attack that completed 13 in 23 attempts.

"After Purdue had held Fordham to a 14 to 7 score I thought Purdue had material for a fine team," Kent told us. "I still expect them to be a tough opponent for all conference games are close. But Purdue's attack just bogged down completely in Nashville and the only reason I can think of was the 80 degree heat."

Kent Praises Barwegen.

The statistics of the game show that the Commodores gained 187 yards by forward passes compared to 44 yards for Purdue. So far, Purdue has run its offense from a short punt formation or box with a balanced line. On the theory that Purdue can not be as bad as it appeared against Vanderbilt, Northwestern anticipates additional formations. The Wildcats have respect for several of the Purdue linemen. Barry French already has proved he is a good tackle and Dick Barwegen, sophomore guard, was praised yesterday by Kent as one of the best new players he has seen.

Northwestern's attack, of course, will center around Otto Graham. He's the only regular from the 1941 group of backs but after last week's game with Texas when Dud Kean saved a touchdown by his brilliant sprint to overtake Jack Field the Wildcats will continue to bank on him. Kean is the field general, plays the blocking quarter back position on attack, and is a defensive half back.

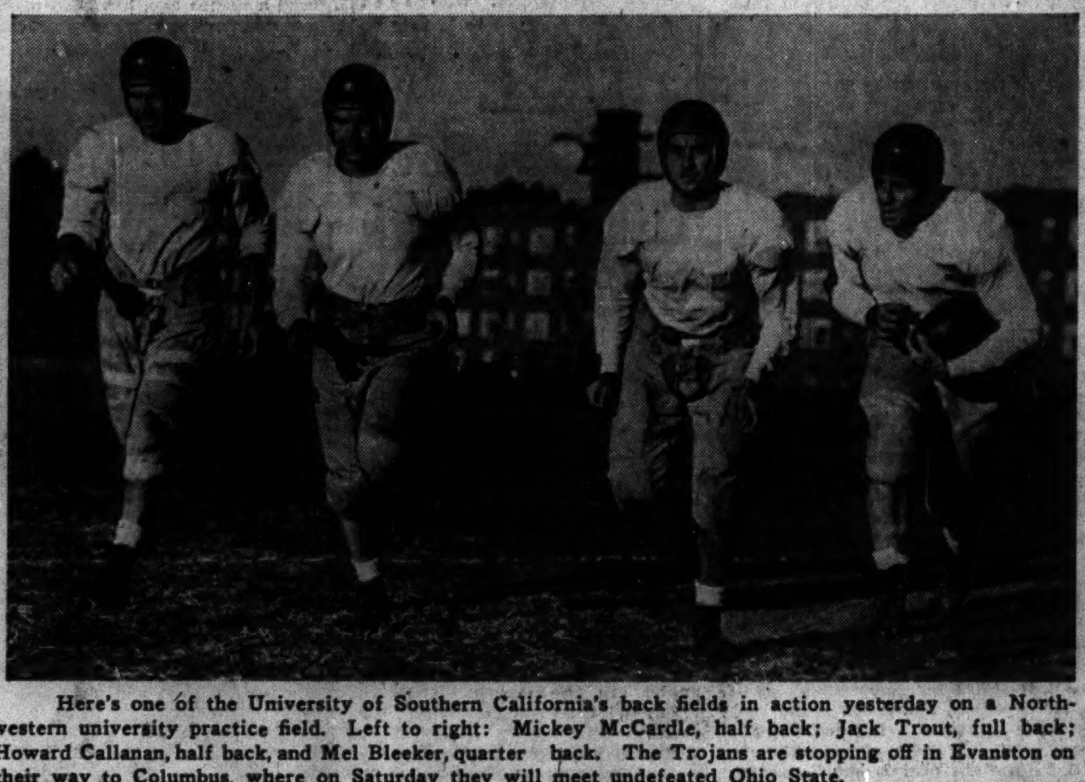
MOON MULLINS—MAMIE'S NOT TONGUE TIED

Trojans Stop at N. U.—but Ohio State's the Goal



Here's one of the University of Southern California's back fields in action yesterday on a Northwestern university practice field. Left to right: Mickey McCardle, half back; Jack Trout, full back; Howard Callanan, half back, and Mel Bleeker, quarter back. The Trojans are stopping off in Evanston on their way to Columbus, where on Saturday they will meet undefeated Ohio State.

TROJANS PAUSE IN EVANSTON ON JOURNEY TO OHIO

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

University of Southern California's Trojans may be an unknown quantity to Pacific coast football fans off their record of one defeat and one tie thus far this season, but they undoubtedly are leading all rivals in one department—travel. Thirty-three of them pitched camp in the Evanston hotel last night after a brief workout on one of Northwestern's practice fields.

No, they are not going to play the Wildcats. Maybe we had better begin at the beginning of their odyssey and mention that they left Los Angeles last Wednesday night, one week ago. They worked out in San Francisco on Thursday and then moved up to Seattle, where they played a scoreless tie on Saturday with Washington's Huskies. Then they headed east, drilling on Monday in Fargo, N. D., and finally arriving here yesterday afternoon via the Hiawatha from Minneapolis. The rest of their immediate itinerary includes two more workouts at Northwestern prior to heading for Columbus, where they meet Ohio State's unbeaten Buckeyes on Saturday. No visitors to yesterday's drill were tactless enough to mention that the Buckeyes won last year's game in Los Angeles, 33 to 0.

A Shortage of Tackles.

Jeff Cravath, the lean, bespectacled gent who took over the coaching chores at his alma mater last March, succeeding Sam Barry, who became head man of the naval preflight training school at St. Mary's, Cal., stated the Trojan case is one wistful sentence, "We had some tackles once. Eleven of 'em showed up for spring practice. Eight of those are now in the armed forces."

Among those missing by the time the season started was Capt. Don Willer, whom Cravath yesterday bluntly identified as the best tackle on the coast. Another loss was that of Jerry Whitney, a 190 pound full back who dropped out of school after scholastic difficulties.

Cravath ascribed the Trojans' opening 27 to 13 defeat by Tulane to a lack of proper condition. That problem was lessened considerably by last Saturday in the scoreless tie with Washington, and Jeff is convinced that the boys' progress toward peak condition will climb each Saturday. A glance at the Trojans, physically smaller than most USC squads, during a boxing routine yesterday afternoon, bore him out. Bright spot of the Washington tie was the punting of Left End Ralph Heywood, who averaged 45 yards and got away one 74 yard boot.

Names Lineup Against Buckeyes.

Carlson, Krumske to Enter All-Star Bowling Tourney

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

[ENTRY BLANK ON PAGE 29.]

Bowling fans who pack the seats and aisles when the city's No. 1 men are shooting will have an opportunity to see that group when the Chicago eliminations for the second annual All-Star tournament open a week from Saturday night. That became apparent yesterday when several of these top flight bowlers said they would have their entries filed when the entry deadline arrives at midnight, Saturday.

A leading figure in that group is Adolph Carlson, captain and anchor man of the Joseph L. Gills of the Classic, Windy City, and Randolph leagues. Carlson did not file an entry last year, thereby obviating the possibility of his being invited into the first All-Star tournament. But yesterday he told Louis P. Petersen, a member of the Chicago and the general All-Star committees, that his blank would be in by the time the deadline arrives and that he would be a candidate for one of the eight places open to Chicagoans in the All-Star tournament.

Krumske Warming Up.

Another ranking star among Chicago bowlers intending to compete is Paul Krumske, anchor man of the Schlitz team, defending champions in the Classic league, and individual champion of that circuit last year. Krumske competed in the All-Star preliminaries last year.

Krumske is tuning up now, not only in league competition but also in the $1,000 doubles match in which he is teamed with Herb Freitag against John Small and Eli Maricich. Half of the match is over and the second half—two six-game blocks—is to be bowled next week-end at Gold Coast. Small and Maricich are leading, 2,378 pins to 2,275. Both Small and Maricich, the latter an alternate in the 1941 All-Star show, will file entries in the Chicago eliminations in the next few days.

Herb Already In.

The fourth bowler in the doubles lineup, Herb Freitag, does not have to qualify for the All-Star tournament. He, along with Joe Wilman, Joe Sinke, Bill Hargadon, Bill Flesch, and Wally Freitag, are seeded, having landed among the top 22 of the 70 competitors in the 1941 preliminaries.

Math Luecker, 1738 Addison street, is taking entries for the Chicago eliminations. The entry blank which must be used in filing entries appears in this edition of THE TRIBUNE. The eliminations open a week from Saturday and continue for three weekends, ending Nov. 1.

RICKEY TO JOIN DODGERS RUMOR GAINS STRENGTH

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—While the world champion St. Louis Cardinals arrived home for a rousing civic welcome, their general manager of the last 17 seasons—Branch Rickey Sr.—remained in New York and lent emphasis to the report that he might be with the Brooklyn Dodgers next year.

L. S. MacPhail recently resigned both as general manager and president of the Dodgers to accept a commission as lieutenant colonel in the army. Rickey's contract with the Cardinals expires Dec. 31.

Along with Rickey, George Weiss, general manager of the New York Yankees' farm system, and Earl Mann, vice president of the Atlanta club in the Southern association, also were being mentioned for the Brooklyn positions in post-world series gossip.

CARDINALS SAY MOVIE REVEALS OFFICIAL'S ERROR

Claim Packers Scored After Whistle.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Cardinals' sports thriller, "The Mysterious Touchdown," was flashed on the silver screen yesterday afternoon in the Sutherland hotel before a jury of newspaper men, with the players forming a booing background. Perhaps no football film ever was given such a minute inspection. Everything except a stethoscope was used to inspect the play on which Charley Brock, Green Bay center, scored the winning touchdown against the Cards Sunday night in Comiskey park.

The footage showing this play in the fourth quarter from start to finish was shown again and again with Coach Jim Conzelman, so close to the screen he was almost a part of the picture, pointing out evidence, bit by bit, to support his claim that the score should not have been allowed.

Looks Like Whistle Blown.

Bob Morrow, the Cards' burly full back, is shown barging into the line of scrimmage at about his own 20 yard line. He is met there by Charley Brock as Referee Bobie Cahn comes bouncing into view. When Cahn gets near the two players he puts his right hand to his mouth and goes thru all the motions of a man blowing a whistle.

By this time Morrow has been twisted around while wrestling with Brock so that he is facing his own goal line. Cahn moves in and inserts his hand as tho to touch the ball. Lou Gordon, the head linesman, darts into the production to mark the exact spot of the ball. Lou Brock, Green Bay full back, coming up to participate in the play as a line backer, stops in his tracks at about the time Cahn apparently blows his whistle.

Then all of a sudden Charley Brock has the ball and starts running for the Cardinals' goal. Cahn turns, hesitates, then starts following the runner and finally raises his arm to signal a touchdown.

Players Declare Whistle Blew.

Immediately after the game the Cards' coaches had based their claim on being victimized on the argument that the forward progress of the ball had been stopped. This seemed legitimate enough in the picture, supported by the indication that the referee actually tooted on his whistle. On Sunday night they had made no declaration that a whistle had been blown before Brock took off on his strange excursion.

Chet Bulger, first year tackle from Auburn, yesterday said that Cahn blew the whistle and that he would have tackled Brock had he not heard it. At least three other Cardinals declared they plainly heard it, too.

Watching the disputed play again riled the tempers of the players. One of them said the Cardinals used enough strong language against Cahn to be thrown out of the game, but that the fact he took no disciplinary measures made them believe he knew he had erred in his decision.

Conzelman was asked if he thought the Cards would be better or worse players Sunday against the Bears in Wrigley field because of the mysterious touchdown episode.

Halas Warns His Bears.

"I think this surliness will help," he said. "Last year when we met the Bears we had lost to the Packers, 14 to 13, the preceding Sunday. We really lost that one and were mentally down. The Bears massacred us. After that we pulled ourselves together and finished strong."

George Halas, coach of the Bears, who took possession of Wrigley field yesterday morning for practicing and playing purposes, impressed his men that they will face their hardest game of the year Sunday.

"I told them plain, cold, unvarnished facts before the practice," said George, "that our number will be up if we don't give everything we've got this week. We've won a couple of games on our reputations this year. We can't afford to let up against the Cards, which I believe is the best Card team in at least 10 years."

Halas didn't say so, but the champions probably will have to worry along without Bill Osmanski, who suffered a knee injury in the Green Bay game.

NEW WAKE BOOK

Love Poem.

I'd like to write a love poem that would reach into your heart
And somehow be a symbol of the feeling I impart.
It need not be so fancy or so rich in every word
But when my poem is finished, just let me know you heard.
It would not be a masterpiece that's read both far and near,
But most of all I promise you . . .
the words would be sincere.

I'd like to take my pen in hand and find a rare delight
And put in just so many words the thoughts I hold tonight.
The poem would hold no interest for the folks who pass us by,
But all these somewhat humble words would be for you and I.
No, it would not be a masterpiece that's read both far and near,
But most of all I promise you . . .
the words would be sincere.

This Is Worth Fighting For.

A little lad on a country road
Who dreams of the man he will be—
The little girl in the pink-checked dress
Who waves at you and me.

The rolling fields of our own homeland,
Or the plain little country town,
Our joy of living, our snug rooftree,
Our haven, our hope, our crown.

The holding forth in our two strong hands
The hope of a world to be,
Where freedom and peace are a part of life
For all men—imprisoned or free.

Wings of the morning are ours to give,
With freedom how swiftly they soar—
Finding new worlds of hope and joy—
This is worth fighting for!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, for whom city series toil seems to be nothing more than picking up the winning check, last night conducted the ceremony that gave them their eighth municipal title in a row over the Cubs. With Johnny Humphries in charge under the Comiskey park lights, the American leaguers slipped an autumnal farewell to the National leaguers by 4 to 1, thus concluding the 1942 event with the needed fourth victory in the sixth engagement.

As their final batting gesture before breaking up for the winter the Cubs found Humphries, the electric light mound specialist, even tougher than on last Friday night when he administered a six hit 3 to 2 potion. Last night the Cubs were reduced to five safeties, four of them in the first three innings during which they enjoyed an all too fleeting lead. Their only blow thereafter was a double by Stan Hack, coupled with a pass to Len Merullo with none out in the sixth, but it so happened that these were the only Cubs to reach base in the last six innings.

Warneke Fails Again.

The Sox, who probably were a bit anxious after being stymied twice in the wake of their successes in the first three games, were slow to start against Lon Warneke, but once they got under way they hurried him in the general direction of his Arkansas homestead. The old boy stopped them cold for three innings, but in the fourth a few misdeeds along with a double by Myril Hoag shot the American leaguers into a 2 to 1 lead. The rest of the job was easy. They gave Warneke the final dustoff with a run in the fifth and by way of extra entertainment for 7,599 customers frisked Bill Fleming for the last run in the seventh.

Even before being nicked for a run Humphries wasn't exactly a tartar. Len Merullo singled and stole second with one out in the first inning. Bill Nicholson opened the second with a single. Humphries wriggled loose each time, once on a couple of easy outs and on Clyde McCullough's double play grounder in the other.

Sturgeon Scores for Cubs.

But Bob Sturgeon led off in the third with a single and his mates fixed him up with transportation to the plate. Warneke sacrificed and Hack aimed a single toward center, but Appling made a diving stop which caused Sturgeon to pull up at third. He scampered in on Merullo's bunt, after which Humphries fanned Lou Novikoff.

Warneke helped to bring on his own downfall by throwing wild to Phil Cavarretta on Wally Moses' roller at the start of the fourth. Bill Mueller fanned, but in the meantime Moses had stolen second and gone to third on McCullough's badly aimed throw. Luke Appling walked and Hoag aimed his double into left for the first hit off the Cub veteran, Moses scoring and Appling halting at third. Luke counted on Bob Kennedy's fly ball. A double by Don Kolloway and a single by Freshman Mueller made it 3 to 1 in the fifth. It also marked the end of Warneke.

Except for a single by Kennedy.

GOPHER STARS MAY BE OUT OF ILLINOIS GAME

Garnaas and Frickey Slow in Improvement.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 6 [Special]. —The cases of Bill Garnaas, star quarter back, and Herman Frickey, right half back, are not entirely closed for the Illinois game. It was expected they would be in shape to rejoin the Gophers after Garnaas missed all of the Seahawk game and Frickey much of the last half. Their injuries responded nicely to treatment—at first.

However, that response has not continued. Unless they make rapid improvement the next two days, they will not be in the starting lineup against the Illini Saturday. Both, however, will be taken on the trip, but there is no secret that Coach George Hauser would like to withhold them if at all possible.

The job of building up the back field reserve was resumed today with the line pretty well set. Meanwhile, the Gophers have appeared to be a pretty fair offensive team with 6.83 yards gained per play against 3.35 for the opposition. Bill Daley has netted 10.2 yards per attempt.

WILSON OUT AT GUARD.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special].—Joe Pawlowski, senior, probably will start at left guard in the Minnesota Homecoming game here Saturday, Coach Ray Eliot said today. Pawlowski, who played regular right guard last season, in all probability will replace Bob Wilson, junior, at left guard. Wilson, who has been ill from influenza since last Thursday can hardly be in condition even if he reports the end of the week.

Coach Eliot spent much time in polishing plays and stressing blocking. Art Dufelmeier, sophomore half back, whose runs for two touchdowns against Butler pleased Eliot, and Joe Astroth, sophomore full back, have been in the third back field but Eliot used them in the first back field. Dufelmeier followed Don Griffin and Dick Good and Astroth the two full backs, Jimmy Smith and Tony Butkovich.

De Kalb to Use 3 Freshmen in SaturdayGame

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Three freshmen will be in the lineup that will start for De Kalb Teachers Saturday in the homecoming game that will open the race for the Illinois Intercollegiate conference championship. Macomb Teachers will be seeking to prevent the Huskies from making a successful defense of the championship they shared with Illinois State Normal last fall.

Letter men returned for all positions on the De Kalb eleven, but three newcomers, Harry Henigan of Sycamore and Al Mastrangeli of Rockford, half backs, and Fred Loomer, 225 pound left tackle from Rockford, have shunted veterans to the sidelines.

Henigan is Good Passer.

Henigan handles the passing duties while Mastrangeli, 180 pounds, is a good blocker. The accuracy of Henigan's tosses is exceptional for a lad just out of high school, according to Coach George Evans.

Two letter men, Joe Rushforth, sophomore full back from Zion, and Ken Prentice, quarter back from De Kalb, round out the varsity back field. Another freshman, Gene Davis of De Kalb, is the first replacement at quarter back and Henigan's half.

Veterans in the first string line include Capt. John Farney, Sycamore, and Jim Ulrich, Maywood, ends; Russ Baumann, tackle from Marengo, and Ed Arquilla, guard from Melrose Park. Last year's reserves, Duane Gunz, center from De Kalb and Fred Gerhardt, guard from Amundsen High of Chicago, are handling the other post. Cunz, a guard last season, won the center post from Frank Concialdi, a letter man from Chicago.

2 Non-Conference Games.

Two nonconference games are scheduled for Illinois Intercollegiate conference teams this week. Central Normal of Danville, Ind., will be at Charleston Teachers Friday while State Normal goes to Ypsilanti, Mich., college Saturday.

Four freshmen are on the Charleston varsity—Nick Vuckovich, half back from Mount Olive, James Foster and Herman Slutzky, tackles from Arcola and Lewis Cox, end from Charleston. Only five letter men are on the squad and all are regulars. Russ Pierson, center from Flat Rock; Marvin Mizeur of Pana, and Jim Shaw of Taylorville, guards; Ross Stephenson, quarter back from South Bend, Ind., and James Sullivan, full back from Charleston. Sullivan played end a year ago, but was shifted to full back by Coach Clayton Miller because of his punting and plunging ability. Andy Sullivan, freshman brother of James, is waging a duel wit hRalph Irvin, junior from Edwardsville for James' former post. Basil Geckler, a former reserve from Georgetown, is operating at right half back.

NEW YORK COURT ORDER HALTS BAN ON RACING NEWS

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente today signed a show cause order temporarily restraining City License Commissioner Paul Moss from interfering with the sale and distribution of four publications carrying horse race information.

The four were the 109 year old Morning Telegraph, the 50 year old Daily Racing Form and Daily Racing Guide, owned by the Triangle Publications, Inc., and the New York Daily Tab, published by the New York Daily Tab, Inc.

On the back field starters, the Trojan coach will eye the weather, in hopes that it will be as dandy as yesterday was, or, even better, like the temperature of 87 in which the Buckeyes defeated Indiana at Columbus last Saturday. Cravath's heavier quartet consists of Quarter Back Mel Bleeker; Left Half Back Mickey McCardle; Right Half Back Paul Taylor, and Full Back Bob Musick, the last named the third of a foursome of brothers who have made or hope to make Trojan history.

If the weather man is kindly at Columbus, however, Cravath aims to start Bleeker and McCardle, two of the fastest men on the squad, in their regular spots, and use Jack Trout at full back and Howard Callanan at right half. Callinan and Trout were the one-two sprinters on Dean Cromwell's track squad last season.

OHIO AWAITS SCOUT.

Columbus, O., Oct. 6 [Special].—Ohio State's football team today awaited the return of Scout Tippy Dye, who has all the facts and figures about the next opponents of the Buckeyes, Southern California, who will be met here Saturday.

Dye was forced to return to Columbus by train instead of plane from Seattle where he watched the Southern California-Washington game last Saturday.

In the meantime the Buckeyes brushed up on their own offense, hurling plenty of passes. Defense has not been entirely neglected but awaits a report on the Trojans which will be studied by the Buckeye officials.

SEAHAWKS ARE WARNED.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6 [Special].—Iowa's Seahawks today heard this week's foe—Michigan—described by Scout Don Heap as "heavy, but possibly even more dangerous than Minnesota." Heap watched the Wolverines beat Michigan State, 20 to 0, last Saturday and came back with only praise for the Michigan crew which has been operating at full steam, even without the services of Tom Kuzma.

Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman hustled the squad thru a long signal drill and then worked the first two teams against Michigan plays brought back by Heap, one of Bierman's assistants.

Bus Mertes, injured in the Gopher game, was much improved today and took a full workout with the squad, which means he will apparently be in the starting lineup Saturday.

Bierman also worked the club on passing today and sent the regulars thru a hard dummy scrimmage.

MICHIGAN BUILDS DEFENSE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Michigan's squad today got a look at the plays the Iowa Preflight team probably will throw at it Saturday. Coach Fritz Crisler had his first team on defense a good part of the afternoon with the reserves and the freshman backs running thru the Seahawk formations. The success the frosh backs had in piercing the varsity pass defense indicated that the Wolverines can expect a lot of trouble from the star back field the airmen will employ Saturday.

For the third straight game Michigan's line will be confronted with a heavier opponent. The Cadets' forward wall averages about 204 pounds, 13 pounds more than the Wolverine average. The Cadet back field has a weight edge of 194 pounds to 182.

Don Robinson, fleet junior back who sparked the team to victory over Michigan State last week-end is expected to start at left half again unless Tom Kuzma's injured knee shows more signs of healing. Whether Kuzma will play against the Cadets probably won't be decided until Friday.

SCHUMACHER TO BE READY.

Camp Grant, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Camp Grant's chances against Iowa Saturday took on a rosier hue today when the doctors reported that Hal Schumacher, regular blocking back and defensive star, would be ready for duty. The 205 pound former Purdue star was injured in the Wisconsin game and hasn't played since.

The Warriors spent most of this afternoon in running thru a set of plays prepared by Head Coach Lieut. Glen Rose for Iowa. Doug Renzel has been looking good in practice sessions and has been shifted to the first string back field with Stan Stasica, Schumacher, and Frank Alonzo.

IOWA STRESSES DEFENSE.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6 [Special].—Preparing to stop what Line Coach Jim Harris calls a lightning fast back field, Iowa's Hawkeyes worked against Camp Grant plays during most of today's practice in preparation for Saturday's game with the soldiers. Harris, said Iowa would have to stop the soldier backs before they got beyond the line of scrimmage to keep their offensive attack in check.

Tom Hand, taking over the center duties from Forest Masterson who is out with a bad knee, will be game captain Saturday.

Badgers Get Down to Work for Missouri

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—Wisconsin's football squad was surprised this afternoon when orders went out for contact work on offense and defense as preparations started for Saturday's game here with the University of Missouri.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher originally had planned to take it easier but he changed signals because of the fine condition of the Badgers and the fact he considers the Tigers from Missouri opponents requiring the utmost in preparation.

Bill Schroeder was shifted back to right half back as Bob Rennebohm's ankle injury appears to be completely healed. Rennebohm's return, plus veteran Pat Lyons' appearance on the squad, gives the Badgers a strong left end corps.

The Wisconsin B squad will see its first action of the season when it plays the Milwaukee extension eleven on the Camp Randall practice field at 9:45 a. m. Saturday.

Stuhldreher announced today that the Wisconsin freshman eleven will play the Northwestern freshmen on Oct. 24 and meet the Minnesota yearlings on Nov. 7. Both games will be played in Madison.

SEEK OFFENSIVE STRENGTH.

Hugh McCullough, formerly of Oklahoma, and Ed Heffernan of St. Mary's college of California, substitute left half backs on the Great Lakes Naval Training station football team, yesterday were shifted to right half backs as Head Coach Lieut. Paul Hinkle sought increased offensive power in the Sailor back field for the game with Pittsburgh in Cleveland's Municipal stadium Saturday afternoon.

McCullough performed in the first string back field with Bruce Smith at left half back; Rudy Mucha at quarter back and Bob Sweiger at full back. Heffernan's associates on the second string back field included Herman Schneidman, quarter back; Steve Belichick, full back, and Billy Harrell, left half. Schneidman and Belichick did not appear against Iowa last Saturday because of injuries, but will be in the lineup against the Panthers.

Altho the Bluejackets scored four touchdowns against the Hawkeyes, Lieut. Hinkle complained of their offensive weaknesses. The Sailors pitched five passes, three by Smith and two by McCullough, but failed to make a completion.

MARQUETTE HAS SCRIMMAGE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—Offensive changes effected by Coach Tom Stidham since the Wisconsin game were tested by the Marquette varsity in a scrimmage with the freshmen today.

The Hilltoppers also staged a dummy defensive scrimmage against Iowa State plays in preparation for Saturday's game at Ames, Ia. Stidham said Center Mel Maceau will be Marquette's game captain this week.

Hammond Fills an Open Date for South Bend Preps

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Hammond High has been scheduled by South Bend Central for a football game here Saturday. Hammond replaces Wright High of Dayton, O. Transportation difficulties prompted Wright school officials to ask cancellation of the game.

Unforgettable; That's 1942 World Series!

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The world series has come and gone and every one is wondering whether it has gone for a long lapse. No one in baseball knows the answer, altho all the major league clubs are going forward with preparations for next season. And the series just ended was as successfull from every standpoint as any in history.

It certainly was the last for awhile for Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees, who already enlisted in the navy and will report this week-end, and for Enos [Country] Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has been notified to report for induction into the army.

Many of the other players are going too, sooner or later. In general they are young, ranging from 25 to 35 years of age, and even tho they are exempt now they realize that eventually they may be called.

An Unforgettable Series.

Maybe it was because of this that they made the 1942 world series a classic that never will be forgotten by any one of the hundreds of thousands of fans who saw it, or the millions of persons, including soldiers and sailors all over the world, who heard and read the radio and newspaper descriptions.

Johnny Beazley, 23 year old rookie right hander from Nashville, Tenn., is planning to enlist in the marines, and it isn't taking much for granted to say that the marines will be glad to get him. He is rangy and strong and he proved his coolness under fire by the way he subdued the Yankees twice in the series.

Terry Moore May Enlist.

Whitey Kurowski, whose two run homer in the ninth inning supplied the winning runs yesterday, is another Cardinal rookie who may have been playing not only his first but his last series for some time.

The Reading, Pa., youth is married and the father of a few months old baby, but his draft classification is 1B. His right arm is short because about three inches of bone were removed after a childhood injury, but the army now is accepting some men previously deferred for physical reasons.

Terry Moore, the Cardinal captain and great center fielder, has been in 3A because of dependents, but is not married and expects to enlist.

Buddy Hassett, first baseman of the Yanks, is in the same situation as Moore. Pitcher Red Ruffing, 38 year old veteran who worked the first and last games of the series, is married but has no children.

Edison Park Eleven to Play Falks of Milwaukee Sunday

The Falks of Milwaukee, Wisconsin semipro football champions, will meet the Edison Park eleven, Cook county champions, Sunday afternoon at Rockola stadium, 4200 North Central avenue, at 2:15.

Hurls Series Clincher

Sox Turn Back Cubs, 4-1; 8th Title in Row

Fleming's relief job was effective in the sixth, but that was changed oy two hits in the seventh. Humpries, who twice previously had fanned, salved his wounds with a single to right and with one out scored on a triple which Moses sent bounding into the right field corner, much to the confusion of Nicholson. Moses tried to get home on Mueller's tap to Merullo but didn't quite make it. The only other Sox hit was a single by Kennedy in the eighth off Dick Errickson, the refugee from the Braves.

Kolloway and Moses emerged as the twin batting heroes. Each came to the plate 25 times and each delivered 9 hits. Wally had an edge over Don in runs batted in, 4 to 3. Lou Novikoff was the batting bust. The mad Russian picked up only two hits in 23 chances for a .087 mark. He fanned four times.

BOB MONTGOMERY LOSES DECISION TO MAX SHAPIRO

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP).—Maxie Shapiro of New York, a 5 to 1 underdog, won an upset 10 round decision over Philadelphia's Bob Montgomery before a crowd of 9,000 at the Arena tonight.

Battering Montgomery all around the ring in the third round, when the crowd shouted to Referee Benny Leonard to stop it, the New Yorker went on to gain a split decision.

HARRY WRIGHT TO CALL SIGNALS FOR NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Angelo Bertelli will be relieved of signal calling responsibilities, and Russell [Pete] Ashbaugh will be tried at right half back in two lineup changes for Notre Dame announced by Coach Frank Leahy today. The changes come in an effort to improve the attack of the Irish who were tied 7 to 7 by Wisconsin and beaten 13 to 6 by Georgia Tech.

The Irish will make their third start of the season against Stanford here Saturday.

"There has been nothing wrong with Bertelli's team direction for the most part," said Leahy in announcing the change. "He has done very well, particularly in view of the fact that he never called signals before in his life. But I believe the responsibility was causing him to tighten up a bit. He hesitated to call his own number, too."

Wright to Direct Varsity.

Harry Wright, No. 1 right guard who directed the 1941 campaign at quarter back, will call plays for the first team. Ashbaugh, junior quarter back, altho moved to right half, will direct the second team attack. John Creevy was moved up to the second team as Bertelli's understudy today.

Ashbaugh ran signals in today's dummy scrimmage. Leahy said the move was intended to bolster the right half back post. Creighton Miller injured a month ago, has been below his peak, altho he played against both Wisconsin and Georgia Tech. Bill Earley, senior starter at right half, also has been below last year's form.

Run Against Own Formations.

Since Coach Marchie Schwartz of Stanford uses the T-formation and has not revealed any plays with which the Irish are not acquainted, today's dummy scrimmage saw Notre Dame running against its own formations.

Most of the drill today was given over to sprints, calisthenics, and jogging around the field. Leahy said he believes the squad has had normal conditioning work, but is due for harder work on the assumption that sluggishness in the first two games indicated a possible lack of condition.

PASS DEFENSE STRESSED.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 6 [Special]. —Indiana's football squad today worked desperately against Nebraska passes tossed by Jimmie Dewar, sophomore tail back, who was impersonating Dale Bradley, Nebraska passer.

Capt. Robert White of Joliet, Ill., returned to the campus today after three days in the Ohio State hospital with an arm infection. Coach Bo McMillin showed pictures of the Ohio State game and told the squad the result at Lincoln would be the same "unless our blocking and tackling and pass defense is 100 per cent better."

Fight Decisions

Last Night's Results.

At Philadelphia, Pa.—Maxie Shapiro beat Bob Montgomery [10]; Pedro Tomez beat Rocky Luciano [8]; Carmine Fatta stopped Billy Speary [3]; Mike Belloise beat Johnny Forte [8].

At New York—Vinnie Rossano beat Bill McDowell [8]; Willie Beltram beat Rocco Rossano [4]; Al Fine beat Jeff Holloway [6]; Dave Feld beat Fred Graham [6]; Joe Covernale beat Danny Faver [6].

At Bangor, Me.—Carl McFadden stopped Eddie Haily [4].

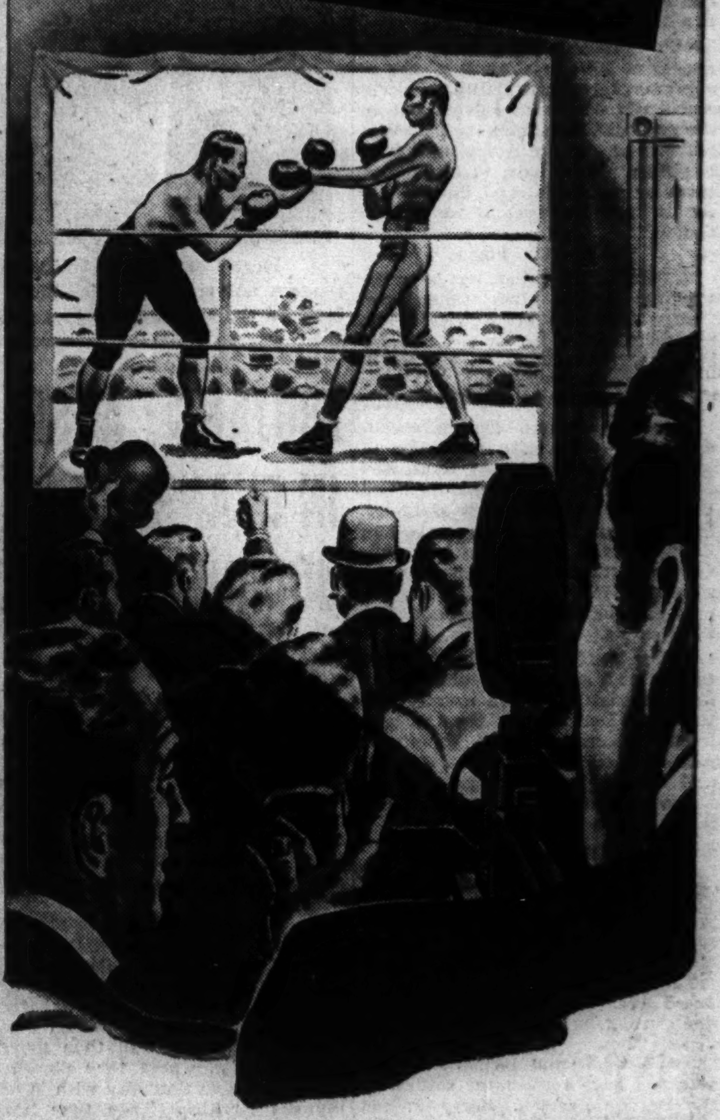
CHAPIN & GORE



The motion picture industry was in its infancy when Chicagoans flocked to see crude pictures of the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons championship bout in 1899. Vacant storerooms with plank seats were improvised for theatres.

NEARLY four decades before Jeffries took Fitzsimmons' measure, Chapin & Gore Bourbon was known to Chicagoans. Its popularity continues today — the smooth, distinctive flavor of C&G makes it the choice of men who appreciate good whiskey.

Entertain your friends with this finest of Kentucky distilled bourbon. Reasonable in price, it is the perfect whiskey for straight or mixed drinks. Your favorite tavern serves C & G.

SEVEN VETERANS HELP PROSPECTS AT MORGAN PARK

Offense Is Built Around Half Back Bud Hall.

Succeeds Capt. Mahon.

The back field is composed of Bud Hall and Jack Parchman at the halves, Frank Major at quarter back, and Jack Gens at full back duties.

In taking over the coaching duties, Bugbee, a former Aurora college player and later coach, succeeded Capt. George Mahon, who is now the athletic director at Morgan Park.

Hall All-Conference Player.

Hall, a junior and all-around athlete, was selected on the All-Conference teams during his freshman and sophomore years and is expected to do most of the passing and punting. He holds the heavyweight boxing championship at the academy and is the ace pitcher on the baseball team. He has three brothers: Warren, a former quarter back at Marquette university and now a chief petty officer in the navy, and twin brothers, Charles and Le Roy, who are members of the sophomore football squad at Fenger High school of the City league.

The cadets lost their opener last Saturday to Marmion Military academy of Aurora, 6 to 0.

There are seven fellows named Bob on the Leo Lions football squad, and two of them are surnamed Kelly, causing considerable confusion when Coach Whitey Cronin hollers, "Hey, Bob." The two Kelly boys are Robert A. and Robert J., and, to distinguish them, their teammates call Robert A., the center on the team, "Tony." The other Bobs are Hanlon, Baggett, Walsh, Philpott, and Carr.

If, by chance, Leo and St. Mel meet in the Catholic finals to decide the league's participant in the Mayor Kelly bowl game on Nov. 28, each will be directed from the quarter back post by a Murphy. It's Don of Leo and Johnny at St. Mel.

Bob Lindwall and Ed Mica are co-captains of the Morton High school soccer team. . . . Joe Jahelka, boxing coach at Morton, has two excellent candidates on his squad, George Rezabek and Ralph Dinnart.

25,000 Fans Greet Cards on Return Home

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6 (AP).—An estimated 25,000 wildly cheering baseball fans jammed in and around Union station late today to welcome home the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, who went to New York the underdogs last week and . . . well, you know what they did to the Yankees in the last four games of the world series.

A band struck up "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," as the players stepped off the train. Thus began a victory celebration— the sixth since 1926—which lasted almost an hour.

Hopp Swarmed by Fans.

Johnny Hopp, first baseman, was the first player to step off the train and he was swarmed on by so many noisy worshipers that the other players paused to look around before risking it.

A tremendous burst of applause greeted young Johnny Beazley, who pitched the Cards to their first and last victories. Wiping confetti from his mouth, he said:

"I'd rather face the Yankees than this crowd."

Several other players voiced similar opinions but all were obviously overjoyed at the gigantic reception.

Governor, Mayor Greet Players.

On hand to greet the players were Gov. Forrest C. Donnell and Mayor William Dee Becker, who read a telegram of congratulations from Mayor La Guardia of New York.

In line with the recent transportation order, the team did not travel from New York in special railroad cars as is customary. Instead each player rode on an individual ticket anywhere he could find a seat. Most of them traveled in the same car, however.

Manager Billy Southworth, who partisan fans are boosting for the presidency, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced each player as "one of my boys."

All Stars to Southworth.

"They are all stars in my book," he said. "We beat them [the Yankees] decisively and we beat them without making a single complaint during the series." The applause at this point rocked the station.

"They are a great ball club and we showed the world St. Louis has something else out here besides a zoo and the river."

Southworth introduced Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, as "the gentleman whom we look forward to meeting the 1st and 15th of each month."

As a parting shot Southworth yelled: "We hope to give you another championship team next year!"

Capt. Terry Moore, more bashful on the speakers platform than in center field, said Cardinal players are "the grandest bunch of players in the world, who have the best manager in the world to play for."

Crowd Cheers Champion Cardinals

Whitey Kurowski, who won the world championship for St. Louis with a two run homer in the fifth game of the series, waves his hand from a stand erected outside Union station in the Missouri city, where a reception was held by fans for the homecoming Cardinals. Other members of the team are in the background. [Acme Telephoto.]

2 FAST BACKS LEAD TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE TEAM

The Tuskegee, Ala., institute football team, expected to arrive in Chicago at noon today for its meeting with the Wilberforce university eleven Friday night, is led by a pair of hard running backs, Arthur Sawyer and Raymond Head. Sawyer is an elusive runner with plenty of speed, while Head, a track man, makes a specialty of broken field sprinting.

Both Tuskegee and Wilberforce will work out in Washington park, and both squads will stay at the YMCA, 3763 Wabash avenue. Wilberforce is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Service men in uniform will be admitted to the Friday night game, which is being played for army emergency relief, for 50 cents. The 184th field artillery band from Camp Custer, Mich., will play during the game.

Theodore T. Greene, 3809 South Park way acting president of the Chicago Tuskegee club, said last night that the club will hold open house at Oakwood Village, 447 East Pershing road, Friday and Saturday nights in connection with the game.

Expect Kill of Geese to Stay on 1941 Level

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—Operators of licensed hunting clubs in Alexander county are of the opinion that new rules governing the shooting of wild geese will not limit this year's kill to figures below the estimated 6,500 taken there last season.

The hunting clubs are situated near the state's Horseshoe lake wild life preserve, north of Cairo, where experts estimate as many as 40,000 honkers stop to rest and feed when the flight south is at its heaviest.

Daily Hunt Cut to Two.

Federal regulations limit shooting hours from sunrise to noon and reduce the daily limit from three to two. But the new rules also permit a hunter to take his limit each day. Last year the limit was three geese a week. Complicating matters for the hunter who takes his limit each day, however, will be the rule that he may not possess more than four geese. The season opens Oct. 15 and closes Dec. 13.

Wild goose hunting is one of the big industries of Alexander county.

Charge $5 to $10 a Day.

Operators of the 40 licensed clubs charge from $5 to $10 a day with the more expensive ones providing sleeping accommodations and meals.

The kill in Alexander county in 1940 was 13,500 and in 1939 it reached the all-time high of 17,000.

Tho they expect this year's kill to equal that of 1941, club owners believe a 30 per cent drop in the number of hunters will result from travel restrictions.

MIDDIES TO GO BY STEAMBOAT TO YALE GAME

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Capt. L. S. [Pop] Perry, Naval academy athletic director, said today that approximately 1,600 midshipmen would travel by Chesapeake bay steamboat to Baltimore Oct. 17 when the sailor football team meets Yale.

Perry said the plan was approved by Rear Adm. John R. Beardall, naval academy superintendent, and resulted from the Office of Defense Transportation's recent ruling eliminating special trains for sporting events. The Chesapeake bay trip is about 25 miles.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

COUNTRY GENT, 14-1 SHOT, WINS AT HAWTHORNE

Scores by Five Lengths in Good Goods Purse.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Country Gent, a 14 to 1 shot ridden by Jesse Higley, broke a succession of victories by favorites when he came home five lengths ahead of his nearest rival in the Good Goods purse yesterday at Hawthorne. This six and a half furlong dash took its name from the sire of Alsab, not from an association of clothing merchants as might have been assumed by those unversed in race track lore.

Under Higley's strong riding, Country Gent held control from start to finish, tho for a while he was under a strong challenge from Flying King. This horse moved up alongside the leader as they approached the stretch and the two were moving head and head as they swung into the straightaway.

Barney Is Set Down.

Soon after the run toward the wire began, however, Country Gent conquered Flying King and came on home five lengths ahead of his nearest rival. Meanwhile Philadelphia was taking second place away from Flying King by half a length.

Hasty Kay, the 2 to 1 favorite, finished fourth, while Carbonate, the 5 to 2 second choice, was coming in seventh. The stewards meted out a five day suspension to Lawrence Barney for failing to keep Hasty Kay straight in the stretch.

Those who backed Country Gent collected the handsome sums of $27.40, $15.60, and $10.60 across the board.

Mystery Marvel Scores.

Mystery Marvel, a 4 year old filly owned by Mrs. G. C. White, made it six victories out of her last eight races by winning the St. Bernard purse, co-feature of the afternoon. The six furlong sprint drew seven horses of the $3,500 class, Mystery Marvel being established as the favorite at 8 to 5.

During a brief interval after the break All Lizzie, Mystery Marvel, Pomiva, and Hour Al ran side by side but as they went into the turn Mystery Marvel had begun drawing clear. She was two lengths in the lead entering the stretch and had no difficulty maintaining her advantage to the finish to score by two and a half lengths over Pomiva. Miss Militant was third.

Elks to Be Guests Today.

Mystery Marvel, the fourth consecutive favorite to win, paid $5.20, $3, and $2.40. Previously Flo Bratten, Lookout Rascal, and Sonny Casey had scored easily as public choices. Some Count, the favorite in the first race, had finished far back while Simkoe was winning. The daily double payoff on Simkoe and Flo Bratten was $41.40.

The Elks lodge of East Chicago, Ind., will be guests of Hawthorne today. Max E. Podell will present a trophy to the winner of the sixth race.

SELECT NOV. 6 FOR PASTOR VS. BOLDEN BATTLE

A 10 round bout between Bob Pastor and Nate Bolden was a step closer to completion with disclosure by Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun yesterday that Nov. 6 had been agreed upon as the date for the match. Arthur Wirtz, vice president and treasurer, and William Burke, promotion manager of the Stadium, respectively, have given the north side promoters permission to conduct the proposed encounter in Chicago Stadium.

Tho Bolden already has accepted terms, Jimmy Johnston, manager of Pastor, will not sign a contract until after his heavyweight protégé goes thru with a contest against Jimmy Bivins in Cleveland Oct. 20. Joe Maxin last night was offered a supporting match on the Oct. 20 card, but was forced to refuse because of a prior agreement to face Ezzard Charles in Pittsburgh Oct. 26.

Sergt. Joe Muscato, Buffalo heavyweight, will make his Chicago debut in a windup bout in Marigold Gardens next Monday. His opponent will be Vince Calzarette.

PURDUE CLUB TO HOLD BANQUET SATURDAY NIGHT

As an aftermath of the Purdue-Northwestern football game, the Purdue club of Chicago will hold its 49th annual dinner in the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday night at 6:30.

Musical entertainment will include numbers by the Purdue military band of 165 pieces, which is expected to appear at the game, and the Purdue Men's Glee club, which took runnerup honors in the recent national intercollegiate glee club contest in New York.

The remainder of the program will include short "win or lose" remarks by Guy Mackey, new athletic director; and Elmer Burnham, new head football coach, and an address on "Purdue in Wartime" by Controller R. B. Stewart, Purdue.

The committee in charge of the dinner arrangements is composed of Chairman Corydon H. Hall, Conrad G. Kaufman, Barton R. Gebhart, and David H. McMaster. The dinner will be open to all Purdue alumni and former students.

Surface Lines Team Wins City-Wide Softball Title

The Chicago Surface Lines, 77th street depot, softball team defeated the Parkway Billiards, 12 to 9, in the final game of the Men's City-Wide tournament last night at Rand stadium. Third place went to Jim's Tavern, which scored a 7 to 5 decision over Harry's Owl club in 13 innings.

Salem, N. H., Oct. 6 (AP).—W. E. Johnson's Dads won the featured event of Rockingham park's all claiming card today, crossing the finish line a length ahead of M. W. Delaney's Izzat.

Approximately 3,000 spectators saw Dads and Izzat move out front in the first furlong of the mile and one-sixteenth event, making it practically a two horse race. George B. McCamey's Real Gem was third.

THREE WAY DEAD HEAT FOR FIRST IN DETROIT RACE

Pictures of Finish No Help to Judges.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6 (AP).—Three horses finished in a dead heat for first in the fifth race at the Fairgrounds track today, the first triple dead heat to win in more than 20 years on United States tracks. The horses were Sabra, a 4 to 1 shot; Cut Loose, at 25 to 1, and Queen Echo, at 20 to 1. The dead heat was called on the basis of photographic evidence, studied by the judges for more than 10 minutes.

The winners came down the stretch in a group with Mack's Gem and Southern Jane. Mack's Gem finished fourth by a nose and Southern Jane fifth by a head. The mutuels paid $4.60, $3.80, and $4.60 on Sabra; $14.20, $10.80, and $8.20 on Cut Loose, and $12.40, $9.20, and $7.40 on Queen Echo. Time for the six furlongs, over a heavy track, was 1:16 3-5.

There was a triple dead heat to win at Willows Park, Vancouver, B. C., on Sept. 21, 1940, involving My Debut, Margery Daw, and Saucy Maid. Records for 20 years show similar finishes for second position at Thistledown on Aug. 11, 1939, and Aug. 12, 1940, and there were triple dead heats for place money at Detroit, Sept. 22, 1937, and at Bay Meadow, Cal., on Oct. 28, 1938.

CHICAGO TO BE HOST TO AAU MEETING, DEC. 11

The 54th annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic union will be held in the Hotel La Salle, Dec. 11-13, the Chicago Association of Commerce announced last night. The meeting originally was scheduled for Florida.

The AAU had expressed some hesitation about holding the meeting this year in view of wartime transportation shortages and other problems, but Lawrence DiBenedetto, president of the body, has urged all district associations to continue making plans for awarding titles in all 17 sports governed by the group.

VAGRANCY TAKES LADIES' HANDICAP AT BELMONT PARK

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—William Woodward's Vagrancy, already recognized as the queen of the turf, added to her reputation this afternoon when she defeated nine other stars of the filly and mare division in the coveted Ladies' handicap at Belmont Park. The 3 year old daughter of Sir Gallahad III., under 126 pounds, gave weight and a decisive beating to her rivals as she drove over the wire in front by a length and a half to pay $4.80 and collect purse money of $11,175.

John A. Bell Jr.'s Dark Discovery was second in the 72d running of this mile and a half special, with Mrs. W. R. Fleming's New England invader, Loveday, third, a length behind.

'WITNESSES' WIN DECISION AGAINST U. S. FLAG SALUTE

Ruling of Supreme Court Opposed by Order.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—The West Virginia board of education was ordered today by a three judge federal court to cease requiring a flag salute by students who are members of Jehovah's Witnesses or any others who have conscientious religious scruples against such salutes.

The injunction was handed down in a test case brought by three Kanawha county residents on behalf of themselves and other members of the religious sect. They charged that the salute regulation violated the rights of religious liberty guaranteed by the 1st and 14th amendments of the Constitution.

The three judge court commented that unless restrained, the board could expel the plaintiffs' children from school, but said that courts have nothing to do with determining the reasonableness of the sect members' views.

Opposed to Previous Ruling.

The decision was directly opposed to a United States Supreme court ruling in the case of the Minnersville, Pa., school district against Walter Gobitis.

The Supreme court reversed lower court decisions holding valid a regulation permitting the school district to expel Gobitis' children for failure to salute the flag.

Judge John J. Parker of the 4th Circuit court of Appeals, Charlotte, N. C., pointed out in the opinion—concurred in by District Judges Harry E. Watkins of Fairmont, W. Va., and Ben Moore of Charleston—that four members of the court which passed upon the Gobitis case since have stated the decision was unsound.

"Violative of Liberty."

He added:

"Under such circumstances and believing as we do that the flag salute here required is violative of religious liberty when required of persons holding the religious views of the plaintiffs, we feel that we would be recreant to our duty as judges if thru blind following of a decision which the Supreme court itself has thus impaired as an authority, we should deny protection to rights which we regard among the most sacred of those protected by constitutional guarantees."

The board of education rejected last month Judge Parker's suggestion that it amend its regulation to permit the Jehovah's Witnesses to attend school regardless of whether they participated in the flag salute.

RUNAWAY YOUTH SHOT BY POLICE AS CAR PROWLER

Frank Campbell, 17 years old, of Louisville, Ky., was shot in his left side by police last night. They said he refused to halt for questioning about alleged suspicious actions around parked cars in the loop.

Campbell, who said he ran away 10 days ago from his Louisville home and took a room in a hotel at 516 South State street, was taken to St. Luke's hospital. His condition was not critical.

Policemen Frank Butler and Alex Marino said they saw Campbell peering into parked cars on State street between Harrison and Congress streets shortly before midnight last night. When they attempted to question him, they said, he reached for his hip pocket and began to run.

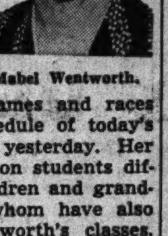
WOMAN TO END 45 YEARS' GYM TEACHING TODAY

Miss Mabel Wentworth will instruct her last physical education class today at Parker High school and then retire after 45 years of service in Chicago schools.



Mabel Wentworth.

Physical education for girls was in its infancy when Miss Wentworth entered the school system in the fall of 1897. Students in her early classes indulged in the same calisthenics, games and races included on the schedule of today's gym classes, she said yesterday. Her first physical education students differed from their children and grandchildren, many of whom have also been in Miss Wentworth's classes, chiefly in the clothes worn for gym.

"I'm retiring from actual teaching," she said, "but I don't intend to settle down to pink teas." Miss Wentworth said she will seek a part time teaching job, which she will combine with war work. Her home address is 5800 Blackstone avenue. Her father, D. S. Wentworth, was the first principal of Chicago Normal college.

EX-WIFE SLAYER, DR. FURCH, AND 41 DENIED RELEASE

Petitions for executive clemency filed with the state pardon board by 42 Illinois prison convicts, including Dr. Frank J. Furch, chiropodist who shot and killed his divorced wife when she would not remarry him, were denied by Gov. Green in Springfield yesterday.

Furch was sentenced July 17, 1937, to 14 years in prison for killing Mrs. Norma Schmidt in her apartment at 317 Belden avenue the previous Feb. 26. He pleaded that he had been driven to insanity by her alternating promises and refusals to remarry him.

Acting on the board's recommendations after its July hearings, Gov. Green rejected Furch's petition and also those for John Meissner, who killed a cab driver in Chicago in 1923 and was sentenced to life imprisonment; Jacob Tatelman, given a 40 year term from Cook county for the arson death of two small children in 1930, and Charles Skinner, a recluse poet who received a life sentence for killing a schoolgirl at Dixon, Ill., in 1935.

BAMBI DEPARTS THIS WORLD AND ZOO IS SAD PLACE

Lincoln Park zoo officials and a lot of the customers who attend there regularly were saddened yesterday when Bambi died. She was the 4½ year old orang-utan brought to the zoo in the spring of 1940 with a male of about the same age named Pongo. They made the last lap of the long trip from Sumatra by Tribune airplane.

Bambi had been under treatment for more than three months. During the summer she took cold from somebody on one of her strolls thru the park, on which she was likely to shake hands and be pals with any and sundry. The cold went into tuberculosis and no treatment seemed to avail.

A postmortem was held yesterday afternon at the Municipal tuberculosis sanitarium. It has not been determined whether her body will be buried or be given to the Field museum for mounting.

Bambi weighed 16 pounds when she arrived April 26, 1940. She gained to 42 pounds when she was at her cheerful best, but had gone down to 26 at the time of her death. Pongo was a little bigger from the start, 32 pounds, and now weighs 65.

STOCK MARKET FRONT RUNNERS MEET SETBACK

Gains Outnumber Declines in Spotty Trading.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—A "corrective" movement in several recently strong groups gave the stock market an appearance of irregularity today. Strength in utilities and certain other favorites left the list with more advances than declines at the close, but the trend of front runners in the recent lengthy upswing to the best levels since last December was downward.

Some of the day's offerings, while relatively light, were attributed to the chilling effect of the treasury's plan to ask for 6 billion dollars more in taxes after the present revenue bill passes congress. The war news again was a negative factor.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 38.8. It was the first setback since last Wednesday. Dealings slowed at intervals, but volume amounted to 700,900 shares.

CHICAGO PRICES FIRM.

Volume improved over the average of recent sessions, and prices followed an upward trend in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of the 97 issues involved in transactions of 25,000 shares, 38 closed higher, 32 lower, and 27 unchanged by comparison with Monday's final prices. Chicago corporation accounted for 7,350 shares of the turnover and closed unchanged at 1⅛. Commonwealth Edison appreciated ⅝ point, to 20⅝. New York Central, Radio corporation, and Swift were others at fractionally higher levels.

NET OF COLUMBIA PICTURES UP IN SPITE OF TAXES

Profit Trebled; U.S. Levies Rise 700 Per Cent.

Columbia Pictures corporation yesterday reported net earnings for its fiscal year ended June 27 were nearly treble those for the preceding year, altho federal taxes increased 700 per cent.

Net profit was $1,611,659, equal to $3.84 a common share, compared with $552,744, or 95 cents a share, during the preceding year. Taxes soared to $1,163,617, against only $145,420.

Profit figures include the parent company's share of revenues from British operations, altho the entire amount of these cannot be realized this year because of an agreement with the British government concerning transfer of dollars.

PRICE CONFUSION STALLS TRADING IN GRAIN FUTURES

Grain futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade was at a near standstill yesterday under a pall of uncertainty regarding the application of the new price control measures to grain markets. Wheat closed unchanged at $1.26⅛ for December to ⅜ cent a bushel lower on deferred deliveries, corn slipped ⅛ to ⅜ cent to new seasonal lows in all deliveries, and oats and rye were unchanged. Soy bean futures advanced ⅛ to ½ cent.

Philip R. O'Brien, president of the board of trade, left for Washington, D. C., in an effort to obtain clarification of the new price orders, particularly the provisions relating to the deduction of parity and soil conservation payments in arriving at ceilings on agricultural commodities. He said that he has received no official interpretation of the price control orders since they were issued Saturday and is anxious to end confusion that has paralyzed the grain trade.

Commodities

Cotton futures yesterday closed 5 to 35 cents a bale lower. Hedge selling again determined the trend, it was said, and traders remained confused over the ultimate effects of the federal price control measure. Wool top futures ended .1 to .5 cent higher.

TERMINAL ROAD HEAD TO APPEAR IN RAIL INQUIRY

State Body Opposes WPB Scrap Order.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—The Illinois Commerce commission today requested A. P. Titus of St. Louis, Mo., president of the Illinois Terminal railroad, to appear here tomorrow as a witness in the inquiry growing out of the War Production board's order requisitioning 130 miles of the electric line's trackage in central Illinois. Titus consented to appear without a formal summons.

The commission seeks to block abandonment of sections of the Terminal line linking Peoria, Bloomington, Decatur, Champaign and Danville, and an I. C. C. official indicated Titus would be questioned about events leading up to the WPB order directing that the sections be junked for scrap effective Oct. 11.

Branches Losing Money.

That probability was raised in a hearing today when Ralph Rouse, Danville city corporation counsel and also representing the nonoperating railroad brotherhoods, declared he had information the Illinois Terminal "coöperated" in obtaining the WPB order because it hoped to sell the remainder of its Illinois lines to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. At an earlier hearing Terminal officials said the branches had been losing money for years.

William E. Helander, chief examiner, announced the commission had summoned Titus. The current hearing is on a citation directing the railroad to show cause why its service should not be "extended and improved." Despite the WPB order, the commission has refused to permit the railroad to discontinue 26 passenger trains, claiming the service is essential to a populous area and should if anything be extended.

Louis F. Gillespie of Springfield, attorney for the Illinois Terminal, submitted today a statement that the road could not offer improved service in view of the WPB order and the scheduled "freezing" order of Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coördinator.

Says Its War vs. Civilians.

"Of course, if the commission wishes to challenge the jurisdiction of the War Production board or any other federal agency, that is its privilege," Gillespie said. "This is purely a case of weighing civilian needs against the war needs, and the WPB has held in this case that the war needs are more important."

[The Illinois Commerce commission, under state law, has the duty of regulating the operating as well as the financial setup of all intrastate transportation companies. Its permission is a requisite preliminary to abandonment. The commissioners have indicated they feel that the war effort would be better served by keeping the I. T. going rather than try to find buses to replace its service—that any of its lines are now more valuable as an operating concern than as scrap metal.]

Chairman John D. Biggs has said the commission may seek a federal court injunction to restrain the WPB from carrying out its order.

Attorney Rouse asked that the commission delve into the background of the WPB order.

Gillespie objected to questioning of Terminal officials along that line, saying Rouse's statement was "heresay only." When Rouse contended "it goes to the question of motives back of the order and is a proper matter for the commission to inquire into," Examiner Helander nodded agreement and remarked: "We probably will."

ASK WPB EXPLANATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Concerned because the war production board is condemning so many branch line railroads and tearing them up for the rails and scrap metal they will yield, a special subcommittee of the senate interstate commerce committee today called WPB officials to discuss their program.

The WPB experts revealed that the armed forces had greatly underestimated their rail needs early this year. With the steel industry already burdened with other war demands, they said, the only way to meet increasing rail needs is to condemn existing railroads and take their materials.

J. Widman Bertch, chief of the WPB special projects section, told the committee that originally it was estimated by the army, navy, and maritime commission that 49,310,000 feet of steel rail would be required for war purposes in the last half of this year. Later this was raised to 60,370,000 feet.

Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], a member of the interstate commerce committee but not of the subcommittee, is attending the hearings to present the complaints of Illinois citizens that the Illinois Terminal railroad should not be taken up.

New Records Are Rung Up by Two Inland Steel Units

The Inland Steel company yesterday announced that new 8 hour and 24 hour production records were established for its 28-inch structural rolling mill at Indiana Harbor during Sept. 22-23. The respective improvements over previous records set in June were 12.8 and 10.6 per cent. A group of "over 40" workers whose average age is 47 was credited with the records. During the same period the mill's finishing department broke former 8 and 24 hour cutting records by 30 and 32 per cent, respectivel.

Asserts No. 1 Farm Problem Is Man Power

The principal problem confronting farmers is not one of price, as the Washington parity fight would indicate, but one of finding adequate man power, Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, said yesterday.

Addressing members of the American Meat institute at the close of their 37th annual convention in the Drake hotel, Smith blasted suggestions by several government officials that the job of running the nation's farms be left principally to men above or below draft age and to women.

The "fallacy" of such a program would be demonstrated quickly, he said, to a nation determined to produce its maximum volume of food for victory. Key men must be kept on the farms, Smith asserted.

Asks Well Balanced Program.

Calling for a well balanced war program, Smith, who is also vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation, said it would be a mistake to produce more munitions than were actually needed, and just as serious a mistake to retain more than the necessary number of men on the farm.

Processing the vast tonnage of meat needed for American armed forces, civilian consumers, and lend-lease recipients may soon tax the capacity of the packing industry, Murray T. Morgan, meat expert of the Agricultural Marketing service, told the packers. "Considerable strain" will be placed on the industry unless farmers market their meat animals in an orderly manner, he said.

This applies particularly to the record number of hogs to be brought to market during the next few months, he said. Morgan told the packers that this year's estimated production of meat in federally inspected plants is 15.7 billion pounds, and output probably will rise to 17.5 billion pounds next year.

Industry Ready for Big Job.

Wesley Hardenbergh, president of the institute, said that "the greatest production job" in the history of packing finds the industry prepared to do it "with the coöperation which government officials have indicated would be forthcoming."

"The industry's war effort started with the passage of the lend-lease act, many months before Pearl Harbor," he said. "Purchases under this act in 1941 averaged about 55 million pounds of pork and 36 million pounds of lard monthly.

"Last April the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation announced that its requirements thenceforth would be 40 per cent or more of all pork and 67 per cent of all lard produced under federal inspection. Based on current production, these percentages mean the meat packing industry presently will be supplying about 190 million pounds of pork and 90 million of lard monthly."

George A. Schmidt, president of Stahl-Meyer, Inc., New York, was reelected chairman of the institute and Hardenbergh was retained as president.

U. G. I. COUNSEL CALLS SEC RULE ILLEGAL IN SUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP).—Counsel for the United Gas Improvement company told the third Circuit Court of Appeals today that the big holding company "isn't being integrated [by the Securities and Exchange commission], it's being disintegrated without any good to either consumers or the general public."

Challenging the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act of 1935 for the first time, Thomas B. K. Ringe, U. G. I. counsel, asserted that if the SEC is right in issuing divestment orders against the U. G. I. without first determining what constitutes the company's single integrated system "then this act offends the constitution because it violates the due process law."

U. G. I. a subholding company of the United corporation, appealed to the three man Circuit court from two commission orders which directed divestment of 14 subsidiaries.

FLOUR MILLERS PROTEST METHOD OF FIXING PRICES

The Millers National Federation declared yesterday that the 60 day emergency price ceiling placed upon flour by the OPA last Saturday imposes "a difficult, if not impossible, situation upon flour millers generally."

"In the face of uncontroled wheat prices and a rising wheat market," the federation said, "the freezing of flour prices at the levels of deliveries made during the base period [Sept. 28-Oct. 2], which in most cases were at prices lower than new sales made during that period, completely paralyzes the operations of this industry."

The federation said these facts have been brought to the attention of the OPA and are recognized by OPA officials.

War to Reduce U. S. Reserves of Natural Gas

The war will "play havoc" with the nation's natural gas reserves, J. French Robinson, president of the East Ohio Gas company, Cleveland, O., told the 24th annual meeting of the American Gas Association yesterday in the La Salle hotel. He also predicted that natural gas requirements after the war "will make still more acute" the problem of balancing supply and demand geographically.

J. A. Krug, War Production board deputy director-general for priorities control, told the closing convention session also that gas must be conserved along with other fuels. He said any wasteful practices deprive war industries.

Known reserves of natural gas in the United States, said Robinson, are estimated at 86 trillion cubic feet [a trillion is 1,000 billion] and the length of the war will determine how much will be left for postwar use. Unfortunately, he said, the areas of greatest demand are areas of dwindling supply.

All Resources Affected.

"War, of course, will play havoc in the depletion of our national reserves of all resources, and gas can be no exception," asserted Robinson. "Both supply and requirements of natural gas will be vitally affected thru the enforced practices of conservation in every single phase of the industry. The nation will never recover from the terrific impact on our material resources. All we can do is carefully husband what is left us.

"In the postwar sunshine of abundant materials for our use, we will be able to realize the potential values of natural gas as never before. Supplies and requirements will also be better balanced within the several districts themselves."

Robinson predicted that the increased use and development of present methods will seek to maintain seasonal balances by districts and companies in the postwar era. He also forecast a period of intensified natural gas use and improved transportation extending the use of natural gas to more consumers.

Prediction for the Future.

"We are already talking of natural gas by shipload in cargo ships," Robinson asserted. "The mechanics of transporting liquefied gas by water are completed. Natural gas will be transported much the same as fuel oil."

Robinson said it would be possible to propel these "tankers" by evaporation of some of the liquid gas cargo.

Liquid gas, he added, can be stored in tanks a fraction the size required for the same amount in gaseous form.

Dr. Frederick W. Sullivan Jr., technical director of the Institute of Gas Technology, Chicago, spoke on war and postwar research. Arthur E. Bridge, vice president and general manager of the Southern Counties Gas company, Los Angeles, Cal., was elected president of the association.

PUT AUGUST NATIONAL INCOME AT PEAK RATE OF 16.4 BILLION A YEAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Larger farm income and bigger pay rolls in war factories and government agencies increased the national income in August to a new record level, equivalent to 116 billion 400 million dollars a year, the commerce department estimated today. This compares with 92 billion 100 million in 1941.

August income was estimated at 9 billion 269 million which was nearly one-fourth more than for August last year. The figure was slightly below July, but the decrease was not as large as usual at that season of the year and the department's seasonally adjusted index of income payments increased.

Buick Awards Bonds for Aids to Production

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Thirty-seven workers at the Buick aviation engine plant in Melrose Park were given official recognition yesterday for suggestions which help to speed manufacturing operations. Their suggestions, officials said, help maintain a smooth flow of engines which power American bombers now fighting all over the world.

Joseph G. Hammond, plant manufacturing manager, presented the workers with war bonds and stamps and commended their efforts.

One of the group honored is a competitor for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S monthly War Workers Award. He is George Fantozzi, a machine operator, who devised a process which reduces the time and cost of making parts.

Others Offer Competition.

Fantozzi will get competition from workers in the huge Electro-Motive corporation plant which, with other Chicago district war plants, has candidates for the award. Both Buick and Electro-Motive are divisions of General Motors corporation.

Announcement of the September winner is scheduled to be made shortly. The Tribune award consists of a solid gold pin studded with diamonds. On the back is engraved the name of the winner and of his company.

Its purpose is to give public recognition to the men and women who are backing on the assembly line America's fighters at the front. The Buick workers rewarded by their company performed services typical of those THE TRIBUNE seeks to honor.

Mother of Three Honored.

Among the Buick group commended at the Buick plant yesterday was Mrs. Mathilda Olander, 29, and the mother of three children, who turned in a suggestion which relieves eye strain in inspection work.

Nominations of workers for The Tribune Award should be sent to the War Workers Award Editor, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Employés of war plants in Illinois and in Lake county, Indiana, and Kenosha and Racine counties, Wisconsin, are eligible.

Sprague Warner Leases Warehouse on West Side

Sprague, Warner & Co. yesterday leased the six story building at 701-03 Washington boulevard, containing nearly 60,000 square feet, for warehouse use, from the Francis Beidler estate.

Accidents in industry can be prevented. This fact has been definitely proved time and again by the safety engineers of the Employers Mutual staff. The records of many of our compensation insurance policyholders provide convincing evidence.

Banks Watch Test of Ration Account Plan

Chicago bankers watched with interest yesterday the development of an experiment in the east which, if successful, will be adopted nationally in an effort to smooth out the operation of rationing expected to spread to a growing list of commodities.

Bankers in upstate New York were rehearsing a system under which ration coupons are put thru the deposit and clearance machinery of banking in the same manner as regular bank checks, preparatory to formal starting of the machinery later this month.

Handling a Headache.

Handling the hundreds of millions of ration coupons is a headache to retailer, wholesaler, manufacturer, and Office of Price administration, the federal agency administering rationing of sugar, gasoline, and other commodities.

The OPA hopes to turn over part of the job to banks, and 18 banks with 17 branches in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area have started the experiment.

Retailers in this area, and perhaps later thruout the nation, will turn in to banks the ration stamps they must present to replenish the supplies of sugar, for example, which they have sold consumers. The process is repeated with the wholesaler and the sugar refiner.

Banks whose staffs are able to handle this additional work will count and keep track of the stamps, but in areas where bank personnel is not adequate for the job, special "counting centers" will be established by the OPA, according to Chicago officials of the agency.

Get Transfer Vouchers.

Depositors of the coupons will receive a check expressed in terms of pounds or gallons rather than currency—a document labeled a "transfer voucher" evidencing the right to replenish supplies.

It seems complicated, but is actually simple by comparison with the present method, and will expedite the rationing system, according to the OPA.

Retailers, wholesalers, and refiners of sugar are included in the New York rationing system planned for banks, but in the case of gasoline, the system starts with the wholesaler, excluding the retailer. These two commodities are the only ones rationed under the coupon system at present. The OPA has arranged to compensate the banks for the added work involved.

War Spending Sets Peak of 277 Millions Daily

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—War spending reached a peak of 277 million dollars a day in September, the WPB disclosed today in its weekly statistical report. Total for the month was 5 billion 684 million dollars.

CITY FINANCES TO IMPROVE AS RESULT OF WAR

Insurance Men Get Controler's Views.

A general improvement in municipal finances will result from the war, Dr. Joseph D. McGoldrick, New York City controler, told insurance executives yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Life convention in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Two major factors that will cause the improvement, Dr. McGoldrick said, are:

1. A virtual cessation of flotation of large issues of municipal issues because cities are affected by materials priorities regulations and cannot start new projects in a volume large enough to cause any sizable increase in debts for that purpose.

2. A large reduction in expenditures for relief.

Except for unemployables, cities eventually will have "practically no one" on relief rolls, he said.

New York to Cut Debt.

New York City will retire between 50 millions and 60 millions of debt in 1942, and its new issues for the year will total only a "very small" amount, the controler said.

Some unfavorable effects from war developments also will be felt by municipalities, Dr. McGoldrick said, but he termed them minor. He cited an increased cost of supplies as a result of inflation, and the difficulty of raising municipal taxes at a time when federal taxes are increasing. Some cities will be adversely affected because they will have to expand facilities to take care of large increases in population resulting from war activity, and may find themselves still in debt for such expansions when the war ends, he said.

Robert H. O'Brien, member of the Securities and Exchange commission, Philadelphia, told the insurance men that the financial condition of utility operating companies has been strengthened "a great deal" in the last 10 years.

Would Improve Position.

He suggested that utilities which are not permitted to expand during the war use accumulated funds to strengthen themselves financially. He said companies with excessive debts should retire them in the period of nonexpension. When arrearages exist on preferred stock, idle cash could be used to pay them and retire the stock, he said.

M. Albert Linton, president of Provident Mutual Insurance company, Philadelphia, told the insurance men that big opportunities for investment of life insurance funds will be found after the war in the construction industry, particularly housing and improvement of transportation and factory facilities.

W. F. Thorne, superintendent of agencies for London Life Insurance company, London, Ont., said Canadian companies are having difficulty getting new agents to replace those going to war. The companies are not permitted to approach a prospective agent directly, but can hire only from among men recommended by the national selective service offices. These are men who have been rejected for military service or are more than 45 years old.

"However, some of the men they send us are as good as any we ever recruited," Thorne said.

Warns Chaotic Food Rule May Cause Hunger

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Americans may suffer actual hunger within 18 months unless the "chaotic mess" of federal regulations governing the production and distribution of food is cleared up, Mrs. Rose Marie Kiefer, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers, today warned the special senate committee investigating the problems of small business.

Mrs. Rose Kiefer.

Food is controled by a "multiplicity" of government agencies, she said, including the department of agriculture, the War Production board, the Office of Price Administration, the Office of Defense Transportation, the army, the navy, the state department, the commerce department, the Board of Economic Warfare, the Lend-Lease administration, and the Commodity Credit corporation.

Urges Full Investigation.

"There is so much confusion and uncertainty that it amounts to chaos," Mrs. Kiefer said. "This confusion, of itself, may—unless cleared up—gravely menace the civilian food supply. But, as in the case of rubber before the Baruch committee made its report, we can only guess at what is going on.

"Unless proper remedial steps are taken immediately, we are heading into something approaching actual hunger within the next 18 months."

Mrs. Kiefer, speaking for some 60,000 small grocery store owners, asked the committee to press for the establishment of a commission to investigate the supply and distribution of food and the handling of food problems by federal agencies.

Says Chains Get Monopolies.

"There is reason to believe," she told the committee, "that chain stores are being permitted to obtain a virtual corner—monopoly if you will—in certain lines of canned goods.

"In foods, other than rationed items, there is no effective provision for inventory control."

Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] appeared before the committee and proposed that business advisers be set up in every community, similar to department of agriculture agents, to counsel with business men, help them in obtaining government assistance, and to aid them in liquidating their businesses. He suggested that a "director of war recovery" be appointed to serve under Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes.

CHICAGO FIRST IN MASS OUTPUT OF ELECTRONICS

The opening of new facilities which may lead to Chicago's becoming the electronics manufacturing center of the world was announced yesterday by Harold W. Sweatt, president of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company.

Company officials said the Chicago plant is the first in the nation, and probably in the world, that will manufacture electronic instruments on a mass production basis.

The nature of the products to be made cannot be disclosed, but Sweatt said the company has contracts with the army air force to make electronic devices developed in company laboratories and being custom-made in its other factories.

Electronics, a relatively new science, has to do with the use of electrons which are even smaller than atoms. One electronic device is the electric eye.

HERE IS SENATE TAX PLAN FOR CORPORATIONS

Load Lighter than in House Draft.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—The tax bill reported formally by the senate finance committee today contained several important changes in corporation tax rates and relief provisions affecting corporations and investors. These changes, if approved by the senate, must be ironed out in conference with the version approved by the house.

The most important revision would call for reduction in the proposed combined normal and surtax rates on corporate net income above $50,000 from 45 per cent, as approved by the house, to 40 per cent as contained in the senate bill. This would be accomplished by reducing the surtax on surtax net income of more than $50,000 from the 21 per cent rate adopted by the house to 16 per cent, leaving the normal tax at 24 per cent, as at present.

Present Surtax Rates.

The present surtax on corporations is 6 per cent upon the first $25,000 of surtax net income and 7 per cent upon surtax net income above $25,000. These rates apply by brackets rather than by totality. Both the house and senate bills change these rates to 10 per cent on surtax net income up to $25,000 and a gradual increase in rates to the $50,000 level.

On excess profits taxes, the present law allows a specific exemption of $5,000. This would be retained by the senate bill. The house raised the exemption to $10,000.

The house voted a flat excess profits tax of 90 per cent in place of existing rates ranging from 35 to 60 per cent, and this was approved by the senate committee, subject to certain relief provisions. The senate bill would place a limitation of 80 per cent on federal income taxes—normal, surtax and excess profits tax—exacted from corporations. It also provides for a 10 per cent postwar refund on excess profits taxes. The refund would be in the form of noninterest bearing bonds redeemable after the war.

May Be Used for Debts.

The postwar credit, however, may be used currently under the senate bill for debt retirement, limited to 40 per cent of the amounts paid in debt retirement and in no case may exceed the amount of postwar credit for the taxable year.

For example, a corporation with excess profits tax of $900,000 would be entitled to a postwar credit on that of $90,000. If it retires indebtedness of $100,000 during the year $40,000 of this could be applied against the postwar credit, reducing such credit to $50,000. In effect, the excess profits tax would be reduced from $900,000 to $860,000 and the postwar credit from $90,000 to $50,000.

On foreign corporations not engaged in trade or business within the United States the income tax at present is 27½ per cent. The house raised it to 37 per cent. The senate bill would make it 30 per cent.

Insurance Company Taxes.

Under the house bill, mutual insurance companies other than life or marine companies would be taxed on the basis of their underwriting and investment income, with deductions allowed for dividends to policyholders and surplus apportioned to policyholders. The senate bill would tax mutual insurance companies other

WARD'S SALES UP IN SEPTEMBER; SEARS SHOWS DIP

Montgomery Ward & Co. reported yesterday that September sales increased more than 1½ million dollars over a year ago, the first monthly gain since last March. Volume of Sears, Roebuck & Co. last month showed a decrease of more than 5 million dollars. Sales of both big Chicago mail order companies in the first eight months of their fiscal years were smaller than a year earlier.

Another Chicago mail order company, Spiegel, Inc., reported substantial declines in sales for September and the first nine months of 1942. Consolidated sales of Butler Brothers, Chicago general merchanidse firm, were lower last month, but were higher for the nine months.

Montgomery Ward's sales in September totaled $61,495,048, compared with $59,780,259 in September, 1941, an increase of 2.8 per cent. The rise checked a downward trend that began in April as the result of war shortages of merchandise. Volume for the eight months was $403,423,423, a decrease of 2.9 per cent from $415,673,098 last year.

Sears, Roebuck's sales last month were $80,527,208, against $85,714,253 a year ago, a decline of 6.1 per cent. This extended the lower trend that began in May, but was not as severe as the 26.2 per cent decrease in August.

Eight Month Business Lower.

Sales for the eight months amounted to $558,317,701, a decline of 7.2 per cent from $601,797,476 in the corresponding 1941 period.

Sales of Spiegel last month totaled $3,525,028, a decline of 22.26 per cent from September, 1941. Volume in the nine months was 20.43 per cent lower at $28,466,921. Sales of Butler Brothers in September, including the Scott-Burr retail stores, totaled $11,961,333, a decline of 4.02 per cent. Sales were $87,483,190 in the nine months, a gain of 15.83 from last year.

DU PONT'S POSITION.

I would like a report on E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.—V. E.

Answer: In size of gross revenues and invested capital, this company, with its many ramifications, holds a leading position in American industry. More than half its total income in recent years has been derived from the manufacture of chemicals, about a third from investment in General Motors stock, and the remainder from miscellaneous operations. Its products are sold to nearly every industry, altho the textile, chemical, automotive, and paper industries normally are the principal outlets.

Among products manufactured are rayon, organic chemicals, fabrics, explosives, acids, and inorganic heavy chemicals, cellophane, ammonia, plastics, and pigments.

Investments include 10 million shares of General Motors corporation common stock—about 60 per cent of the outstanding issue—about 99 per cent of the preferred stock of Remington Arms Co., Inc., one of the largest makers of ammunition and firearms in the United States, and approximately a 44 per cent voting stock interest in Canadian Industries, Ltd., producer of cellulose materials, paints, munitions, and chemicals.

Since 1941 the company has engaged extensively in the production of war materials for the government and for companies doing war work. Facilities have been expanded considerably and several government owned plants have been built to increase output. A record of recent financial results follows:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Per share [com.]
1941	$503,352,294	$90,401,470	$7.44
1940	359,055,655	86,945,173	7.17
1939	298,833,238	93,218,664	7.65
1938	235,409,426	50,190,827	3.74
1937	286,043,075	88,031,943	7.25

Net income for the six months ended June 30 was $25,953,444, or $1.99 per common share. Common dividends totaled $6.25 in 1937, $3.25 in 1938, and $7 each in 1939 thru 1941. The company has paid common dividends totaling $3.25 a share thus far this year.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. was incorporated in Delaware in 1915. Capitalization at the end of 1941 was 11,122,512 shares of $20 par common outstanding and 1,688,850 shares of $4.50 no par cumulative preferred. The company has no funded debt. The common stock ranged from 136¼ to 164¾ in 1941 on the New York Stock exchange. At the end of 1941 the Christiana Securities company owned about 27.4 per cent of the common stock outstanding.

HOW SENATE TAX CHANGES AFFECT CORPORATIONS

One base would be net investment income, to which would be applied the general corporation income tax rates. The other base would be gross income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, less dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest. To this base the rate of 1 per cent would be applied.

This is essentially the basis upon which mutual marine insurance companies are taxed under present law applicable to stock insurance companies other than life. Deductions from the taxing of mutual marine insurance companies are liberalized to include certain capital losses resulting from liquidation of assets to meet unusual insurance losses and to include dividends to policyholders.

The committee also made minor changes in the house approved plan for taxing life insurance companies.

Would Replace Capital Tax.

The senate committee recommends repeal of the capital stock tax, effective for the year ending June 30, 1942, and subsequent years and the declared value excess profits tax, effective for taxable years ending after June 30, 1942.

The house bill defined short term capital gains or losses as those from investments held for 15 months or less. The senate committee reduces the holding period to six months. Under the house bill losses from the sale of real property and buildings were treated as capital losses, even tho the property was used in the trade or business. The senate bill would take such buildings or real estate out of the definition of capital assets and treat them the same as involuntary conversions from the sale or exchange of certain depreciable property.

Present law permits corporations to carry forward for two years their net operating losses, and permits unused excess profits credit to be carried forward for two years. The senate committee would also provide a two year carry back of operating losses and of unused excess profits credit to afford the same relief in periods of declining profits which the carry-forward provision afford during rising profits.

Changes Pension Trust Provisions.

Concerning pension trusts, the committee made a number of changes in house-approved provisions. The senate committee would restore existing law permitting an employer to recover contributions made to a trust after all of the liabilities have been satisfied. The employer would be allowed to designate all of the pension, stock bonus, profit sharing, and annuity plans which he intends to qualify and if all these plans cover a sufficient number of employés it is not necessary that a designated proportion of them be included in any one plan.

The requirement of the house bill that 70 per cent of all employés be covered by the plan is changed by the senate bill to require only that either 70 per cent be covered, or that 70 per cent be eligible, provided that 80 per cent of the eligible employés avail themselves of the plan. Thus, the plan qualifies if 56 per cent of the employés are covered.

In addition to the 5 per cent of total compensation allowed as a deduction under the house bill, additional amounts could be deducted under the senate bill if demonstrated that they are actuarially necessary to discharge the liabilities under the plan. In determining such amounts both past and current service credits allocated as a level amount over the remaining future service of each employé may be considered.

LARGE SALARIES LIKELY TO BE PAID DESPITE 'LIMIT'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 [Special].—Large salaries paid to many business executives probably will continue to be paid, it is believed here, regardless of President Roosevelt's executive order limiting salaries to $25,000 a year after deductions for taxes.

As the order stands, payment of higher salaries is not actually forbidden. It merely provides that if a corporation pays a salary larger than $25,000 a year after tax deductions, the corporation, if it held a government contract, could not include the excess salary payment in its costs in figuring expenses for income and excess profits tax purposes. The corporation would have to pay normal and excess profits taxes on the excess salary.

May Absorb Tax Impost.

If a corporation paid an executive a large enough salary to leave him $50,000 after he had paid his taxes, the corporation would have to pay taxes on the excess $25,000. It is believed here that most corporations will choose to pay the extra taxes rather than cut executives' salaries.

That would mean that the companies would dig into corporate earnings to pay the taxes on the excess salary.

There are other provisions in the order which would make it possible for an individual to have a salary of $70,000 or $80,000 a year and still be within the $25,000 "limitation." The order provides that the regulation "shall make allowance for payment of life insurance premiums on policies heretofore issued, and for required payments on fixed obligations heretofore incurred, and shall make provision to prevent undue hardship."

Lower Pay Not Frozen.

In addition to these exemptions for insurance premiums and debt payments, the order apparently allows deductions for state income tax payments as well as federal taxes in determining whether a salary is above the $25,000 limit.

Salaries of less than $5,000 a year are not frozen by the order, and there are provisions for permitting increases in salaries larger than $5,000 in certain instances, as when an individual is assigned to more difficult or more responsible work.

Incomes other than salaries, such as those of heirs to large estates or persons deriving large incomes from investments, are not subject to the stabilization limit.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By BEN MARKLAND

Autumn Colors Arrive

October 6, 1942.

THE autumn parade of colorful leaves came into view this week like a high school band marching suddenly around the corner into Main street.

Last week the trees on Chicagoland farms and city streets were predominantly green, with only the reddening sumacs, faded willows and deadened hickories to alter the panorama of oaks and maples in summer condition. This week the deep-rooted oaks and maples started to join their forerunners in the colorful promenade.

The change in leaf colors is nothing exceptional, but the suddenness with which the change took place this season left every one blinking.

Pin Oaks Remain Green.

When we walked thru the Wheaton farm early in the week we noticed of all the trees on the farm the pin oaks have withstood the alternate days of coolness, frost, and heat better than any of the other species. On the lawns of farm homes, overhanging the gravel roads, and in the centers of the woodlots the pin oaks remain green. The bur oaks now are the most colorful of the oak species, with an almost even division of their leaves varying between maroon, orange-pink, and green.

Many of the red oaks on the farm have turned solid brown, and white oaks rank second to the bur oaks in colorful dress. One medium-sized red oak on the lawn of one of the farm homes is entirely orange-red, perhaps the most attractive single tree on the farm this week.

The sugar maples are showing the first traces of pink, but many of the hard maples are providing splotches of yellow and orange; white ash trees along the farm roads vary from mustard color to purplish yellow; many American elms have turned yellow; mature horse chestnut trees remain green; small catalpas have faded to yellow deadness, but large trees of this species show their sturdiness by retaining their leaves in summer condition; sumacs now are various shades from orange to deep maroon and scarlet.

Maples a Week Away.

The leaves have turned, but the autumn color chart has not reached its brightest stage. Maples will reach their climax in another week and the oaks will become brighter during the next two weeks, and these two predominant species are the ones which provide the mass of brightness for city streets and farm woodlots.

While these majordomos of the woods and roadsides are coloring, the smaller trees with shorter roots are putting on the best exhibits. A row of wild crab trees, brilliant in autumn dresses of light orange, provided the main part of one such exhibit on the Wheaton farm this week. The crabs were only part of this show, with a rustic rail fence making a bottom frame for the scene and a bright green clover field in the foreground, the three elements combining in a preview of similar displays to come.

DON'T BORROW

Borrowing is not always the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance, you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to pay cash for medical and dental attention before your favorite doctor is called into the armed forces . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special courses for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment.
